LORDS, BY 350 TO 75 REJECT THE BUDGET

AN ELECTION IN JANUARY

Commons Will Repass the Budget and Be Prorogued on Friday—Lords in Stronger Position.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Dec. 1.—As midnight was being struck by "Big Ben," the clock at Westminster, there shot up into the sky at various points in London rockets that were designed to tell the waiting millions of the metropolis that the House of Lords had "rejected" the budget. This, of course, was not the formula adopted by Lord Lansdowne and his followers, but the public generally refuse to make fine distinctions, and the word in everybody's mouth is, "The Lords have rejected Lloyd-George's budget."

It was by the decisive vote of 350 to 75 that the Lords took their position on the question which has been debated for six days. Despite the solemn warnings of Lord Rosebery, the Archbishop of York, and leaders of the free-trade Unionists, party lines were held very closely, although there were notable absentees from the ranks of the majority.

The issue has been joined, and from now until some time in January next Great Britain and Ireland will be filled with the clang and turmoil of a contest which may have the most momentous influence upon the destinies of the nation. Both sides profess absolute confidence of victory, but in the opinion of many non-partisan observers the scales will be turned by masses of silent voters whose views with difficulty could be ascertained until they are recorded in the ballot box.

Lords Strengthened by Debate.

The tactical advantages of the preliminary skirmishing have been in the main with the Liberals, but the great debate which closed last night in the upper house has undoubtedly strengthened the position of the Lords as a second chamber. Condonation for its interference with a money bill will be found in the evident bona fides of the objecting Peers.

A realization of the serious issues at stake and a deep-seated desire to serve the country's interests formed, in fact, the most striking characteristic of the whole debate. This was common to speakers on both sides of the House. Party affiliations in several cases have been thrown overboard, and men have spoken and voted according to the dictates of their hearts and consciences.

The closing scenes in the historic debate were stately and imposing. The House of Lords was crowded to the utmost. The brilliant and heraldically emblazoned roof, the scarlet benches and the green carpet, with the flashing jewels of the Peeresses in their gallery, made a gorgeous color setting. There was none of the excitement which attends a critical division in the House of Commons, but instead an air of stately calm.

Archbishop's Warning to Lords.

Though Lord Curzon of Kedleston had sufficiently recovered from his recent indisposition to be able to address the House in favor of Lord Lansdowne's motion, the feature of to-day's oratory was a speech by the Archbishop of York. His tall figure was robed in white, and his clean-shaven face made him look like a stalwart boy. He declared that he had no fear of the cry of Socialism, and that the budget was not bad enough to justify the unprecedented amendment moved by Lord Lansdowne. He extended a warning hand toward the Unionist Peers and bade them note the handwriting on the wall.

This was only one of the several references made to the policy of "Mend 'em or end 'em," which a few advanced Radicals are hoping to make the dominant issue of the coming electoral campaign. But probably a more correct note was sounded by Lord Crewe, when, in concluding the debate for the Government, he intimated that the Liberals could not take office again without guarantees of security against adverse action by the Lords, the guarantees, if necessary, to be laid down by statute. Such a statute, prescribing the limits of the power of the House of Lords, it is apparent, would be more easily drawn up than a scheme of tariff reform.

Though the exact course which will be followed by the Government after the House of Commons has reaffirmed the budget, as it will do on Thursday, has not yet been decided upon, the weight of probability is in favor of the prorogation of Parliament with the King's speech on Friday, and dissolution early in January.

FINE ORATORY AT THE END.

Archbishop of York and Lord Curzon Make Brilliant Speeches.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Oratory of a high order marked the final debate on the rejection of the budget in the House of Lords to-day. In particular the speeches of Lord Curzon of Kedleston, former Viceroy of India, and the Archbishop of York were of exceptional brilliancy. The Archbishop of York's speech was his maiden effort in the House of Lords, and its eloquent periods, added to Dr. Lang's fine

NEW BATTERY SKYSCRAPER.

Thirty-one Story Addition to the Whitehall Building Planned.

The United States Realty and Improvement Company announced yesterday that it had acquired the stock of the Battery Place Realty Company and that the latter concern would begin at once the construction of a thirty-one-story addition to the Whitehall Building, at Battery Place and Washington and West Streets. A plot to the north of the Whitehall Building was recently purchased, and the buildings that have stood upon it are now being demolished. The addition will be completed, according to present plans, by Jan. 1, 1911.

The enlarged building, including the present twenty-story structure, will occupy twenty-one city lots, with frontages of 307.2½ feet on Washington Street and 180.8 feet on Battery Place. It is the intention for the present to build the addition only upon Washington Street, running about half way to West Street, the rest of the space being converted into a garden, in which there will be attractive lawns, fountains, trees, and flowers.

The Whitehall Building, with its addition, will be, its projectors say, the largest single office building in the city. The height of the building will be 416 feet from curb to roof, while the boiler room will be 26 feet below the curb. There will be thirty elevators in the building. The extension will be built by the George A. Fuller Company from plans drawn by Clinton & Russell. The style will be Italian Renaissance.

SHOWS ROOSEVELT HUNTING.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Cherry Kearton, whose exploits with the camera in the field of natural history had already gained him a great reputation, has been getting pictures with a cinematograph in that part of East Africa where ex-President Roosevelt has been hunting. Mr. Kearton this afternoon gave an exhibition of his films at the Alhambra Theatre. Among the audience were the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia, who shortly are going to follow in the ex-President's footsteps.

Mr. Roosevelt was shown watching a native war dance, being carried across a stream on the shoulders of a sturdy porter, and riding off in the pursuit of game. But the real interest of the exhibition lay in the pictures of African animal and bird life obtained by Mr. Kearton. His great ambition was to get a cinematograph series of a lion, but though he lay in wait for the king of beasts for a week, he was unable to accomplish this object. A flashlight photograph, however, was obtained of a lion going to drink, and there are a number of cinematographs of rhinoceroses, which Mr. Kearton described as the most dangerous African beasts.

KILLED IN AUTO WRECK.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Nov. 30.—William Lyon, 35 years old, of Bernardsville, was killed, and Andrew Keegan, chauffeur, of Newark, was injured in an automobile accident on Fox Hill on the Parsippany Road, eleven miles from here to-night. With the two men was William Sommer, head of the firm of D. Osborne & Co. of 851 Broad Street, Newark, and it was his car in which the men were riding.

The hill is a steep one. Mr. Sommer was at the wheel when the accident happened. He lost control of the machine, and it crashed into a telephone pole at the side of the road.

Lyons was thrown on his head on the hard macadam road and instantly killed. Keegan had his right leg broken and his left arm injured, and he may be injured internally. Sommer was also thrown out, but landed on soft earth, and aside from slight bruises and scratches was unhurt. He hastened for assistance to a nearby house, and Keegan was carried there. Dr. E. P. Cooper of Parssippany cared for him. He was later brought to the Memorial Hospital here in an ambulance.

Lyons was the proprietor of the Bernardsville inn known as the Old Stone Hotel for many years. Mr. Sommer called for him this afternoon after going to Bernardsville from Somerville. The party came through Morristown and went to Denville, where they stopped and visited George Carmer, proprietor of the Denville Hotel.

From there the party set out for Newark by way of Parsippany.

DIED CHASING HIS TRUCK.

Wheels Had Passed Over Him, Yet He Got Up and Ran After It.

The spectacle of a youth running to catch up with a truck which had just passed over his body, and his collapse and death just as he reached the vehicle, startled the onlookers last night at Ninth Street and Fourth Avenue. The fact that the 15-year-old boy arose after the heavy wheels had passed over his chest, was in itself remarkable considering the weight of the truck. The youth who was killed was John Gabriel of 143 West Sixteenth Street, helper to Richard McConnell of 347½ West Seventeenth Street, the driver of the truck.

Gabriel, standing in the body of the truck, began to tell McConnell something and at the same time to step backward. He did not realize his nearness to the edge of the truck's side, and in an instant he had fallen off and between the wheels of the forward and rear axles. The rear wheel went over his chest and the truck then passed on, McConnell having no realization of the accident.

Gabriel rose and broke into a staggering run toward the rear of the truck. He called to McConnell as he ran and fell as he reached the rear of the truck. Men ran to his aid and Policeman Frazier of the Fifth Street station sent in a hurry call to Bellevue Hospital. Dr. Graef answered the call, but upon his arrival declared that Gabriel was dead.

BARON'S WEDDING MARRED BY A DOUBLE

A Lame von Koenitz, Who Stole and Was Jailed in Jersey, Recalled to Annoy Him.

BUT HE NEVER WAS THERE

Young Bridegroom of Rich Miss Ewen Displays $50,000 to Prove His Substantiality, and Says He'll Sue.

Baron Boto von Koenitz, a stocky, flaxen-haired man of thirty-five or so, who walks with an unmistakable limp, due, as he explains, to being shot in the leg while fighting for the Boers in South Africa, was married on Sunday afternoon at St. Mark's Church, in Jersey City, by the Rev. Dr. Frederick Mortimer, to Miss Marie Louisa Ewen of this city who, with her two sister, shared a fortune of more than a million dollars left by their father, Gen. John Ewen.

Miss Ewen, who has a city home at 23 West Eighty-sixth Street, and a palatial country home at Riverdale, is 52 years old, and has been interested in many charities. She is a cripple and has lived a secluded life, relieved only by the society of her many pet animals.

The Baron was greatly annoyed last night because his honeymoon was disturbed by reports from Newark, N. J., that a Baron of the same name, who also walked with a limp and bore a general resemblance to himself, carried away various sums from there and underwent two years' imprisonment in New Jersey for grand larceny. Baron von Koenitz was warmly indignant because the Newark police thought they detected a resemblance between a newspaper picture of himself and this other so-called Baron von Koenitz. He indignantly denied that he and the other man, who drove a bread wagon in Newark before his brief celebrity there, had anything in common.

The Baron's indignation seemed to be well founded, for whereas after his marriage he displayed to reporters a roll of $50,000 in five-thousand-dollar bills, to show that he was a man of substance, unmercenary in his aspirations, the Newark Baron was a high financier of rascally tendencies. After driving the bakery wagon for six months, this man gave up that vocation to found what he called a "White Cross" hospital in Paterson, something after the plan of an emergency hospital. The scheme went so far that officers were chosen and papers of incorporation filed. Clifford W. Headley, a registered pharmacist and chemist, was President; von Koenitz was Treasurer, and Conrad Eisenach was Secretary. Eisenach, like the Newark von Koenitz, lived at the Y. M. C. A. There von Koenitz made his acquaintance, and, as it developed later, sold him eight shares of stock in the hospital enterprise at $50 a share.

Learning that the hospital was to be shortly opened, Eisenach went to Paterson. The building which had been rented for the institution was dark and lifeless. Eisenach forced a shutter. The "hospital" contained nothing, not even a stick of furniture. It was the end of the scheme. Von Koenitz left the Y. M. C. A. and was next heard from as an employe in a German restaurant.

Among the other employes was Frederick B. Felton. Both men boarded at 27 East Kinney Street, and one morning late in April, 1906, Felton awoke to find $350 missing from his vest on a chair in his bedroom. Suspicion was directed against von Koenitz, and on April 30 he was arrested on the grand larceny charge. He first gave his surname as von Koenitz-Strubel. When searched at Police Headquarters 1,100 German marks and $40 in United States currency were found on him. Detective Wriggins, who investigated the case, learned that von Koenitz had visited a place in Harrison, across the river from Newark, where he had exchanged $260 in new bills for the marks. It was shown that the prisoner had spent $50 on the trip to Coney Island and was planning to take a steamer for Germany when arrested.

The Newark von Koenitz was held on the charge. He pleaded guilty, and on June 11, 1906, was sentenced to a term in State prison. Sergt. Thomas Connell of the Newark Police Headquarters was one of those who yesterday said he thought he recognized the picture of the newly married von Koenitz as that of the man arrested and convicted in Newark. Naturally therefore the bridegroom was angry.

His indignation was the more forcible because the stories of the two men as to their antecedents had points of resemblance. The von Koenitz known in Newark declared that his father had been killed in a duel in the family city of Hanover when he, Boto von Koenitz, was 3 years old. His mother remarried—hence the hyphenated Strubel. Educated at the Military Academy in Plouen, he served in the German Army, and while riding in a steeplechase his horse fell, breaking its rider's left leg and disqualifying him for further army service. So at the age of 19 he went to Southwest Africa, and when the Boer war broke out enlisted in Oom Paul's army.

He averred he sustained the wound which disabled him at the battle of Tiger Kopje from a fragment of an exploding lyddite shell. When he recovered at the close of the war he went to India with Lord Houghton, but after a year there returned to Hanover, thence going to the coffee plantation of a friend in Pernambuco. He came to America, he declared, in September, 1901.

The Newark von Koenitz manifested a liking for matrimonial advertising. Before his final exit from Newark he inserted advertisements in several periodicals asking for exchange of letters and stating that he was an attractive German baron. The matter was followed up by several women and dismissed when it was found the claimant was a waiter.

Discovery of the record of this Newark Von Koenitz not only angered the Baron, but upset the whole Ewen family. The bride could not be seen last night, being fatigued, it was explained, by the excitement attendant upon the publicity her marriage had brought. Owing to this publicity, too, the Baron said, speaking in her stead, their honeymoon trip to Naples, planned on the Koenig Albert of the North German Lloyd Line this morning, was postponed. Owing to the same publicity, the Baron said, and not at all to any resentment at the match, Miss Eliza Ewen, who with Miss Louisa and the third unmarried sister had lived at the West Eighty-sixth Street house, departed for the country place at Riverdale, and all the furniture of the richly furnished home was suddenly ordered by the Baron removed to storage.

"This fuss has knocked everything sky-high," said the Baron.

Intruders bothered him. While a reporter was receiving from the Baron at the dismantled Ewen home last night his denial of aught in common with the Newark baron of prison record, a stout man who had called earlier in the evening to inquire into the Baron's history, only to be told that the Baron was out, returned.

"It's that same man!" shouted Charles T. Heaslip, who says he is a friend of the Baron and of the Ewens, and gave out most of the statements from both yesterday concerning the marriage. "Run down into the basement, Baron!"

Detectives Surround Him as He Leaves Cleveland Home for Pocantico Hills.

HE IS TOLD OF CONSPIRACY

Ohioan Says That Two Men in a Shed at Night Planned to Assassinate or Kidnap Him.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 30.—The story of a plot to kidnap or kill John D. Rockefeller, at first discredited by the police, finally led to the taking of extra precautions to guard Mr. Rockefeller on his way to the special train that carried him toward Pocantico Hills this afternoon. Extra guards were thrown about Forest Hill last night and to-day. The same precaution will be taken at the New York estate. The police of Northern Ohio towns have been asked to look for two men described as the plotters.

News of the plot was furnished to the police by Sawyer Smith, a business man of Minerva, Ohio. Smith says he overheard a conversation at Alliance Sunday night in which the plans to do away with Mr. Rockefeller were discussed.

Smith came to Cleveland yesterday to confer with Chief of Police Kohler and Chief Stamberger of East Cleveland. Smith and Stamberger called upon Mr. Rockefeller last night to tell him what they knew. Mr. Rockefeller then gave up his plan to attend the annual banquet of the Men's Club of the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church, at which he had promised to speak.

Smith told his story again to-day.

"I was visiting in Alliance Sunday," he said. "About 8:45 P. M. I started for the church to meet my brother-in-law. I walked up a railroad track near the church and stopped when I heard some one talking in a dark shed.

"One voice said: 'I don't see why we came here to-day from Pittsburg. We might have waited until to-morrow and gone to Canton, where we could meet Bill. We might as well get our money for killing old John D. We will get what is coming to us, whether we kill or kidnap him. Bill and the other fellow have plenty of money, and are willing to pay well for putting old Rockefeller out of the way.'

"I ran around to head the fellows off, that I might get a good look at them," continued Smith. "I stumbled, as it was dark. They saw me, but I hurried on. I headed them off around the next block, and got a gool look at both of them.

"When I told this story to Chief Stamberger yesterday he insisted that I accompany him to Forest Hill to tell Mr. Rockefeller just what I heard. I didn't like to, but I consented when he insisted. Mr. Rockefeller told me he believed me, and asked that I remain in Cleveland Tuesday to make identifications in case arrests were made. I told him that I would do this for the sake of principle, and refused when he offered to pay my expenses while in Cleveland.

"I am a responsible man, and did not come here with an imaginary story for the sake of notoriety or gain. I would not have come to Cleveland were it not for the fact that my business called me here. I preferred to leave it in the hands of the Canton police."

Late this afternoon, when the Rockefellers drove to the 105th Street station of the Lake Shore Road to take their special train for New York, there was an extra guard in the big automobile. Several detectives in plain clothes were at the station to see that nothing happened. As the train was late in being made up Mr. Rockefeller thought he would walk around a few minutes with two of his guards, but a crowd of curious persons soon formed and he went back to his automobile, where he sat until the train was ready to start.

GIRL LOST IN TROLLEY MAZE.

She Rode and Rode Until She Was Rescued at Last by a Friend.

Rose Kaminski is a Polish girl who has been in this country only a month or so and has worked all the time for Mrs. Youlman of 630 Fifty-ninth Street, Bay Ridge. On Sunday she had a day off and went to visit a countrywoman, Mrs. Helena Crybiska, at 653 Third Avenue. She left at dusk to return to Mrs. Youlman's.

Not speaking any English, she couldn't ask any questions even when she got to the end of the line in Jamaica, having taken the wrong car. She took another car and kept on riding. By yesterday afternoon Mrs. Youlman began to get worried about the girl, for she hadn't turned up.

The girl had been riding in car after car all the time from Sunday evening until yesterday afternoon, and she would probably have been riding yet if Mrs. Maria Lasitska of 182 North Tenth Street, Williamsburg, who knew her in the old country, hadn't happened to board a car on which she was exploring the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn.

Mrs. Lasitska heard the girl's story and personally conducted her back to Mrs. Crybiska's house. There she collapsed at the sight of a bed and retired. When she wakes up Mrs. Crybiska will lead her back to Mrs. Youlman's.

JURY FOR H. CLAY PIERCE.

Evidence Will Be Heard To-day Against Oil Man Accused of False Swearing.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 30.—A jury was procured to-day to try Henry Clay Pierce, President of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, for false swearing in his statement to Texas officers when he procured permission for the re-entry of his company into Texas after it had been ousted.

Evidence will be introduced to-morrow. It is hoped to complete the case this week.

SWITCHMEN STRIKE IN THE NORTHWEST

TO TIE UP FREIGHT TRAFFIC

13 Roads Affected, but Passenger Service Likely to Continue—Union, Asking Higher Wages, Won't Arbitrate.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 30.—Every union switchmen in every railroad yard between St. Paul and the Pacific Coast went on strike at 6 o'clock to-night. Thirteen railroads in the Northwest are affected. The strike involves 2,300 men, including switchmen, switch tenders, towermen, engine herders, and assistant yardmasters.

The men quit work after fifteen days of negotiations between the Switchmen's Union of North America and the joint commission of railroad managers, representing the thirteen roads. The men demanded 6 cents more an hour and double pay for Sunday and overtime in excess of ten hours. The men were employed by the various railroads running west and north of St. Paul and Lake Superior to the Pacific Coast.

In a last effort to avert a strike the representatives of both sides held a meeting which lasted almost all day. At 4:40 o'clock the final break came and the negotiations were ended.

It is expected that most of the passenger trains will be able to move as usual, as the brakemen on these trains are competent to do the necessary switching. But the strike in all probability means that so far as freight is concerned not a wheel can turn at the Minnesota Transfer, at the Union Station in St. Paul, or at the Minneapolis stations until the railroads can get men to take the places of the strikers.

Charles H. Knapp of the Inter-State Commerce Commission and Charles P. Neill, Commissioner of Labor, who attended the conference to-day, said after the meeting adjourned that they would remain here for a day or so to watch the progress of events. They went at once to the yards of the Minnesota Transfer. It is here that the freight from the Northwest is switched, and here that the consequences of the strike will be most seriously felt.

The general order to strike was issued by President Frank T. Hawley of the International Switchmen's Union, who has been in active charge of the interests of his union during the prolonged conferences. Telegraphic orders were sent out last night to strike at 6 o'clock to-day unless otherwise ordered, and the men in all of the yards between St. Paul and Puget Sound went out at the stroke of the hour.

The first effect of the strike was a sharp bulge in the price of wheat on the Chicago grain market late to-day. As the roads entering St. Paul, Duluth, and Superior are largely grain carriers from the West, the prospect of interruption to this traffic caused some to fear delayed deliveries of grain.

To-night both sides to the dispute issued statements. The railway managers' committee issued the following:

> The demands of the switchmen were for double pay for Sundays, holidays, and overtime; an advance of 60 cents per day of ten hours in the wages of switchmen, switch tenders, towermen, engine herders, and assistant yardmasters; a modification of the rule providing for the payment of penalty in case of failure to permit switchmen to secure their meal in the middle of their shift at a stated period, which contemplates double pay in cases where it became necessary to work a portion of the meal hour, and the elimination of the physical examination and the age limit placed upon switchmen entering the service.
> The managers' committee offered the switchmen an increase of 20 cents per day of ten hours in the rates of pay of switchmen employed in the territory west of Havre, Mon., on the Great Northern Railway, and west of Billings, Mon., on the Northern Pacific Railway; the differential in that territory for switchmen having obtained for about two years.
> Further concessions was declined for the reason that the rates of pay of switchmen were increased over 13 per cent. in November, 1906, and because the rates at that time established had not been reduced during the period of business depression which followed.
> The attention of the switchmen was called to the fact that in 1906 the switchmen were granted a larger percentage of increase than any other class of employes in train service. At the present rate the wages of the switchmen average over $100 per month.

The statement then recites that in submitting its final answer to the switchmen the managers suggested that the demands be submitted to arbitration under the provisions of the Erdman act. The switchmen declined this suggestion, and in a written answer said that "the committee begs leave to state that it will not submit to arbitration under any circumstances."

The statement then says that a telegram was addressed to Martin A. Knapp of the Inter-State Commerce Commission and Charles P. Neill, United States Commissioner of Labor, asking them to act as mediators under the Erdman act. The statement adds:

> Before the conferences with Messrs. Knapp and Neill had begun, despite the understanding reached in the conferences, that mediation under the Erdman act should be evoked, and without the knowledge of either the Managers' Committee or mediators, a strike order was issued by the Switchmen's Committee, directing the switchmen of the thirteen Northwestern railroads to cease work at 6 P. M., Nov. 30, in the event that their full demands had not been conceded.
> This violation of good faith so embarrassed the negotiations that successful mediation became impossible, and led to the demand by Messrs. Knapp and Neill, addressed to both the Managers' Committee and the switchmen, that the controversy be submitted to arbitration under the terms of the Erdman act. To this proposal the Managers' Committee gave its willing assent, but the switchmen absolutely declined it.

Early reports received by the switchmen as to the effect of the strike order indicate that all switchmen on the affected lines quit work, and that there is a general tie-up of traffic in all the yards heard from.

G. T. Slade, General Manager of the Northern Pacific, to-night said that he had only meagre reports of the effects of the strike order so far. He said that local traffic had been delayed, but that the railroads had a scheme by which they hoped to facilitate the handling of traffic in a short time. Enough switching was done in the St. Paul yards to-night by train crews to keep passenger traffic moving.

Reports from the larger places in the territory affected show that the strike order was obeyed generally. Seattle reports that 200 employes of the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound, the Northern Pacific, and the Great Northern quit work.

At Tacoma, Wash., 102 switchmen in the Northern Pacific yards went on strike.

About 180 switchmen obeyed the strike order in Spokane.

A dispatch from Missoula, Mon., says that Northern Pacific officials in Missoula were instructed to-night to accept no freight until further notice.

All the regular freight trains on the Northern Pacific were annulled for to-night, and the tie-up is practically complete.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Jewelry worth $2,300 belonging to Mrs. Douglas F. Forrest of Washington was stolen to-night from her room in a hotel.

Mrs. Forrest upon returning to her room found a window leading to the fire escape open. There were footprints on the newly painted fire escape.

RAIN SUSPENDS REVOLUTION.

Clyde Liner Brings in Hearty Prayers for Continuous Domingan Wet.

The Clyde liner Cherokee, when she arrived from Santo Domingo yesterday, brought reports of the great rainstorm—greatest of a decade—which swept over that island recently. In ten days the rainfall reached the great figure of 29½ inches.

There is a little revolution brewing in the centre of the island, but so tremendous was the downpour that hostilities had to be postponed. It was hinted that some of the more peaceable inhabitants in the coast cities were not averse to a long rainy spell.

When the Cherokee sailed it was rumored that many lives had been lost in the storm.

WOULD DIVORCE F. L. COLWELL

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., Nov. 30.—Mrs. Lillian Huntington Colwell, a New York woman, who has been living in this city for about seven months, filed a suit yesterday for a divorce from Frederick Lewis Colwell, a stockbroker of New York. She alleges desertion and failure to provide.

She states in her complaint that she married Mr. Colwell at the St. Regis Hotel in New York on June 14, 1905, and that on Nov. 9, 1907, Colwell deserted her at Stamford, Conn., and has since that time refused to live with her or to provide for her.

Mrs. Colwell, since coming to Reno, has occupied apartments with her son, Huntington Hills. Mrs. Colwell is a niece of the late Collis P. Huntington. She has taken a prominent part in Reno society and is at the present time Vice President of the Twentieth Century Club, an organization of women interested in municipal affairs.

Recently Mrs. Colwell delivered a lecture before the club and told of a journey through Egypt and the Holy Land.

GEM IMPORTS CLIMB AGAIN.

$34,000,000 in First Ten Months—Barometers of Prosperity.

Unless all signs fail, 1909 will prove a banner year in the importation of diamonds, pearls, and other precious stones. The heaviest importations in any single year was in 1906, when the entries at New York aggregated $41,648,869. For ten months of this year the importations of precious stones are estimated at nearly $34,000,000. November's importations will, it is estimated, range between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000, and if December measures up to this standard this year's importation of stones will reach, if not exceed, the high record of 1906.

The present importations are regarded as phenomenal in view of the financial depression resulting from the panic in the Fall of 1907, when the importation of gems dropped to $29,812,093. Michael Nathan, Deputy Appraiser in charge of the second division, where the gems are examined and appraised, said that inasmuch as practically all the precious stones brought into the United States are entered at this port, the entries here are indicative of the general prosperous conditions prevailing throughout the country.

SOOTHING SYRUP KILLS BABY.

Opium and Morphine in It—Child Dead in Mother's Arms.

"My child is seriously ill, and I would like you to treat her immediately," said Mrs. Elizabeth O'Dell at the door of the Newark Babies' Hospital, in that city, yesterday. She carried the infant, eight weeks old, in her arms. Miss Clare E. Watkins, Superintendent of the hospital, took the child and found that it was dead.

Investigation disclosed the fact that death had been caused by opium in soothing syrups that had been administered to excess in the hope of stopping a cough the child was suffering from. Mrs. O'Dell explained that friends had told her of a remedy for the cough which contained one-sixteenth of a grain of heroin and one-tenth of a grain of morphine, which was sufficient, the doctors said, to cause death.

The woman was overcome with grief when she found that the child was dead and refused to leave the body at the hospital, carrying it three-quarters of the way across the city to her home in a tenement at 52 Canal Street.

GIRL IN BATHTUB SLAIN, POLICE SAY

THEY HOLD HER COMPANION

Miss Wardwell's Explanation of How Girl's Body Came to Be Found in Practically Empty House Unsatisfactory.

The charge of murder was preferred by the police of East Orange, N. J., just before midnight last night against Virginia Wardlaw, the elderly spinster who reported on Monday evening the alleged suicide of a young woman who, she said, was Mrs. Ocey W. M. Snead, her niece, in a bathtub of the practically empty house in that town which the two had occupied for the last ten days.

The woman who called herself Miss Wardlaw had been held from Monday afternoon, when the body of the woman was discovered, as a material witness in the case, her strange attitude in fencing with the police and refusing to give them information about her alleged niece or herself baffling them until late last night, when Sergt. O'Neil of the East Orange force returned from an investigation of the woman's life in Brooklyn.

The Chief of Police at once got in touch with Prosecutor Mott of East Orange, who instructed that the woman be held on the charge of having killed the younger woman. Sergt. O'Neil reported from Brooklyn, among other things which greatly increased the suspicions of the police, that a $20,000 insurance policy on the life of Mrs. Snead had been discovered, on which $5,000 had been borrowed for the benefit of others than the girl herself, and that a will had been drawn naming several beneficiaries.

Investigating a report in the neighborhood of a house in Forty-eighth Street, Brooklyn, in which the four women had lived, that it had been sued as a "baby farm," Detectives Barnitz and Henney of Brooklyn forcibly entered the house late last night, making a thorough investigation. They reported to Lieut. Foster that they found numerous stains on the floors, walls, and in the bathroom which resembled blood stains, and also several small, charred bones in the furnace. Whether the stains were really from blood they could not say, but they reported to Coroner Bierson that the bones were those of a child. The house will be left under guard until further investigation can be made.

On the report of the detectives Police Headquarters asked the East Orange police to hold the Wardlaw woman for the Brooklyn authorities.

The Wardlaw woman, who is about 57 years old, rented the house in which her niece was found dead about ten days ago from Menzel, Matcher & Co. of 105 Roseville Avenue, East Orange, paying the first month's rent in advance. Aside from the fact that neighbors now say they remember seeing carriages at different times draw up at the house, and that Dr. Charles E. Teeter of Newark called to see Miss Snead at the request of the Wardlaw woman, nothing was seen of the couple until the girl's death was reported to the police.

At about 4:30 o'clock on Monday afternoon a woman's voice told the East Orange police over the telephone that a woman had committed suicide at 89 North Fourteenth Street and requested that the Coroner be notified. The desk sergeant at once telephoned to Dr. Herbert Simmons, the Deputy County Physician, and a short time later when the doctor called at the Fourteenth Street address the Wardlaw woman opened the door for him. Leading the way to the bathroom on the second floor Miss Wardlaw opened the door. Dr. Simmons said the woman told him that earlier that afternoon the girl had entered the bathroom to bathe, and that she suspected nothing until she became alarmed over the girl's failure to come out of the bath soon. On examining the body Dr. Simmons exclaimed:

"Why, this woman has been dead twenty-four hours." Then the Wardlaw woman admitted, he declares, that such was probably the case, and that it was on Sunday afternoon that she had built a fire in the kitchen range to heat the water for the girl's bath. She said, however, that she had spent a part of Monday away from the house, and had had no occasion to go to the bathroom in the twenty-four hours from the time the girl entered it and her discovery of the body. Though Dr. Simmons pointed out that she must have suspected something as she slept at the house that night, when the girl did not appear at bedtime, he could get nothing from the Wardlaw woman of consequence. She met his questions with evasions.

Dr. Simmons found the house absolutely bare of furniture. There was but one cot for both women to sleep on. There were two broken chairs which the doctor was convinced had been left as worthless by the former tenants, and the entire place spoke of discomfort. A soap box covered with matting, with a fringe of muslin had been used as a table. The larder contained two or three boxes of crackers, one or two packages of chipped beef, and a scuttle of coal for the range. No clothes were to be found at all except a black silk gown, and the little pile of clothes belonging to the dead girl. These were just inside the bathroom door, and pinned to them was this note:

> Last year my little daughter died. Other near and dear ones have gone before. I want to join them in Heaven. I have been prostrated with illness a long time. When you read this I will have committed suicide. Do not grieve for me; rejoice with me that death brings a blessed relief from pain and suffering greater than I can bear.

In reply to Dr. Simmons's questions, the Wardlaw woman said that Mrs. Snead had been ill since the birth of her first child about two years ago. She explained her presence in East Orange by saying that they had come there in search of health for the girl.

"But why are you living like this?" asked the doctor. "Why haven't you any furniture or any comforts?" To these questions, the woman replied that it suited them best to live that way, and, in fact, they had just settled there temporarily.

From the moment of the discovery of the girl's body the Wardlaw woman began to fence when questioned. She was taken to Police Headquarters as soon as Sergt. O'Neil arrived and from early in the evening until midnight she was questioned by Police Chief Bell. He was unable to make any headway with her. All she would say was that Mrs. Snead was her niece, and that before coming to East ge they had lived for a while at y-eighth Street and Mill Lane, Brooklyn. She wouldn't tell what the girl's en name was, where she was born, hom she had married. She said the husband, however, was dead, and her baby, born four months after husband's death, was now in St. stopher Street Hospital, Brooklyn.

hen pinned down for a reason for ng to East Orange to live in a cheer- unfurnished house, bringing with a girl who she admitted was ill, she sed to answer, replying that she did think it was fair for the police to stion her or to hold her.

Let me go," she said, "and I will fy the girl's relatives, and then re- to you." But the police had no of taking her at her word, and she used to tell where any relatives of the d woman were, so the police could in touch with them. She told them, vever, that Mrs. Snead had consider- e property in Brooklyn.

he was examined again for several rs yesterday afternoon, with Mayor rdwell of East Orange assisting the ice Chief in questioning her. Com- ed they got absolutely nothing from that would throw any light on the ange case.

he police found yesterday that before two women went to East Orange ten s ago, they lived at the Hotel Bre- ort, Fifth Avenue and Eighth Street, nhattan. A house in which they lived Brooklyn for several months was own in the neighborhood as "The use of Mystery," they found.

here through Dr. William R. Pettit of 25 East Thirty-seventh street, Brook- , Sergt. O'Neil of the East Orange ice department, found much to engthen the belief that the girl had killed herself.

Dr. Pettit told Sergt. O'Niel last night at he had every reason to believe that ose with the young woman when he as treating her as early as last March ere doing almost everything in their wer to undermine her health. He told e detective that every instruction he t for the care of the woman was glected, and exactly those things which forbade them to do were done, and at the women, one of whom said she as Miss or Mrs. Wardlaw, tried to get m to tell the girl she was going to die d that she ought to make out her will fore it was too late.

The story of the will and of the life surance policy, on which all that could borrowed had been obtained, made a ofound impression on Chief Bell of the st Orange force. With these facts as basis, the Wardlaw woman will be sub- cted again to-day to an examination.

Miss Wardlaw is small and wiry. She s dark hair, regular but strong features, cold eye, and what Police Chief Bell scribes as the smoothest tongue he has ard in a long time. She is dressed in ack, and at all times heavily veiled, ex- pt when talking with the police. Even en she kept her veil down when they uld let her. She has no clothes, so far the police have been able to discover, cept those she wears.

According to one of those living in the ighborhood of the Fourteenth Street use Miss Wardlaw was seen leaving the use on Monday morning with a small ndle, apparently clothes. She is said to ve offered a boy 10 cents to carry it r her, and when he refused continued to rry it herself. Where she went has not en ascertained.

Dr. Pettit told the police that he found ree women besides the Snead girl at the ooklyn house when he called. The elder omen appeared to him to be sisters, and eir conduct toward the young woman nd their behavior in general was such at he was several times led to question em closely. He believes the investiga- on he started regarding the position the rl occupied in the house was the pri- ary cause of the departure of the wo- en and the closing of the house about wo weeks ago. He had heard nothing any of them since until the announce- ent of the death of the girl. He said ast night:

"I was called in a second time to at- end Mrs. Snead by one of three elderly women whom I met at the house in East Forty-eighth Street about the 1st of August last. I was directed to the sick room on the second floor. The patient was a oung woman about 24 years old. She ppeared to me to be refined. I was told y one of the other women that she was n aunt of Mrs. Snead.

"I made other visits after that, but at o time was I able to find out from Mrs. Snead anything about herself. Every ime I asked a question some one of the other three women was always ready to give an answer. Mrs. Snead seemed fraid to talk. She appeared to be under he influence of those around her.

"What I could not understand was why young woman like Mrs. Snead was liv- ng with the three old women. They were areless in their dress, but seemed to have n influence over the sick woman that she ould not shake off. They never left er alone and did not give her a chance to ay anything.

"The building they lived in was only artly furnished. That was another fact bout the place that struck me as curious. The presence of the young woman in such place and with such companions cer- ainly looked suspicious. I never saw any men about the place. I only heard from one of the old women that Mrs. Snead had a husband who died seven months ago. I never saw him, and don't know anything further about him.

"The only time I ever heard of a man eing around there was from the nurse who attended Mrs. Snead, a Miss Eliza- eth Mogg. She said she heard one of the lderly women go to a front hall window hortly before midnight of the day she as at the house, and hold a conversation ith a man who was evidently standing n the stoop outside. An hour later the urse was told by one of the other women he need not stay any longer.

"Another time I called at the house on ne of my visits. No one answered the ell. I had to get in through a front window to see my patient. This time only ne of the three women was in the house. he followed me to the room where Mrs. nead lay ill. The young woman wanted o talk, but she seemed to be scared to eath. I did not go there after that. I ave up the case because the elderly omen did not take care of Mrs. Snead e way I told them to.

Miss Mogg, the trained nurse sent to e house by Dr. Pettit, said last night:

"I was called in to attend Mrs. Snead y Dr. Pettit on the morning of Aug. 18. am sure of that date because one of e women called at my home on the day fter I attended the case and gave me a note, dated Aug. 19, promising to pay me in thirty days. The operation was performed shortly before noon. I stayed with Mrs. Snead all that afternoon and evening, leaving there between midnight and 1 o'clock the following morning.

"Mrs. Snead did not want to me to go. She wanted me to stay all night, but the other women who never left us alone insisted on my leaving saying they could take care of Mrs. Snead. I did not have any conversation with Mrs. Snead, whatever. I could not, because the other women did not give me a chance. Wherever I went one of them kept tagging after me. I was not let alone with Mrs. Snead for a single moment. Mrs. Snead seemed afraid of some one, or some thing. While I was near she clung to my hand and squeezed it. She seemed as if she wanted to tell me something, but she did not dare to, as one of the women was near by all the time."

Miss Mogg told of one midnight visit just before she was forced to leave.

"About half an hour before midnight," she said, "the front door bell rang and one of the women went to the kitchen and yelled down through the speaking tube. She appeared to recognize the voice and told the called to waint on the stoop a minute. She crossed the hall and went to a front room, taking care to close the hall door after her so that the conversation could not be heard.

"The door would not close easily, and the woman kept slamming it until she could close it, and it was with a great deal of difficulty she did so. I heard her raise the window and talk to some one. It was a man's voice. I am positive of that. All the woman said to the caller, and she said it in a slow, deliberate voice, was:

"'Come later; some one here.'

"She said no more. She closed the window, and came to the sickroom. I left the house an hour later."

Sergt. O'Neil found the Snead baby last night at the St. Christopher Street Hospital. It was well, and the matron said that it had grown a great deal since a woman, not its mother, brought it there about a month ago, promising to come again and pay the charges, but never having done so. The detective also found that the story about the two women having stopped at the Brevoort for a little while was also true, and that a man whose name is said to be Snead was with them.

Dr. William McKenzie, the County Physician of East Orange, became convinced last night following an autopsy that Mrs. Snead had died from drowning, whether from suicide or from being held under the water he was, of course, unable to say. On his representation Chief Bell said he would continue to hold Miss Wardlaw until the case was cleared up.

BRONX LINE TIED UP.

Passengers, Stalled on Harlem Bridge, Climbed Fence to Escape.

Nearly 700 passengers, of whom probably 300 were women, several of them carrying babies in their arms, were stalled on the elevated railroad bridge which crosses the Harlem River into the Bronx, from the foot of East 129th Street, for an hour and ten minutes last night by the blowing out of a circuit breaker which deprived the entire elevated system in the Bronx of power for an hour and a half. The blowout, which occurred at 9:05 o'clock, was accompanied by the usual pyrotechnical display of blue flame and sparks.

The first intimation that anything was wrong came when all the lights in the stations and trains north of 129th Street suddenly went out and sparks and flames shot out from every point where wires carrying alternate currents met. In trains stalled on the tracks between stations or at them there was little excitement, since after the first display the trains simply remained in darkness, the passengers expecting that the current would be turned on again momentarily

Two trains, one going to the Bronx, the other coming from it, and both well filled with passengers, were stopped directly upon the bridge. Guards ran through the cars, shouting to the passengers that nothing was the matter, and that the power would be turned on again in a minute. They managed to quiet the passengers for a time, but as the minutes passed they became more and more nervous, and many insisted upon leaving the train.

They had been in the cars for an hour and ten minutes when Policeman Harry J. Young of the Alexander Avenue Station entered the train by climbing over a four-foot iron fence topped with spikes which separates the footpath from the railroad tracks, and insisted that the passengers be helped from the train. Under his orders the guards undertook the work, and one by one the women were assisted off the platforms and over the spike-topped fence to the footpath.

Once on the footpath most of the passengers walked toward the Bronx side of the river, for it was nearer to this side than to the Harlem side that the trains had stalled. As the throngs approached Lincoln Street, in the Bronx, into which the footpath leads, there was another loud explosion almost beneath their feet, and instantly the bridge was enveloped in dense black fumes.

There was a panic among the passengers whose nerves had been overwrought already by their long wait in the cars, and they ran helter skelter for Lincoln Street. Again Young managed to bring order out of the chaos by explaining that another fuse had blown out in the supply cable, which runs under the river from the foot of Lincoln Street.

The tooting of the Fireboat McClellan, which hurried up the river from 132d Street, and the whistles of the fire engines which responded to a hurried fire alarm, added to the excitement, but when they reached the place it was found that there was no fire, the fuse simply having burned out its insulation, thus giving off the stifling smoke.

Meantime there was a scene of excitement on the 149th Street station of the elevated. Here it is that the Subway passengers are transferred to the elevated line. In the Subway nothing was known of the accident and the transfer men continued to pass out transfers to all who asked for them. Little by little the 149th Street elevated station became congested, until at last a squad of special policeman was sent there, who explained the trouble to the crowd, and marshaled them off of the platform.

WHITMAN TELLS OF WHITE SLAVE TRADE

WAVERLY HOUSE'S MISSION

The system of probation carried out during the last year by the New York Probation Association, and especially that part of the system which applies to the operation of Waverly House, a home for erring girls which has been maintained for several months in Tenth Street, not far from Jefferson Market Court, was indorsed last night by District Attorney-elect Charles S. Whitman as a means of materially lessening the so-called "white slave" evil, which, Mr. Whitman said, exists here in New York just as it does in most other large cities of the world.

Mr. Whitman is President of the New York Probation Association. He told last night of the work accomplished by that organization and by Miss Maude E. Miner, Superintendent of Waverly House, during the first year of the association's existence. The occasion was the first annual meeting of the association, held at the Colony Club, 122 Madison Avenue. Several officials explained the details of the work, and the scope of the efforts among unfortunate women, who have fallen into the hands of the police, which the association hopes to accomplish in the future.

Miss Miner told of her investigations in the last year into the causes responsible for the degradation of the women who have been arraigned in the Night Court, and through the operation of the probation system have become inmates of Waverly House.

Her investigations led Miss Miner to nearly all parts of the city, and in her annual report she says that men engaged in the "white slave" traffic are largely responsible for the misfortunes of those women who are picked up by the police on the streets and charged with violation of the law. She cited statistics to prove this.

What Has Been Done.

Mr. Whitman, who preceded Miss Miner as a speaker, said that the probation of first offenders had worked incalculable good in this city, saving many young women from a life of shame, but that great room for improvement still existed in the probation system as employed here.

He said tnat Jefferson Market Prison is inadequate to the needs for which it was intended, and recommended that a municipal place of detention should be built by the city not far from the Night Court, where women offenders guilty of but one offense could be held until the probation officers took them in hand.

Speaking of the work Waverly House has done, Mr. Whitman said that girls sheltered and protected there have been able to escape the control of men who were responsible for their downfall and for the lives they were leading. He said that all who have investigated the so-called "white slave" traffic here know that many men live from the proceeds extorted from the unfortunate women who come under their influence.

He said that during the year 300 girls had received shelter in Waverly House, and that out of that 300 at least 119 have been sent back to their homes and are leading honest lives. He gave all the credit for the good work accomplished to Miss Miner, who, by the way, was appointed a probation officer several years ago by Mr. Whitman at the time he was President of the Board of Magistrates.

Mr. Whitman explained that a bureau of employment had been opened at the shelter in Tenth Street, and that one hundred girls who had been arraigned in the Night Court, but escaped sentence by the working of the probation system, had received employment, and are now engaged in honest if not over-lucrative work.

Many Girls Reformed.

Miss Miner did not mince words in describing the conditions which exist in the so-called "White Slave" trade. She said that the Night Court and the probation system had emancipated many unfortunate girls from "the slavery of the professional bondsman," and that at least one-third of the girls who have been turned over to Waverly House have turned to honest living.

"Why have these unfortunate girls who have come to the Night Court entered upon an immoral life?" asked Miss Miner. And she answered the question herself by telling of her investigations both through the inmates of Waverly House and by personal work in the slums and the tenement districts from which the girls came.

"Out of 208 of the girls who have been sheltered and protected in Waverly House 45 per cent. of them were drawn into the life," said Miss Miner. "Eighteen per cent. were deserted by men who had promised to marry them. With 16 per cent. work conditions were to blame. They were underpaid in factories or stores. The others were led to the paths of infamy by home conditions, unfortunate surroundings, and influences in the home which should not have been allowed to exist.

"Ignorance on the part of parents is often to blame. They send their daughters out into the world without a proper knowledge of sex. Low wages are many times responsible. The girls who work for $4 or $5 a week, after paying carfares, luncheons, and board have nothing with which to clothe themselves.

"Then, too, the dance halls in this city are dangerous places for girls. Many of the girls who have come to Waverly House have told me that they were led astray in the dance halls. In my investigations I have found that many of the men in this city who live on the traffic in girls are bartenders or proprietors of Raines law hotels. From actual cases under our observation we know that this trade in girls, known as the 'white slave' traffic, goes on here in New York. I have found many disorderly houses right next door to factories in the tenement districts, a constant menace to the girls who work in the factories."

Views of a Priest.

Father James O. S. Huntington, who has been prominently identified with probation work, said that society itself is responsible for the unfortunate condition of many of the poor girls who find their way into the Night Court.

"We must bring home to ourselves the significance of what Miss Miner has told us," he said. "Society has made those girls what they are. The question is what to do; and the answer lies with ourselves.

"Those unfortunates who have fallen should not be segregated by us. We should look upon them as one of ourselves and feel that we perhaps would have done as they have done if we had been brought up as they have been, in their environment. We should help them. They should be employed, not at a smaller wage than girls who have not fallen, but at a wage sufficient to keep them from harm."

NEW EDITOR OF THE FORUM.

B. Russell Herts Named to Succeed Dr. F. T. Cooper.

The appointment of B. Russell Herts, editor of Moods, to be editor of the Forum Magazine, was announced yesterday. The Forum was started in 1885, by Dr. Isaac L. Rice, then Professor of Economics at Columbia.

It was said yesterday that while the general policy of the magazine would remain unchanged, there would be a new policy in regard to contributors. Among those who will write for the magazine in the future are Edwin Markham, George Sylvester Viereck, James Oppenheim, Reginald Wright Kaufman, Herbert H. Everett, Percy Mackaye, William Archer, and Dr. Lewis Marks of the Berlin Laboratory for Investigation of Vivisection.

A posthumous work of George Meredith, never before published, called "Celt and Saxon," will be begun in the January issue and afterward published by Scribners in England. The latest novel of John Galworthy, author of "Strife," will be begun shortly. There will also be a reprint of an article written by Theodore Roosevelt thirteen years ago for the Forum on "Enforcement of the Law."

basement despite the reporter's entreaties that he remain. Mr. Heaslip told the visitor that he could not see the Baron, and the man departed, saying that he would return to-night. He thought he might have heard of the Baron in Washington five years ago, when the daughter of a wealthy family there was courted by a Baron Baldur von Caunitz, who had mines in Mexico and a home in Silesia, to which he returned rather hurriedly when detectives began to investigate him. The man said he was Charles Edward, in the Government service in this city. He had seen the Baron's picture while at Far Rockaway yesterday, and hurried to this city to verify a resemblance he thought he saw in it to the Washington Baron.

Baron von Koenitz, the bridegroom, talked frankly about his life to show how different had been his career here from the Newark so-called von Koenitz. He is, he says, a scion of an old and noble house, son of the late Baron Paul von Koenitz of Koenitz, Thuringia, and owner of a 1,300-year-old castle here, recently repurchased through money acquired from valuable mining properties in Mexico.

He came to this country about ten years ago from South Africa, after fighting for the Boers there, and being wounded in the leg, causing him to limp. Thereafter he went to Mexico, acquiring mining claims in Sonora. He did not apparently know the value of these claims till recently, for as late as five months ago he was employed as an agent for a local whisky firm.

"Sometimes," admitted the Baron, "I worked for newspapers, too, in a literary capacity. I have been secretary and clerk, too, to various people whose names I do not now recall."

He said he had spent some time at the home in Westfield, N. J., of Mr. Heaslip, his friend, who is employed on a local newspaper, and the two had frequently exchanged loans.

"Then, about a year ago," said the Baron, "I began to realize on my mining claims, and sold about $100,000 of them. I bought back my ancestral castle at Koenitz from my uncle, Baron Alexander von Koenitz. See, here is a postal I sent to Miss Ewen to prove that I was really the proprietor."

And he displayed a postcard from Koenitz, showing the castle and bearing the words, "Thousand regards from Koenitz castle in Koenitz." Beneath were signed his name, "Baron Boto von Koenitz," and in fainter ink the name of "Alexander Baron von Koenitz."

Over the "Baron" of the prison record in Newark he shrugged his shoulders.

"Absurd," he said; "of course I have nothing to do with that. I was never in Newark."

Mr. Heaslip, who was always with the Baron, said that the Newark stories, so far as they reflected on his friend, were inspired by blackmailers, who were attracted by the reports of his suddenly discovered, though long-standing, wealth, and they would all be proceeded against for libel.

It was Mr. Heaslip who told the story of the Baron's courtship of Miss Ewen and their marriage.

Miss Ewen, said Mr. Heaslip, lived in seclusion for many years with her sisters, Misses Caroline and Eliza, at their home in Eighty-sixth Street after the death of their father. Miss Ewen's health is delicate, and she remained mostly at home. She was introduced to the Baron by Oliver P. Bainbridge, a lecturer and traveler, who lectured under the auspices of the Travelers' Club, of which the Baron was President.

Mr. Heaslip, for the Baron, intimated that Mr. Bainbridge suggested to Miss Ewen investments for her money of which the Baron did not approve.

Mr. Bainbridge, who lives at 481 West Twenty-second Street, is frankly skeptical of the Baron's title and purposes. He says he became so when the Marquise de la Rochebriant, another member of the Travelers' Club, told him she thought she had once seen the Baron working in a Newark restaurant. Mr. Bainbridge says, also, that he has a contract signed by the Baron promising him a commission if he (Bainbridge) could obtain for him a rich wife and a dower.

The Baron, on his side, insisted last night that the contract was not of his making, but that Bainbridge had filled it in on signed blank letter paper which the Baron had left with him for official correspondence of the Travelers' Club. According to Mr. Bainbridge, however, the Baron later wrote him a letter asking that the contract be destroyed if the dower were not forthcoming in a specified time.

"My courtship of Miss Ewen was altogether disinterested," said the Baron last night. "It was simply a case of an honest attachment on my part, and Miss Ewen, I suppose, fell in love because she thought me a chivalrous and courteous young man.

"We chose to get married quietly in Jersey City on Sunday afternoon, simply to avoid the publicity that a marriage license would have given us in this city. We had planned to go abroad for a Mediterranean cruise to-morrow morning on the Koenig Albert, but all that is now canceled. We shall stay here a few days and thereafter go abroad to live three months in the year at my castle in Koenitz, three months here, and three months in traveling."

The Archbishop was the first speaker. He said that he would have to take a position somewhat different from that of the primate, and that if he voted he would vote against Lord Lansdowne's amendment. He had not heard arguments sufficiently persuasive to prove to his satisfaction that the budget was bad enough to justify the unprecedented course proposed by Lord Lansdowne. The peers would be judged, he thought, not by their intentions, but by their performance, and no matter what they said, it would be understood that in refusing supplies for the year they had rejected the budget.

The constitutional question, the Archbishop declared, was one which would profoundly stir the people of the country, and many persons would prefer the passing of a bad budget to tampering with the fundamental principle of the Constitution. The question was whether the Lords were competent, apart from the prerogative of the Crown, to dissolve Parliament or to compel the House of Commons to pass a budget not its own, but one acceptable to the Lords. The effect of the amendment proposed would be to endanger the existence of the second Chamber, never more necessary than now.

Revolution in Budget Says Curzon.

Lord Curzon, in suporting Lord Lansdowne's amendment, objected to the assertion that the Budget bill was an instrument of social reform. Neither side of the House, he said, had a monopoly of the desire to ameliorate social evils. There were two pressing questions. The first was whether the nation was safe, and the other whether the people were sound. But neither question could be settled by taxation.

The speaker said he could not give place either to the Socialism of the bill or the revolution involved in an assault on the House of Lords. The Lords had no right to surrender their position. If they did so nothing would stand between the people and the House of Commons. He strongly deprecated the suggestion that England would accept a single chamber system like that of Bulgaria and Greece. He agreed that the country was on the eve of a momentous struggle which might lead to the reform of the House of Lords, but they would not shrink from a contest which would give the nation a second chamber with strength denied themselves. He hoped that his own party might be the one to achieve this object.

Lord Courtney, in speaking against Lord Lansdowne's motion, reminded the peers that by violating the established usage they were creating a precedent which might be carried far. For example, they held their seats in the House of Lords by virtue of writs of summons.

"If under the Ministers' advice these writs were withheld," he said, "no court exists which could enforce them, and the peers would have no right of entry into the House. They might meet in Trafalgar Square, but could get no legal redress."

Declares Capital Is Leaving.

Earl Cawdor, ex-First Lord of the Admiralty, who wound up the debate for the Opposition, maintained that there had been an attempt to evade the Lords' ancient right to reject each tax by placing all taxes on one bill. It was idle to pretend that such a change of procedure by the House of Commons could affect one iota the responsibilities and duties of the second chamber. He quoted Premier Asquith as stating, on assuming the Premiership, that the function of the House of Lords was to check slovenly and precipitate legislation, and this, he thought, fairly represented the action the Lords proposed to take.

Referring to the tacking on of license proposals and land valuations to the budget, he said that, as both of these had previously been rejected by the House of Lords, it would destroy all the power of the Upper House if the Lords were unable to veto the finance bill in which there were now included. He asserted that the budget had already drawn capital from the country to an alarming extent, had stunned the building trade and increased unemployment.

He remarked that the Lords had been told that the rejection of the bill would cause financial chaos, but Lord Lansdowne's offer of assistance in order to avoid inconvenience had not been cordially received by the Government. Therefore, if chaos came, the responsibility would rest upon the Ministry. The people, he concluded, could get rid of the decision of the second chamber by an election, but they could get rid of an autocratic single chamber only by revolution.

The Earl of Crewe, Secretary of State for the Colonies, closed the debate in a speech frequently interrupted by ministerial cheers. The sum total of the long debate, he declared, was that the Opposition considered the Government's method of raising money was illusory, and that that justified revolution.

Turning to the charge that since the introduction of the budget, capital was leaving the country, and there had been a serious fall in securities, he admitted that capital was timid, and that some people had been induced to sell British securities and invest abroad. But that was due to the speeches of the Lords, who wished to bring about what they professed to deplore. The industrial concerns of Great Britain had not found difficulty in securing and keeping all the money necessary for their requirements.

Nobody questioned the power of the Lords to reject the bill, he continued, but it would be a violation of established usage. The effect would be that in framing financial proposals in the future the Government would have to consider whether they would receive the concurrence of the House of Lords; it would, in fact, involve something like a burlesque of representative government. In tearing up ancient charters and removing landmarks the Lords were making a most tragic blunder. For many years the two Houses had jogged along as acquaintances but after to-night the two Houses would barely be on speaking terms. If the Lords thought that any of the Ministerialists welcomed the crisis they were entirely mistaken.

In conclusion the Earl of Crewe said:

"It may be that when the new Parliament meets we will be sitting where you sit now; it may be that we will still be sitting here. In either case we must, after the action you are taking to-night, set ourselves to obtain guarantees—not the old guarantees sanctioned by the course of time and enforced by accommodation between the two Houses, but, if necessary, and if there is no other way, guarantees fenced about and guarded by the force of statutes, which will prevent the indiscriminate destruction of our legislation, of which your work to-night is the climax and the crown."

The House cleared for division at 11:30 o'clock. The scene was impressive, but in no sense exciting, except that the House was packed to its utmost capacity. A great array of strange faces was seen on the benches owing to the presence of numbers of Peers, who only appear in the House in most exceptional cases. None would have supposed that the event proceeding might involve far-reaching changes in the British Constitution.

There certainly was unusual animation in the galleries, which were crowded with Peeresses, members of the House of Commons, Ambassadors, and others, but in the House itself complete calm prevailed.

The vote was on Lord Lansdowne's amendment that the house was not justified in giving its consent to the bill until it had been submitted to the judgment of the country. Nearly fifteen minutes were occupied in clearing the house, the tellers for division being Earl Waldegrave, Viscount Churchill, Baron Penman, and Lord Colebrooke.

Party Lines Slightly Broken.

When the vote was announced, just before midnight, as 350 to 75 in favor of the amendment, a few mixed cheers were heard. Owing to the crowded state of the Chamber the tellers had some difficulty in forcing their way through to Lord Loreburn, Lord High Chancellor.

The following abstained from voting: The Duke of Connaught, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Viscount St. Aldwyn, Earl de-la-Warr, the Earl of Lytton, the Marquis Dufferin, and several other peers and Bishops. The Archbishop of York and the Bishops of Birmingham, Chester, and St. Asaph voted against the resolutions. The Bishop of Lincoln voted for the resolution, while Lord James of Hereford and the Bishop of Hereford paired against the resolution. Otherwise the division was on strict party lines.

It is worthy of note that Lord St. Aldwyn, who as Michael Hicks-Beach was one of the ablest Chancellors of the Exchequer on the Conservative side, and who had ostentatiously absented himself from debates on Lord Lansdowne's amendment, did not appear for the division. His abstention, as announced in the morning, was due to disapproval of Lord Lansdowne's course. Among those Peers who came down especially to vote was the Earl of Wemyss and March, who is in his ninety-second year.

After the vote had been announced the Earl of Crewe moved an adjournment, and the House rose.

An eager and expectant crowd were awaiting the result in the central hall, and when the figures of the vote became known there was a slight attempt at counter demonstrations. The officials, however, speedily cleared the hall, and in a few minutes the lobbies and precincts were empty.

When division was taken there was practically no excitement in the streets, although earlier in the evening considerable crowds gathered in the vicinity of the house and attempted a pro-budget demonstration. A large force of police was in readiness, and as soon as the crowds showed a tendency to become unmanageable dispersed the demonstrators, being assisted in this task by a heavy rainfall.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, has called a meeting of the Cabinet for 10 o'clock to-morrow morning to complete formalities following the action of the House of Lords, and it is practically certain that Parliament will be prorogued on Friday until the middle of January. The Premier will go to Sandringham to see the King after the council to-day.

The Cabinet met in Downing Street at noon, for the purpose of discussing the form of the King's speech proroguing Parliament. All of the members, with the exception of Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, were present. A crowd filled the street and mildly cheered the Ministers as they entered the building. The Cabinet remained in session until 2 o'clock. Meanwhile the crowd waited outside, cheering the Ministers and at the same time hoping for a suffragette outbreak.

It is stated with an air of authority that the council decided upon measures insuring the uninterrupted collection of taxes on tea, spirits, and tobacco until the new Parliament is able to pass a retroactive act regularizing the situation.

While the Lords were deciding the fate of his budget, and possibly his own future career, David Lloyd-George spent the evening quietly dining with friends at a restaurant in the Strand.

PRESS CAMPAIGN BEGINS.

Radical Paper Says the Lords Have Committed Suicide.

LONDON, Wednesday, Dec. 1.—The editorials in the morning papers on the rejection of the budget by the House of Lords are all written from a party standpoint, and addressed entirely to the electors in the approaching campaign.

As an indication of the view of the situation held by radical politicians and the radical newspapers, the caption descriptive of the final scenes as printed by one of the newspapers in the largest type reads: "The suicide of the House of Lords."

BUDGET TAXES THE RICH.

Heavy Burdens on Liquor Trade Also —Long Fight Over It.

When David Lloyd-George, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, on April 29 presented in the House of Commons the Liberal Government's budget he began a struggle which will be historic. Accumulated wealth and "the trade," as the liquor business is popularly called, were made to bear the burden of the £15,762,000 ($78,810,000) deficit of the fiscal year incurred by the old-age pensions and the naval race with Germany.

In a memorandum issued prior to the introduction of the budget, the Chancellor estimated the revenue for the fiscal year of 1909-10 as $741,950,000, and the expenditures as $820,760,000. The Chancellor pointed out that nearly all branches of trade and industry suffered serious depression, and that the customs showed a long diminution in value to the amount of nearly $570,000,000, as compared with 1907.

Increased income taxes, death estate and legacy duties, a tax of 20 per cent. on future increase in the value of lands due to the community, graduated taxes on motors, to be devoted to keeping up the roads, and stamp taxes on sales of property were the principal levies on wealth.

"The maddest budget ever introduced," Sir Frederick George Banbury termed it in a speech in the House of Commons, and Austen Chamberlain denounced it for imposing so large a proportion of the nation's burden on a few people. John Redmond, leader of the Irish Party, condemned it for its increased impositions on whisky and tobacco. The debate on the bill in the House of Commons began on May 3, but it was not until Nov. 4 that it passed the third reading, the vote being 379 to 149.

The vote showed a Government majority much larger than had been expected, and the Liberal papers pointed out that the budget had left the House of Commons backed by a solid majority, representing the whole strength of the party, including the Labor members.

When the second reading of the Budget bill was moved in the House of Lords on Nov. 22, Lord Lansdowne, leader of the Opposition, offered an amendment that it be rejected because "this House is not justified in giving its consent to this bill until it has been submitted to the judgment of the country."

Throughout the debate in the last week the oratory has been brilliant, particularly notable being the speeches of Lord Rosebery, the former Liberal Prime Minister, who warned the Lords of the grave risks they were running if they adopted the motion; Lord Balfour of Burleigh, Lord Cromer, Lord Lansdowne, and Lord Morley of Blackburn.

Lord Rosebery, during the course of his address, said: "This is the greatest political moment in the lifetime of any man born since 1832." In that year the last great struggle between the Commons and the Lords arose over the Reform bill. This resulted in new elections, the formation of a new Cabinet, and the continuation of the struggle, the Ministers again leaving office. On the reorganization of the Cabinet, under the menace of additions to their numbers, the Peers abstained from further opposition, and the Great Charter of 1832 received the royal assent.

LORDS DOOMED—T. P. O'CONNOR.

Declares They Will Be Surprised by Uprising of the Masses.

Commenting on the action taken by the British House of Lords in adopting Lord Lansdowne's amendment to the Finance bill, T. P. O'Connor, M. P., one of the Irish Nationalist leaders in the House of Commons, now in this country in the interests of Irish Home Rule, said last night that the British Peers had announced their own doom.

"I am greatly pleased, and so is every one who is an enemy of the House of Lords," said Mr. O'Connor. "Every Liberal, and still more every Irish Nationalist, has known for several generations that it was impossible to have anything like steady Liberal progress so long as the House of Lords retained its power of defeat from the present power of the House of Lords [illegible] democratic legislation. Ireland has been [illegible] almost exclusively [illegible] the curse and the enemy of Ireland.

"As to the effect in England, I believe the rejection of the budget will lead to an uprising of the masses in England, of which the Lords have failed to realize the danger. They will realize it before [illegible] on the eve of the fiercest fight that has been seen in British politics for a century, that they [illegible] against the Lords; that they have provided for [illegible] of mischief will be so broken as practically to be non-existent.

"This means the final emancipation of the English masses from the Commons, feudalism, and of Ireland from government of an alien Parliament."

There is But One PIANOLA

Made Only by The Aeolian Company

SUCCESS sometimes carries penalties with it. The success of the PIANOLA has led to almost innumerable imitations. If these imitations were sold strictly on their own reputation and merits, there could be no cause for complaint.

Unfortunately there are some people who fail to understand that "PIANOLA" is not a name for Piano-players in general, but is the name of the one specific instrument made by the Aeolian Company.

It is equally unfortunate that all stores are not so careful as they might be in correcting this misapprehension.

To buy an instrument which you suppose to be the world-famous PIANOLA, and find out when too late that it is only a colorable imitation, is distinctly disappointing.

The PIANOLA'S success is founded upon its superior artistic effects, as well as its superior construction.

If all that you want is an instrument that "will play the piano," then there are many devices that will answer the purpose.

But if you want the one instrument that the musical world recognizes as thoroughly artistic, and that most closely approaches the human quality, then you must have the PIANOLA, not an imitation.

PIANOLA efficiency, both from a musical and constructional viewpoint does not exist apart from the PIANOLA itself.

Aeolian Hall is the only place in Manhattan where the PIANOLA and PIANOLA Piano can be obtained.

NOTE:—Only in the PIANOLA and PIANOLA Piano are to be found the Metrostyle and Themodist. Also made to play 65 note or 88 note (Full Scale) rolls.

PIANOLAS costs $250 to $450. PIANOLA Pianos cost $550 to $1,150

PIANO DANCED OFF AT OCEAN CONCERT

WAVES KNOCKED IT LOOSE

Giant Roller Swept the Ship Once and Two Passengers Were Injured.

There was a concert aboard the storm-tossed North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie last Monday night. According to many of the passengers who landed from the liner yesterday morning, the concert might have come to an inglorious finish had it not been for the athletic prowess of his Excellency, Baron Rosen, Russian Ambassador to the United States, and the Hon. H. L. F. von Lagercrantz, the Swedish Minister to Washington.

As every saloon passenger who has ever crossed in her knows, the Kronprinzessin Cecilie has in her saloon one of the finest pianos on the seas, and this instrument always plays an important part in the concerts that are the feature of the last night at sea of each voyage. At the concert on Monday night Baron Rosen was the Chairman of the concert and Mr. von Lagercrantz one of the patrons.

Also on board the liner was Frederic Hoffmann of Albany, the young American baritone, who has just obtained an engagement to sing at the Paris Opera and comes home for a brief rest before entering upon his operatic career. At the concert Mr. Hoffmann sang several folksongs, and it was while he was rendering one of these that the event happened which came near breaking up the concert.

The winds were howling and the seas running high as the liner ploughed her way toward Sandy Hook. The weather, however, is never so bad that a concert is postponed because of it, and Monday night was no exception.

To prevent just what did happen the Kronprinzessin's piano is made fast to the floor, but while Mr. Hoffmann was singing the big ship gave a sudden lurch, and before the audience knew it the instrument had broken away from its mooring and gone adrift. Baron Rosen was to the starboard and Mr. Von Lagercrantz to the port of the instrument at the time, the passengers say.

As the story goes, the instrument started an unexpected trip to port and was in danger of crashing into the wall when the diplomats went to the rescue. Baron Rosen got a firm hold on the starboard corner of the piano and Mr. Von Lagercrantz got just as sure a hold on the other side. The instrument was thus saved.

It required about five minutes to get the piano back in position, and then the concert proceeded until the programme was finished.

Baron Rosen has been abroad since May. He said he went for a rest and had it. He did not worry over public affairs during his vacation. He was accompanied by the Baroness and their daughter, and left for Washington in the afternoon. The Swedish Minister has been away four months. His wife also came with him. Their seven children remained in Sweden.

On the second day out from Bremen it was said that the Kronprinzessin ran into a heavy gale, during which a big wave boarded the liner, slightly injuring two of the passengers. S. Cohen was struck in the head by a flying chair and a woman passenger was thrown to the deck and bruised.

Mrs. Robert S. McCormick, wife of the ex-Ambassador to Russia, was one of the passengers, as were also Edward Van Volkenburgh, whose brother married Mrs. Chapman a few days ago; Dr. and Mrs. George W. Jacoby, Mr. and Mrs. J. Townsend Burden, Mrs. G. A. Armour, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chauncey Hay.

RELIED ON STENOGRAPHERS.

Drug Firm Failed When They Stopped Buying Toilet Articles.

The difference between the habits of the stenographer and the saleswoman has made all the difference between prosperity and ruin to the Scherick Drug Company, so it was alleged yesterday in the company's application in bankruptcy.

The firm does business at Broadway and Broome Street, and once upon a time the neighborhood was full of offices. From these, according to the statement of William C. Rosenberg, at luncheon time, and when the day's work was done issued crowds of typewriter girls, who spent much of their salaries in toilet articles. But lately stores have driven out the offices, and the girls behind the counter have less money for their personal adornment or prefer to spend it elsewhere. Consequently, trade has fallen off till the Scherick Drug Company cannot pay its rent, has assigned its lease to a creditor and given another a chattel mortgage on the fixtures.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday, with Mary Scherick named as a creditor for $3,000, Carola N. Scherick for $800, and Robert Cohn for $100, for money loaned to the company. It was alleged that the concern was insolvent and had admitted in writing on Nov. 29 its inability to pay its debts. Judge Holt yesterday appointed H. Linsley Johnson receiver, and authorized him to continue the business for thirty days. The liabilities are set at $25,000 and the assets are unknown.

POLICE LIEUTENANTS' PAY

Raised from $2,000 to $2,250, but the Aldermen Fail to Vote Cash for It.

The Aldermen approved yesterday the increase in the salary of Police Lieutenants from $2,000 to $2,250, authorized by the Board of Estimate two weeks ago but failed to appropriate any money with which to carry out the resolution. The police budget for the coming year has already been made up on the basis of the old salary and if the Aldermen do not vote the necessary money, some $120,000, the Lieutenants will not get their raise during the present fiscal year.

Profs. Sait and Beard of Columbia visited the Chamber with fifty students from their classes in political science in tow. Several of the young men were introduced to President McGowan and sat through the greater part of the session in the gallery.

On the plea of Alderman Levine, one of the leading east side members of the board, who declared that there have been several instances in his district of extortion among the poor by men wearing imitation City Marshal badges, it was voted to establish a regulation badge for the Marshals. In the past these officials have provided their own insignia and the difference in design has easily permitted imitation.

EMPLOYES TO TURN ON THE SUGAR TRUST

Counsel for Men Now on Trial Declare They Won't Shield "Men Higher Up."

REVELATIONS ARE PROMISED

Lawyers for Bendernagel and Spitzer Declare Clients Acted Under Instructions of Higher Officials in Frauds.

At the close of the first day's trial of six former employes of the American Sugar Refining Company for conspiracy to defraud the Government in weighing sugar on the Williamsburg piers of the Sugar Trust it came out yesterday in the United States Circuit Court that some at least of these defendants do not propose to take to themselves the blame for acts which they committed at the command of persons higher in authority.

The individual defendants are Bendernagel, Oliver Spitzer, who was Superintendent at the piers, and Thomas Kehoe, Patrick J. Hennessy, John R. Coyle, and Edward A. Boyle, men who checked up the weights of sugar imported as recorded by the Government weighers on the piers. A fifth checker, named Voelker, was indicted with the rest, but escaped trial at the present time because he was confined by illness in a hospital.

The six defendants who are now on trial heard testimony yesterday which involved various details of the scheme, by which, according to the Government, they procured the falsification of weights of sugar weighed on the Williamsburg piers. Andrew J. Malon, who had been a clerk under Bendernagel as cashier of the Williamsburg plant, testified that Malon had seen Bendernagel pay money to men in the uniform of United States Customs Inspectors.

Give Names of Inspectors.

The testimony involving the other men was not so direct, save that one Government witness identified the names of Kehoe, Voelker, and Coyle on the pages of books in which the weights of sugar imported on the steamship Eva and figuring in the indictments upon which the trial is now held were entered.

Then at the close of the day, when the witness Malon went under cross-examination, Mr. Beattie asked:

"Who was there above Bendernagel, where did he get the money that he paid out?"

"Where in New York?" asked Bendernagel's counsel.

"One Hundred and Seventeen Wall Street," said the witness.

"Is that the office of the Sugar Trust?" asked the attorney. The witness said it was.

"Weren't there cashiers in all the refineries?"

"I suppose so," said the witness.

"And weren't they all under the Treasurer?" The witness said he couldn't say as to that.

As soon as the session was over reporters gathered around Mr. Beattie to ask whether his client was going to testify regarding the men higher up in the sugar case.

"Any idea that we are going to shield the Sugar Trust," said Mr. Beattie, "is wholly mistaken. Bendernagel was never Superintendent of the Williamsburg Refinery. He was only the cashier and he got a small salary instead of the $20,000 a year as the newspapers have said. He is a man of the best reputation, and I have a letter from Justice Maddox and Justice Carr of the Supreme Court who will be here to testify for him. Bendernagel took orders from the man above him and followed those orders, and he does not propose to be made a scapegoat of."

Mr. Beattie was asked who these men were, and he said:

"Well one of them was the Superintendent of the plant."

This Superintendent was Ernest Gerbrock, who was indicted in Brooklyn with the other employes of the Sugar Trust, but was subsequently released. His name figured yesterday in the testimony of Mallon, who was in the employ of the sugar company from 1887 to 1907. He was under Bendernagel in the Cashier's office of the Havemeyer & Elder Refinery. Mallon was examined by Winnifred T. Dennison, one of the Government's special counsel, and after he had explained his duties in general his testimony said:

Q.—By whom were changes and wages ordered as to the men employed on the docks? A.—By Mr. Bendernagel and Mr. Gerbrock.

Q.—Did you ever hear Spitzer talk with Bendernagel in regard to the rate of pay of Spitzer's employes? A.—Not any particular conversation.

Q.—Do you recall the fact that such conversations were held? A.—Yes, at different times from 1902 to 1907.

Q.—What was the substance of these conversations? A.—When Spitzer would want an increase for one of his men he would come up and see Bendernagel and the change would be made.

After showing the witness a large book which contained the payroll of the hands employed on the piers at Williamsburg in 1907, Mr. Dennison had him describe how he made up the pay envelopes weekly and paid the first six men on the list on a basis of $3 a day apiece and the balance of the men $2.25 a day.

Q.—Who was paid the higher rate? A.—Kehoe, Boyle, Coyle, Hennessey, Voelker, and Halleran.

Q.—What was the method of making the payments to the men employed on the piers as tallymen checking up the weight of sugar? A.—Their wages would be taken down, and paid to them by a clerk. The rest of the force in the refinery were paid off by the paymasters at the window.

Q.—What did you do in regard to marking the envelopes of the tallymen? A.—Up to June, 1907, each man's number and the amount of his wages were on the outside of his envelope.

Q.—Were there any exceptions? A.—Yes. Some had different amounts marked on the outside of the envelope. They were these six men.

Q.—What amount was on the face of their envelopes? A.—Twelve dollars and inside there was $15 at first, and later it went up to $18, but when it was advanced to $18 we stopped marking the amounts on the outside.

Q.—Were they the only men among the 2,000 employed at the refinery who got different pay from what was marked on the envelope? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you ever see Bendernagel pay money to men wearing the uniform of United States Customs Inspector? (Objection by counsel for defense, and question limited to years 1905, 1906, and 1907.)

By Mr. Lexow—The uniform might be that of a Government bootblack, whom he was paying 10 cents to for his shine.

The witness allowed to answer. A.—Yes.

Q.—Was it in silver? A.—No, in bills.

Paid Through Extra Time.

The witness said that there was also an arrangement by which the six men whom he had named as the ones who received the extra compensation were allowed one hour a day additional time which was charged to them as time in which they had not reported the work but had made up on the following day. He denied knowledge of anything that was done on the pier.

After the jury had been completed yesterday morning Mr. Dennison, representing the Government as assistant to Henry L. Stimson, made the opening address for the Government.

"We expect to prove beyond a doubt," said he, "that since the very day on which a duty upon sugar went into effect the Havemeyer & Elder Refinery, which later came in to the American Sugar Refining Company, has been defrauding the Government of a part of the duty payable under the law. We have nothing to do in this trial with the testing of sugar. That is done by the Appraiser's department. The weight of the sugar is ascertained by the weighers under the direction of the Surveyor of Customs, and is entered in a book by the United States weigher in charge at the pier where the sugar is imported.

"Spitzer had under him the checkers for the sugar company who checked the weights as taken by the Government weighers and by the city weighers.

"The various tallies," Mr. Dennison continued, "were not interchangeable. New men were generally assigned to tally the merchant weighers, and hand their reports to Mr. Spitzer. The other men were six old employes known as 'the rolly-polly gang,' and this old gang was put inside the scalehouse in the docker portion at the left hand corner of the scale.

How Frauds Were Perpetrated.

"It was their duty to see that the United States weighers did not get the proper weight, so that the proper weight could not be returned to the Custom House. I will not undertake at this time to describe the exact method by which this was done. It will suffice to say that a checker for the company stood alongside an upright wooden stantion through which was bored a hole and that in this hole was inserted a wire spring which reached a knuckle of the scale. The checkers by working their spring were able in some measure to offset the weight of the sugar upon the scale platform and thus make the amount so weighed register less than it properly should.

"Spitzer used to assign the men who did this work. In recent years the defendants in this case, who were formerly checkers, along with another man named Halligan, were the ones that he named. Spitzer received the two reports and reported to Mr. Bendernagel the weights checked up in the merchant's weighers' books and those checked up in the books of the Government weighers. The special office of Mr. Bendernagel was to provide the sinews of war and to see that the men who checked up the Government weighers' work got what was coming to them."

Mr. Dennison said that by these frauds the average weight of sugar per truckload was reduced about thirteen pounds.

The first two or three witnesses called by the Government testified merely as to the methods employed in the importation of sugar so far as the Government regulations were concerned. Then Mr. Dennison called William Spahr, a Government sampler, who was in the employ of the sugar refining company from 1880 to 1901, and subsequently had been in the employ of the Customs Service sampling sugar on various piers. Spahr said he knew Spitzer and was familiar with the general conditions on the Williamsburg piers.

Mr. Dennison produced two photographs, one a general view of the piers, with the scalehouse, and the other the interior of this scalehouse, which the witness identified as being accurate reproductions of the arrangement of the different apparatus. These were presented to the jury against the vigorous objection of the defendants' counsel.

RUNAWAY CRASHES INTO CAR.

Policeman Dragged and Hurt in Bringing the Horse to a Stop.

Policeman Best of the West 125th Street Station, while boarding a crosstown car in 125th Street at Morningside Avenue shortly before 6 o'clock last night, on his way home, saw a horse drawing a butcher's wagon running up the avenue directly toward the car. Several women were on the car platform or step, one by one placing their nickels in the fare box, and, seeing that the horse would probably run into the car, Best sprang to the platform and pushed the women inside, shouting to them not to wait to pay their fare, but get in to a place of safety.

Hardly had the last woman stepped inside the door than the horse crashed into the rear platform of the car. One of the shafts of the wagon struck the platform and snapped off short. The horse hesitated for a moment, and then made as though to jump on the car platform. Best sprang over and caught the animal by the bridle.

The horse started off again, dragging Best with it. It ran on the sidewalk between 125th and 126th Streets, and an instant later into a fire hydrant, crushing Best's right hip against it. Still the policeman clung to the bridle, and across 126th Street managed to steer the horse into a fence.

Bicycle Policeman McGowan had seen the horse cross St. Nicholas Avenue at 115th Street, through which he had run from Madison Avenue, where his driver had left him, to deliver a parcel, and he had been chasing him on his bicycle. Policemen McDonald and Higgins also ran up at the same moment, and the four finally stopped the horse. Best was taken to the J. Hood Wright Hospital, and then went home.

SEAT ON 'CHANGE $94,000.

Stock Exchange memberships, which suffered a heavy decline in price after the panic and which up to a few months ago have been slow in recovering the ground then lost, are now within $1,000 of the high price established in December, 1906, when several seats changed hands at the height of the bull market at $95,000.

The price jumped from around $80,000, which prevailed during the early part of by the Board of Estimate two weeks ago. On Monday $92,500 was paid for a seat, and yesterday the reported price at which one changed hands was $94,000. After the panic in 1908 memberships in the Exchange dropped to $52,000, the lowest level since 1903. At the height of the bull market of 1906, when seats were sold at $95,000, the market was practically bare of memberships for sale, and it was said that as high as $100,000 was offered with no takers.

MAE WOOD TO TRIAL SOON.

Prosecution Must Go on Though Platt Is Too Ill to Testify.

The case of the People against Mae C. Wood, which has bobbed in and out of Judge Swann's calendar during the last month, was definitely fixed yesterday for trial on Dec. 15. She is the woman who sued ex-Senator Platt for divorce, and indictments for perjury and forgery stand against her as the result of the attempt.

After many delays and telegrams to Colorado, where Miss Wood was stranded on a ranch, she came East, and, according to her lawyer, Charles C. Hubbell, announced herself as ready for trial. This compliance was met by a letter to Mr. Hubbell from the firm of Boardman & Platt which declared that Mr. Platt was so ill that he will be unable to appear as a witness this year.

Judge Swann said that the prosecution had had plenty of time to prepare the case, and it is thought that when it comes up two weeks from now it will be dis-

FIRE RUINS MANSION ON THE GEDNEY FARM

NEIGHBORS FIGHT BLAZE

As House Was Burning Mr. Willets Learned That He Had Been Awarded $277,999 in a Suit.

A spectacular daylight fire totally destroyed the large manor house on Gedney Farm, White Plains, the country place of Howard Willets, yesterday morning. Fanned by a stiff northwest gale, the flames consumed the building in less than an hour, although the entire Fire Department of White Plains and many of Mr. Willets's wealthy neighbors fought hard to save it. With the house went costly furniture, paintings, antiques, bric-à-brac, and a hundred-thousand-dollar library, filled with many rare volumes and original editions almost priceless.

Mr. Willets and his family have not occupied the house for some time. The family of the caretaker, Hiram C. Benedict, had difficulty in escaping, so fast did the frame building burn. While his house was on fire, Mr. Willets received word that a jury in a civil suit which he had brought against H. W. Poor & Co., and which was being tried in White Plains, had returned a verdict for $277,999 in his favor.

The estate, known as Gedney Farm, was purchased by Mr. Willets several years ago for about $3,000,000. The mansion, containing 100 rooms and surrounded by a broad veranda, stood on a hill, the highest pint in Westchester County, on the Mamaroneck Road, about two miles outside of the village. It occupied a square mile of land, and was said to be one of the finest estates in the country. It had long been the show place of the neighborhood, where many wealthy New Yorkers had their Summer homes. The house itself was of Colonial architecture and four stories high.

Started on the Third Floor.

The fire was discovered at 8 o'clock yesterday morning in a small room on the third floor, over the apartments usually occupied by Mr. Willets and facing Long Island Sound. In the house at the time were H. C. Benedict, the caretaker; his wife and two children, Morrison, and Donald, aged 9 and 5; Mary Morris, a maid; Mary Rush, a laundress, and a helper. Mrs. Benedict was in the kitchen when she smelled smoke. Rushing into the hallway, she discovered that flames were already eating from the third to the second floor. Her husband was in the cellar when he heard her screams. He seized a hand hose, and, running to the second floor, turned on a thin stream. The water pressure was too weak to be of any use.

Mrs. Benedict hastened to the third floor, where Mary Morris was asleep, and aroused her with difficulty, as she was already nearly overcome by smoke. Mrs Benedict then carried her two children from the burning building. Then she returned to save some of her personal belongings. She had barely left her room when the ceiling fell in.

Near-by neighbors of Mr. Willets are Whitelaw Reid, Oliver Harriman, George Fordyce Leith, Paul G. Thebaud, and Daniel W. Maloney, Secretary of the Westchester Horse Show Association. Mr. Maloney lives directly across the street from Gedney Farm. He got early to the scene and led a bucket brigade made up of neighbors and farmhands. Water was scarce, as the pump in the yard was broken, and the house tank was only partially filled, so the fire fighters directed their attention principally to saving valuables.

Three pianos, antique hall clocks, and some other furniture were safely removed. While engaged in this work Mr. Maloney had a narrow escape with his life. Clad in a fur overcoat he made a dash into the silver closet in an endeavor to save some of Mr. Willets's trophies which he had won at the Madison Square Garden and other horse shows with Heatherbloom, his champion jumper. Before he could get out his coat caught fire. He got it off, burning his hands and dropping the famous silver cup lined with gold which Mr. Willets prized most of all his horse show trophies.

Futile Run of the Firemen.

Miss Florence Calkins, a trained nurse, who was stopping at the Maloney house, saw the fire as the flames burst through the roof and telephoned to the village Police Department. Union Hook and Ladder Company, the Fire Patrol Company, and Independent and Hope Engine Companies, which comprise all of the White Plains Fire Department, made their best time to the scene. When they got there, however, the house was a column of flame. A fifty-mile northwest gale made it impossible to save the building, and the firemen then turned their attention to the many outbuildings, some of which were close to the house. Within an hour after the fire started all that was left standing of the mansion were three tall chimneys.

About a year ago Mr. Willets closed his country place and moved to Great Barrington, Mass., where he has another estate. Much of his time was also spent in this city. When he left Gedney Farm Mr. Willets sold his string of thoroughbreds, his valuable cattle, and the rest of his stock, so the stables and barns were empty. Much of the family plate had also been removed, but the valuable library had not been disturbed. This was totally destroyed, and it made up a large portion of the loss. In the collection was an original set of George Cruikshank's drawings, many of them the original illustrations to an original edition of Thackeray's works, which Mr. Willets also possessed. The drawings alone were insured for $25,000, and the original Thackeray edition for $21,000. Other books, sketches, and engravings were insured for $4,000, making $50,000 in all. Other valuable works which were destroyed were original editions of Robert Louis Stevenson and Charles Lever.

Besides the insurance on his books Mr. Willets held $55,000 on his house and $40,000 on his furniture. Only two weeks ago he sent all of his most valuable rugs, silver, and paintings to a storage warehouse in this city. Among these paintings was a canvas by Rosa Bonheur. Many smaller paintings and many art works were lost, however.

Saw His House Burning.

Mr. Willets arrived in White Plains from New York as his house was burning. He was on his way to attend the Supreme Court, where he had a suit before Supreme Court Justice Morschauser to recover $250,000 from H. W. Poor & Co., bankers, the value of railway bonds which he had purchased and which he alleged were worthless. Jumping into an automobile he hurried to Gedney Farm, where he became much affected by his loss. While he was viewing the ruins the jury returned a sealed verdict in his suit. It was opened by Judge Morschauser and found to contain a verdict for Mr. Willets in the sum of "$277,999 and an allowance of $2,000 for his counsel, William H. Rand, Jr. This amount represents the sum of $229,000 which Mr. Willets had declared he invested under false representation in 1904 and the accrued interest since that time.

On Wednesday last the suit was brought by Mr. Willets, and he alleged that conditions pertaining to the Newtown & Northwestern Railroad Company were misrepresented to him to such an extent that he purchased $229,000 worth of the bonds of the company. He said the prospectus sent out by the brokers contained many untrue statements. Mr. Willets received the news of the verdict by telephone.

The fire at Gedney Farm was seen for miles, and several hundred spectators were on the ground, most of them coming in automobiles. To the north of the estate is situated the Bloomingdale Insane Asylum, where 600 inmates are confined. The fire created some excitement there for a time.

It is believed that the fire started from a defective flue or an overheated oil stove. On Thanksgiving Day there was some trouble with the steam heating apparatus and gas and oil stoves were installed.

The $145,000 of insurance Mr. Willets carried covers about half his loss.

B. R. T. PLANS FOR BROOKLYN.

Company May Make $50,000,000 Improvements to Shut Out Rivals.

Supposedly with a view of shutting out threatened competition, the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company is said to be considering plans for the development and extension of its system, involving an expenditure of $50,000,000.

One of the plans it is considering for submission to the Public Service Commission is to equip and operate the Fourth Avenue subway in Brooklyn, the work of constructing which has been begun. Its idea is to operate this line through to the North River, by means of the Manhattan Bridge and a subway in Canal Street. It was said yesterday at the offices of the company in Brooklyn that the plans were merely tentative and that they had been discussed only informally with the members of the Public Service Commission.

Besides the equipping and operating of the Fourth Avenue subway, the company is understood to have under consideration these plans:

To third-track its Fulton Street, Lexington Avenue and Broadway elevated lines; to extend its Fifth Avenue elevated road to Fort Hamilton from Bay Ridge; to depress the tracks of its west end line from the Fourth Avenue subway, at Forty-third Street, to Eighteenth Avenue, and to elevate those tracks from Eighteenth Avenue to Coney Island; to elevate its Sea Beach line from Coney Island to the point where it joins the West End line, to elevate its Culver line its entire length to Coney Island; to extend its Brighton Beach line by a subway down Flatbush Avenue to connect with the Fourth Avenue subway, the city to construct this extension and lease it to the company.

While there has been much discussion of these plans for the improvement and extension of the Brooklyn company's system they have not, as yet, progressed beyond the talk stage. None of them has been officially submitted to the Public Service Commission.

LONGER SUBWAY PLATFORMS.

Permit Issued and Work Soon to Begin for Their Extension.

The long-promised lengthening of the platforms in the Subway will shortly become a fact. The Public Service Commission issued to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company yesterday a permit to begin the work with the $1,500,000 of city money which the Board of Estimate recently made available by authorizing the issue of bonds to that amount. The work will begin at once, it is understood, and the Interborough hopes to have it finished in time to accommodate next Winter's pressure of traffic. The increased capacity, it is estimated, will be 25 per cent.

The commission approved an application of the Interborough yesterday to construct a permanent station building at the Zoological Park station on the Bronx Subway. There is a temporary shed at that point now.

At the request of various traction lines, the commission has granted a rehearing for to-morrow on its order, recently issued, regulating the heating f cars during the Winter to a temperature between 45 and 60 degrees Fahrenheit. The rehearing will cover only the matter of posting copies of the commission's order in the cars. Teh companies do not object to the heating requirement, but don't want to have to put up notices.

HE'S GROWING A LION'S HEAD.

Cincinnati Man the Victim of One of the Rarest Diseases Known.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 30.—The head of Charles Myers, a young shoemaker, 22 years old, is gradually losing its human characteristics and assuming the shape of a lion's head. The man, who is an inmate of the City Hospital here, was exhibited last night before the medical association as the victim of one of the rarest diseases known to medical science. The disease is known as "leontiasis ossea," and only a couple of cases are on record.

During the last three years the bones of Myers's skull have gradually enlarged, his eyes retreated, and the whole configuration so changed that he now bears a far stronger resemblance to the king of beasts than to a human being.

The doctors declare that in a short time he must either become insane or die.

Kerr Estate Valued at $1,484,138.

The appraisal of the estate of Thomas B. Kerr, who died on Oct. 4, shows that his gross personality amounted to $1,462,591, and his real estate, including the property at 44 West Fifty-sixth Street, to $85,000, making a total of $1,547,591. From this is deducted as expenses and indebtedness $63,452, leaving a net total of $1,484,138. By his will Mr. Kerr left all his estate to his widow, his sons, Thomas H. and Lewis, and his grandchildren.

ARE YOU GOING DEAF?

I have discovered a method for treating deafness and head noises that I consider an important one. Under my new method there is no necessity for passing instruments through the nostrils and into the ear tubes. The passage of instruments causes pain and soreness, and if the deafness has existed any length of time, such measures seldom, if ever, do any good.

How important my method of treating deafness and head noises is can be shown in the case of Mr. T. E. Lamb. Mr. Lamb is sixty-six years of age and resides at No. 7 Rosebank Place, Rosebank, S. I. Mr. Lamb consulted me in the month of August, at which time he told me that he had been losing his hearing for six or seven years. He said that his hearing got so bad that he could not understand what people said to him; that he had noises in his ears that sounded like the roar of a railroad train at a distance, and then sometimes the sounds would change so they resembled the ringing of a bell. When he laid down at night the sounds would always become worse. He further said that for two or three years he had not been able to hear his watch or even his clock tick at all.

Mr. Lamb reported yesterday that the noises have disappeared from his head. He can again hear his watch tick at some little distance off, and his hearing is so much improved that he can understand ordinary conversation when the persons speaking are some distance from him.

The case of Mr. Lamb is cited as showing what my method will often accomplish in cases of deafness and head noises of long standing, in those who are quite advanced in years.

This is who I am and what I have done; I graduated in medicine in New York in 1879. I was the prize winner of my class. I won in competitive examination the position of Physician to Bellevue Hospital, where I served in 1879 and 1880.

I have made a specialty of diseases of the nose, throat, and ear for thirty years. I decided the best way I could tell the people who I was and what I had done was to advertise in the daily papers.

The following interview with Professor Loomis will explain what he thought of me:

(N. Y. World, Sept. 2, 1894.)

"Professor Loomis of the University of New York, the great specialist, said, in alluding to medical men who advertise: 'Dr. McCoy, for instance, is an able man, well educated, a thorough scientist and a first-class physician. He is a graduate of Bellevue Hospital. He advertises, does an immense business, and is doing much good."

If you think my training and experience should make me a good ear doctor, I should be pleased to have you visit my offices. It will cost you nothing for an examination and advice. If your ears have been so neglected that treatment will not restore your hearing, I have the best instrument ever invented to make deaf people hear. It is called the Baker Microphone. I will be pleased to give you an opportunity to test this little device free.

DEMOCRATIC FOLD REOPENS TO HEARST

TAMMANY NOT OVERJOYED

Up-State Sentiment in Favor of Winning Him Back Before the Gubernatorial Campaign.

William R. Hearst, who read himself out of the Democratic Party shortly after his defeat for Governor in 1906, is to be welcomed back into the party fold again should he choose to come. This report came with almost stunning effect recently to some leaders in Tammany Hall, who heard that this was a part of the plan for the rejuvenation of the party in this State.

According to the disquieting report that has reached these Tammany leaders, the local branch of the Democratic League, the organization for which provision was made at the Saratoga Conference, is considering the advisability of entering into negotiations with a view of gaining the support of the Civic Alliance leader in their efforts to purify the Democratic Party and harmonize its factions.

On the other hand, it is said that Mr. Hearst himself, who still has political ambitions to gratify, is not averse to winning back his party regularity and gaining at the same time political rehabilitation and the glory that would come to him should he become one of the factors in building up a militant Democracy which could carry the State in the Gubernatorial election next Fall.

The large vote polled by the Civic Alliance leader as a Mayoralty candidate in the last municipal campaign, after Tammany Hall had gleefully asserted that after his successive defeats when running for Mayor and Governor Mr. Hearst was "down and out" politically, is supposed to have had a good deal to do with this desire on the part of certain Democrats to offer the fatted calf to the Civic Alliance prodigal.

Up-State View of It.

This feeling is shared in a measure by up-State Democrats. In the Saratoga Conference movement the leading members are men who broke away from the Democratic State machine under Chairman Conners after the nomination of Mr. Hearst for Governor in 1906.

Their opposition was based principally on the ground that he held views on public questions that were radical and undemocratic, as reflected by his Municipal Ownership campaign for the Mayoralty in 1905. The fact that men as conservative as those who foregathered to listen to Mr. Hearst at the dinner given in his honor last Saturday night by Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, are beginning to take interest in the Civic Alliance leader is taken in many quarters as an indication that these objections will be overcome.

While no one believes that there were political motives behind the Shonts dinner, the fact that Mr. Hearst had been bidden to the feast in order that he might have an opportunity, in his own words, to show "that he is not as black as he has been painted" has been regarded as not altogether without significance.

S. Stanwood Menken, organizer of the Democratic League, was told last night that some Tammany leaders were greatly disturbed over the report that the league might welcome Mr. Hearst into its Democratic fellowship.

"That is a matter which I am not prepared to discuss at this time," said Mr. Menken. "Mr. Hearst, however, is a very important factor in the State at the present time."

Man to Be Reckoned With.

This sentiment is being reflected in talks from up-State Democrats who from time to time visit this city. Ex-Judge Samuel S. Beardsley of Utica, for many years the leader of the Democratic forces in Oneida County and an "old line" Democrat, said last night at the Hoffman House:

"There is no doubt that Mr. Hearst must be reckoned with in the next State campaign. The strength he developed in the municipal campaign is evidence of that."

Tammany Leader Murphy is expected back from Mount Clemens this morning. It is not known whether he is aware of the reports that have so alarmed some of his followers. That he will not receive the news with gladness is certain.

Under ordinary circumstances the return of a prodigal to the Democratic fold would be hailed joyfully in Tammany Hall, especially if it should tend to remove from the political arena as dangerous and powerful an opponent as Mr. Hearst has shown himself to be.

But what is giving the Tammany leaders worry just now is the fact that if Mr. Hearst should join hands with the Democratic League he undoubtedly would take a large portion of his following with him to swell the enrollment for the league which now is in progress in every Assembly district in the city.

The question of patronage would undoubtedly be taken up by Mr. Murphy immediately upon his return if he felt that it was wise and safe to approach Mayor-elect Gaynor on the subject. So far no word of comfort has reached the Wigwam from across the bridge.

There are in all about nineteen Commissionerships, paying $7,500 each; a number of Deputy Commissionerships, the office of City Chamberlain, and some offices of less importance, to be filled by appointment after the first of the year. So far Mr. Gaynor has kept everybody in the dark regarding his intentions. It was intimated last night by a friend of Mr. Gaynor that few appointments, if any, may be announced prior to Jan. 1.

Prof. Charles Sprague Smith, Chairman of the committee which is arranging for a dinner to Mr. Hearst at the Hotel Astor on Dec. 14, said last night that the demand for tickets was very large, and that requests had been received from prominent Democrats and Republicans as well as from Citizens' Union men and members of the late Committee of One Hundred.

SCHURMAN ON STATE CONTROL

Thinks Such Direction of Cornell Might Not Be Undesirable.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 30.—State control over Cornell University is discussed by President Schurman in his annual report, issued to-day. The President hints that such control might not be undesirable. He also discussed some of the university's problems. He says:

"If with the increase of State appropriations in the future it seems desirable that the State should have a larger measure of control, which Commissioner Draper demands, the result can be very simply effected by a further amendment of the charter, which would authorize the Governor of the State, with the advice and consent of the Senate, to appoint annually for a term of five years one of the board into trusteeships filled by the board itself.

"Or if the State desired complete control this could be easily accomplished by converting all trusteeships now filled by the boar dinto trusteeships filled by the State.

"This new legislation regarding Cornell University accentuates the inadequacy of the classification of American universities as State and endowed. The classification should be threefold, and not twofold; for in the United States we have endowed universities, State universities, and Cornell University, which is both an endowed and a State university. It forms a class by itself, being the only State and endowed university in the United States."

President Schurman thought the College of Agriculture furnished a superb vindication of its existence. It had cost the State some money, but the results were worth tenfold or a hundredfold all that it had cost. The President believed that either the college should be greatly enlarged or the number of students immediatly limited. He did not believe that either the people or the Legislature of the State would think it good policy to restrict or stop agricultural education at its very beginning, and not for the reason that it has been extraordinarily successful.

Dr. Schurman said the university needed a new chemical laboratory, a new armory, new machine shops for Sibley College, a new testing experimental laboratory in civil engineering, and new buildings for the Colleges of Agriculture and Veterinary Medicine.

SING SING CONVICT ESCAPES.

Trusty in Prison Stables Makes a Break for Liberty.

James Murphy, a convict serving a ten-year sentence in Sing Sing Prison, disappeared last night, and a general alarm has been sent out for him. He was at work in the prison stable, which is opposite the office and is outside of the prison walls, when he got away.

Murphy had been a well-behaved prisoner since he was sent up from Kings County four years ago, and had earned the confidence of the keepers. He was looked upon as a "trusty," and was employed doing trucking about the prison and looking after the horses in the stable.

He was supposed to be in the stable between 8 and 9 o'clock last night, but when a keeper went there to look for him he was gone. The keeper at once gave the alarm and a search was begun. It was thought at first that the man was probably concealed somewhere in the big stable or near it, but although a thorough search was made no trace of the missing man was found.

Murphy was convicted of assault in the first degree in Brooklyn and was sentenced to serve ten years in State prison. He had never given the least trouble since his reception at the prison.

FRANCE NOW HOLDS UP LOAN.

Objects to Concessions Granted to Germans in Chinese Deal.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Another complication which threatens to delay the conclusion of the international negotiations for the Chinese railway loan, has arisen. The French financiers who heretofore have taken but little part in the discussion, leaving the matter largely in the hands of the British bankers, now have intimated their desire that there shall be an equal division in the control of the construction of the railway.

This development, coming at a moment when it was hoped that an agreement between the German and British groups had been reached, completely upsets the calculations of the diplomats of Great Britain. They had agreed, it is understood, to concede certain German demands. The French, however, consider that Great Britain has yielded too much, and thus the whole matter is likely to be reopened.

Nevertheless there is a probability that the German proposals made some time ago that the powers should join in urging China to grant a concession for and a division of control of the railway's construction, will be again taken up and acted upon.

AMOY, China, Nov. 30.—The Imperial Board of Communications has advanced $500,000 for the extension of the Amoy and Changchow Railway.

GOMPERS GETS A STAY.

Sentence of Labor Man Delayed for an Appeal to the Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to-day granted the petition of Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell, and Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, in the contempt case against them, for a stay of execution of the mandate of the court sending them to jail.

The mandate is stayed indefinitely pending appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, Nov. 30.—The State Legislature has granted thirty days' leave to Gov. Enrique Creel, and has elected Jose Maria Sanchez Acting Governor. Creel has gone to Mexico City, whither it is reported he has been called to take a Cabinet position.

HAVRE, Nov. 30.—Marie Mallet, an aged cook, has died suddenly, leaving to her heirs a great fortune which had been left her by a brother, a California "forty-niner."

MEXICO OFFERS PLAN IN NICARAGUA CRISIS

Suggests It to Washington—Attack on Frenchmen May Force Action by Us.

REBELS REPORT A VICTORY

Zelaya Offers to Retire, but Estrada Refuses to Consider the Terms He Proposes.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 30.—A suggestion of a plan for the solution of the Nicaraguan trouble has been made by the Government of Mexico to the United States. This was admitted by Minister of Foreign Relations Ignacio Mariscal to-night.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Although the State Department to-day resumed its policy of silence and waiting in the Nicaraugan affair, a new phase of the situation arose that may force this Government to assume a more aggressive policy. According to word received here from New Orleans a French farm owner in the southern part of Nicaragua has complained of maltreatment at the hands of Zelaya's men, and it is also said that a French warship had been dispatched from Martinique to the Nicaraguan coast for the protection of French citizens.

It is considered extremely unlikely that France will actively interpose in the struggle in the latter republic, but it is quite probable, should she feel that her citizens were endangered, that she would press this country, as the guardian of the peace in this hemisphere, to make a vigorous move against Zelaya in the interest of foreigners in general.

Insurgents Tell of Fight.

A report of a battle in the mountains of Nicaragua is contained in a cablegram received to-night by Dr. Salvador Castrillo, the representative of the Estrada Provisional Government.

The revolutionist force of about 600 men under Gen. Matuty attacked 1,000 Government troops under Gen. Zasquez. The fighting was of the guerrilla order and raged from 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon until 11 o'clock last evening. The Government troops then withdrew, the cablegram says, leaving much of their ammunition and their colors.

Advices from Estrada to-night confirm the story of the fighting and add that the revolutionists gained a distinct advantage of position.

Word that President Zelaya has made overtures to the revolutionists intimating his willingness to retire from the Presidency of Nicaragua, came to-day from the United States Consulate at Bluefields. It was sent late Sunday night.

The dispatch says that a recognized representative of Zelaya has telegraphed an adroitly worded dispatch to the revolutionists making an overture to the effect that it is rumored that Zelaya, recognizing the weakness of his position, may retire, he first convening congress, all of the delegates to which are controlled by him, with a view to the selection of a provisional President.

Gen. Estrada, the revolutionary leader, sent the following reply:

> The Government of Gen. Estrada, completely assured of an ultimate triumph, and much stronger than Zelaya, who, with his accomplices, owes reparation to the country, and Estrada being the unanimous choice for President of the Liberal Party, aided by the conservatives, will not accept any terms other than the recognition of the Provisional Government established.

Señor Castrillo, agent for the Estrada Government in Washington, received to-day a cable from Gen. Estrada dated last midnight from Bluefields. It reads:

> Zelaya is attempting to persuade the Provisional Government to make arrangements for peace. Adolph Diaz, representative of the Provisional Government, has informed him that he and his accomplices must make reparation. The Provisional Government can accept no reparation which does not include absolute recognition of the Provisional Government. Considering the situation as it now stands, we expect to capture Zelaya's army at any moment.

"I said on Sunday that within ten days Zelaya would flee the country," said Dr. Castrillo to-day. "Now he is attempting to make terms with our forces. Of course he must recognize us. There is nothing left for him to do except to abdicate and leave the country. Estrada will succeed him."

Attempt to Influence Americans.

What looks like a poor attempt on Zelaya's part to influence public sentiment in this country came out to-day in two cablegrams to Deputy Controller of the Currency Fowler, purporting to be from his cousin, Charles G. Fowler, Secretary of the Nicaragua Development Company. Mr. Fowler is at a loss to know why his cousin should cable him at all, and the general opinion here is that Zelaya has caused the dispatches to be sent.

The first dispatch paved the way for the second by merely stating that the writer was well and that Americans were allowed to move about freely. The second, which is regarded as a fake, reads:

> Inform Secretary Knox I have seen files and papers relating to executions Americans Groce and Cannon. Have interviewed President Couture; find execution was under sentence court-martial convened under Constitution and Code Military Nicaragua. All three signed statements acknowledging participation in revolution. Groce admitted firing mine in attempted destruction steamer Diamante. All three asked for clemency. President refused to interfere, stating military necessity, and army demanded execution of sentence. Pacific littoral quiet. Congress now assembling for regular session.

Gen. Frederick D. Grant to-day telegraphed the Secretary of War denying an alleged interview in which he was quoted as saying that Nicaragua might have been justified in the Groce and Cannon case. His telegram follows:

> I regret very much that sensational and false reports are given of alleged interview with me. I have had no interview on Nicaragua.

Having gone at full speed from Pichilinque Bay, Mexico, the transport Buffalo was reported to-day as having arrived at Panama. It will be her mission, in case of a demonstration against Zelaya, to take marines from the Isthmus of Panama to Corinto on the Pacific Coast of Nicaragua.

COMPLAIN TO FRENCH CONSUL.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 30.—A cable dispatch from San José, Costa Rica, says:

The French Government has been drawn into the Nicaraguan trouble in a way that promises serious consequences for Zelaya, as a result of brutal outrages committed on French citizens residing in Nicaragua.

An official complaint has been lodged with the French Consul General in Costa Rica by Faustino Montiel, a Frenchman. Montiel, who was manager of a farm owned by M. Menier of Paris and situated on the southeast coast of the Great Lake of Nicaragua, says:

> On the 22d of October last we were surprised by a large detachment of troops commanded by a gentleman called Larios, who, we were told, is an aide-de-camp of the President of Nicaragua. Immediately both Mr. Ruinart and myself were bound and dragged to the edge of a lake, where, after a mockery of a trial, they threatened to shoot us—a threat which they repeated three times.
> As soon as we were safely in the lock-up the soldiers returned to sack the farm, wresting the keys from the housekeeper, and carrying off all objects of value on which they could lay their hands, some of which we recognized later in Lortuga. We had to regain possession of our own horses by purchasing them from those to whom they had sold them.
> During the operations at the farm the housekeeper was brutally treated by Larios, and it was with difficulty that she saved herself from being killed. They completely stripped the farm, not taking into account the French flag, which was at the time hoisted over the house.

It is reported here by George S. Lacoya, a planter near Leon, Nicaragua, that Francisco Espinosa, father of Rudolfo Espinosa, ex-Nicaraguan Minister at Washington, and of Emilio Espinosa, one of the leaders of the revolutionary movement in Nicaragua, had been executed by order of Zelaya.

According to Lacoya, who was a passenger on the steamer Atenas, arriving here late yesterday from Colon, Espinosa was seized upon his arrival at Corinto from Washington, where he had been visitng his son, taken to Grenada and there shot.

Lacoya also says that Col. Hernando Barrios and Maximilian Sacass, prominent supporters of the revolutionary cause, were recently seized near Corinto and executed on order of President Zelaya.

The Nicaraguan Consul here says the report is unquestionably erroneous and the Consul of the Estrada Government says he has received no advices to this effect.

REICHSTAG SESSION OPENED BY KAISER

Chancellor's Speech on Pan-Germanism Not Intended as a Reflection on Ambassador at Washington.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—Emperor William opened the Reichstag to-day by personally reading the speech from the throne. The document was handed to him by Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg. The speech dealt largely with domestic legislation and contained the important announcement that the Government had prepared a measure extending the sick benefit insurance to the working classes not heretofore protected, and creating a system of insurance for the dependent relatives of deceased workers. The imperial insurance organization will be modified in important particulars.

"Our possessions over seas, in Africa, and in the South Seas," said the Emperor, "are developing well. The growth of their own incomes will relieve the empire considerably of colonial expenses.

"It is proposed," he went on, "to continue the Usambara Railway to Kilimanjaro and thus round out the Southwest African system. The increase in the working population and in the wealth of the protected districts make a reform in the legal system necessary."

Reference was made to the triple alliance. "I nourish the confidence," said his Majesty, "that the three allied empires will continue to act together, using their strength for the welfare of their peoples and the maintenance of peace."

The opening of the Reichstag to-day was as brilliant as usual. None of the Socialist members was present at the ceremony, which was held in the White Hall of the palace.

Commenting upon Count von Bernstorff's criticism of the pan-Germanists in the speech which the German Ambassador to the United States recently made at Philadelphia, the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung to-day says:

"While Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg recognizes the patriotic sentiments of the pan-German politicians, he does not identify himself with their aims. We must, however, contradict the statement that he disavowed the statements of Ambassador Bernstorff when he sounded a warning against the counfounding of pan-Germanic ideas which are detrimental to imperial interests with the official policy of the empire. The speech of Count Bernstorff has given the Chancellor no occasion for censuring the speaker."

An Important Work on American Natural History

Life Histories of Northern Animals

BY

ERNEST THOMPSON SETON.

$18 net. Expressage Extra.

A book of popular natural history on a strictly scientific basis, treating of some sixty quadrupeds, taking up the intimate home side of their lives. Illustrated from drawings and maps, showing the animals, their homes, different stages of growth, etc. It is a work of the highest value and interest. Frank M. Chapman, the editor of "Bird Lore," says of it: "Mr. Seton's 'Life Histories of Northern Animals' is the book for which we have long been waiting. He has done for our mammals what Audubon did for our birds, but he has done it better. To his unique gifts as a sympathetic biographer of wild animals, he adds a thorough grasp of the more technical sides of his subject, and the result is a work of the highest popular interest and scientific value."

BEST YEAR OF ALL FOR THE FARMERS

WHY MEAT PRICES ARE HIGH

Increase in Value of Corn and Cost of Conducting the Retail Trade Largely Responsible.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Most prosperous of all years is the place to which 1909 is entitled in agriculture, declares the Secretary of Agriculture in his thirteenth annual report, made public to-day. The value of farm products is so incomprehensibly large that it has become merely a row of figures. For this year it is $8,760,000,000, a gain of $869,000,000 over 1908. The value of the products has nearly doubled in ten years. The report says, "Eleven years of agriculture, beginning with a production of $4,417,000,000 and ending with $8,760,000,000! A sum of $70,000,000,000 for the period! It has paid off mortgages, it has established banks, it has made better homes, it has helped to make the farmer a citizen of the world, and it has provided him with means for improving his soil and making it more productive."

The most striking fact in the world's agriculture is the value of the corn crop for 1909, which is about $1,720,000,000. It nearly equals the value of the clothing and personal adornments of 76,000,000 people, according to the census of 1900. The gold and silver coin and bullion of the United States are not of greater value. It has grown up from the soil and out of the air in 120 days—$15,000,000 a day for one crop. This crop exceeds in value the average of the crops of the five preceding years by 36 per cent.

Cotton is now the second crop in value, and this year's cotton crop is easily the most valuable one to the farmer that has been produced. With cotton lint selling at 13.7 cents on the farm Nov. 1 and with cotton seed selling for about $25 per ton, the lint and seed of this crop are worth about $850,000,000 to the farmer. No cotton crop since 1873 has been sold by farmers for as high a price per pound as this one.

Wheat Crop Third in Value.

Third in value is wheat, worth about $725,000,000 at the farm, and this largely exceeds all previous values. The November farm price was almost an even dollar a bushel, a price which has not been equaled since 1881. This is the third wheat crop in point of size, with 725,000,000 bushels.

The hay crop is valued at $665,000,000, oats at $400,000,000, potatoes at $212,000,000, and tobacco at nearly $100,000,000. Beet and cane sugar and molasses and syrup, from farm and factory, will reach the total of about $95,000,000. The barley crop is worth $88,000,000, flaxseed $36,000,000, and 1,000,000,000 pounds of rice $25,000,000.

The production of all cereals combined is 4,711,000,000 bushels, an amount considerably greater than that for any other year except 1906. It exceeds the average of the preceding five years by 6.5 per cent. The value of all cereals in 1909 has never been equaled in a previous year. It is almost exactly $3,000,000,000, or 34 per cent. above the five-year average.

The increase in the value of farm products this year over 1908, $869,000,000, is enough to buy a new equipment of farm machinery for over 6,000,000 farms. The value of the cereal crops to the farmer would pay for all of the machinery, tools, and implements of the entire manufacturing industry. The value of all crops, $5,700,000,000, would make a half payment on the value of all steam railroads, according to the valuation of 1904.

Cost of Meat to Consumers.

Secretary Wilson has just finished a unique investigation made for the purpose of this report relating to the increase of prices of beef when sold at retail. Through employes of the Bureau of Animal Industry inquiries were made in fifty cities—large, medium, and small—in all parts of the country.

For the fifty cities the total retail cost charged to customers above the wholesale cost paid by the retailers is 38 per cent. In 5 cities the rate of increase is 20 per cent. and under; in 10 cities, 21 to 30 per cent.; in 12 cities, 31 to 40 per cent.; in 12 cities, 41 to 50 per cent., and in 11 cities, over 50 per cent.

The average retail price exceeded the average wholesale price by 31.4 per cent. in the North Atlantic States, by 38 per cent. in the South Atlantic, by 38 per cent. in the North Central, 39.4 per cent. in the Western, and the highest increase was found in the South Central States, 54 per cent.

A gross profit of 20 per cent. was found in New York City and in Philadelphia, 28 per cent. in Buffalo, 36 per cent. in Boston, 17 per cent. in Baltimore, 42 per cent. in Washington, 46 per cent. in Chicago, 25 per cent. in Cincinnati, 23 per cent. in Omaha, 28 per cent. in Kansas City, 27 and 35 per cent. in Minneapolis and St. Paul, 40 per cent. in Milwaukee and Detroit, 39 per cent. in St. Louis, 64 per cent. in Mobile, 39 per cent. in San Francisco, 24 per cent. in Seattle, and 37 per cent. in Denver.

The lower the grade of beef the greater the percentage of gross profit. In Boston, for illustration, the rate of gross profit is nearly twice as great for beef costing 8 cents at wholesale as for beef costing 11 and 11½ cents. Low-priced beef is marked up nearly twice as much relatively as high-priced beef. In other words, perhaps it is a safe inference that the poor people pay nearly twice as much profit as the well-to-do people pay.

Retailers' Expenses High.

The retailer's delivery service is costly, however, and the retail business is overdone. The multiplication of small shops is a burden to consumers and no source of riches to the small shopkeepers. When twenty or more small shops divide the retail business within an area that could be served by one large shop, the expenses of the many shops for labor, horses, rent, and other things, that are in excess of what would be sufficient for the one shop, must go into the retail prices of the meat sold.

Furthermore, customers choose the higher-priced cuts of meats. Steaks and roasts are the preferences, and these must have names that are regarded as respectable. Consequently, one fifth of the carcass is bought at the highest price—porterhouse steaks at prices as high as 25 to 30 cents a pound, sirloin at 20 to 25 cents, and rib roasts at 20 cents.

The ascending prices of meat suggest inquiry as to whether the prices of the farmer's beef cattle and hogs have increased at the farm in the same degree that meat has to the consumer. For the purpose of making comparisons, the mean price level of 1896 and 1900, a period of comparatively low prices, is adopted as a base line, represented by 100, and for each animal and commodity this price level is computed.

The farmer has failed to receive a share of higher beef prices with regard to the raw animal. The price level of two-year-old steers at the farm being regarded as 100 for 1896-1900, the price of such steers rose to 135.9 in 1900, declined to 85.5 in 1905, and rose to 100.8 in 1909, all for the date of Jan. 1 and for prices at the farm, substantially before corn feeding had begun.

Beef Prices Due to Cost of Corn.

The price of corn in 1909 at the farm is represented by 218.6 compared with 100 for the price level of 1896-1900, and the price of the best native steers at the Chicago Stock Yards in the same year is 139.9, which is much above the "index number" for the price of the animal at the farm and much below the price of corn at the farm. The inference is that the farmer gets some return for the high-priced corn that he feeds to his steers, but not a return equal to 60 cents a bushel for his corn, which is the price for the last two years. As for the unfed steer it does not participate in the upward movement of prices in its farm value.

The wholesale prices of fresh beef carcasses have increased in about the same degree that the prices of steers have at the stock yards, and the retail prices of fresh beef have kept pace with the wholesale prices.

The increasing prices of fresh beef, therefore, are due to increasing prices of animals at the stock yards, and this is explained by the abnormal circumstances to which the raising of beef animals has been subject in recent years.

There has been a breaking up of range herds consequent upon the enforcement of the "no-fence" law by the National Government and by encroachments of the settlers upon the ranges, made possible by the practice of "dry farming." Not all of the cattle have gone directly from the ranges to the slaughter houses; a great portion of them has gone to farms for maturing and finishing, largely upon corn. This extra demand on the corn crop is reflected in corn prices, which are now higher than they have been since the records of the Department of Agriculture began, in 1866, except for 1881.

Half a dozen years of this abnormal movement of beef cattle from ranges to the great markets began to tell upon the supply in 1908, when the deliveries fell off in a marked degree, and the decrease continued in 1909.

The situation with regard to hogs is more fair to the farmer than the cattle situation is, but still it is apparent that during the last three years the price of corn has been too high for the price of hogs. The relative price of hogs on the farm Jan. 1, 1909, was 147.3, as compared with 100 for the mean price of 1896-1900, and the average cost of all hogs slaughtered at principal markets in the year before was 148.1, or about the same as the farm price. The price of dressed hogs of 160 pounds in New York in 1908 stands at 145.7, and the carcasses of market pigs at Chicago at 148.4, which is approximately the number representing the relative retail price of fresh pork.

In the case of hogs, therefore, the farmer has fully participated in the rising prices, whereas in the case of the farmer's cattle the unfed animals are barely as valuable as they were nine to fourteen years ago, and had not the price of corn ascended to a high figure, perhaps he would not have shared in the higher beef prices.

Secretary Wilson notes a great forward movement in enforcing the Food and Drug acts, the willingness of manufacturers to comply with the laws and to co-operate with the department, making its work largely educational. The Secretary also generally reviews the work of the department.

MONTHLY BANK MEETINGS NOW

Federal Controller Also Orders National Banks to Have Loan Committees

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—All of the 2,500 National banks in the United States which now hold board meetings at irregular and infrequent intervals must have monthly meetings of their Boards of Directors, must appoint examining and discount committees, and all the loans and discounts of each bank must be approved by the Directorate Board at the monthly meeting, such approval to be recorded in permanent form. This was determined by Controller of the Currency Murray to-day.

CIVIC ALLIANCE MEN MEET.

Norbert Lafayette-Savay, who was once challenged by the Count de Lafayette to prove that he was the greatgrandson of the Marquis whose memory is cherished in this country, and is the founder and President of the American Civic Alliance, sat at the head of a table in the Nimrod Room at the Hotel Astor last night surrounded by the friends of good government assembled to perfect the plans for the Alliance's congress, which is to convene next week.

Although there are said to be 4,000 distinguished Americans enrolled on the General Board of Control, and the letterhead of the society bears the alliance of fifty renowned Americans, including Cardinal Gibbons and President David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford, Jr.,s, university, only seventeen members attended the meeting last night.

Mr. Lafayette-Savay sent out a message to the effect that Henry Clews, the banker, and Treasurer of the alliance, and Edward Lauterbach, attorney, would act as publicity representatives for the evening.

"Theer was perfect harmony," said Mr. Lauterbach. "The meeting was called for the purpose of allowing the Board of Governors to perfect the final arrangements for next week's congress."

It was learned that Mr. Lafayette-Savay will retire from the Presidency next week, and that the alliance will be reorganized.

Among the seventeen present last night were Ernest C. Brown, Charles A. Baker, James G. Beemer, Henry Clews, Nicola Tesla, Victor A. Harder, Henry L. Doherty, and Irving M. Shaw.

COUPLE RUN DOWN BY A CAB.

Ex-Harvard Football Player and Young Woman Bowled Over on Broadway.

H. F. Kersberg of 197 Bay State Road, Boston, who told the police that he was a member of the Harvard football team of '08, which defeated Yale for the first time in six years, and Miss Madaline Davidson, who gave her address as the Woodstock Hotel, 127 West Forty-third Street, were knocked down by a brougham yesterday afternoon at Broadway and Forty-fourth Street.

Kersberg escaped injury, but Miss Davidson's ankle was injured so painfully that she had to be carried into the lobby of a theatre. Kersberg then called a taxicab, and took her away. They would not permit a patrolman to call an ambulance.

The driver of the brougham, William Savin of 534 West Thirty-fifth Street, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving. When a reporter went to the Woodstock Hotel he was informed that Miss Davidson was not expected there until to-day.

When Savin was arraigned in the Night Court before Magistrate Krotel he said he was employed by Miss M. K. Hevitt of 106 West Seventy-seventh Street. Kersberg was in court, and said he did not want to press the complaint. He and Miss Davidson, he said, had been to a hotel for tea, and in crossing the street were chatting and did not watch very carefully. The driver was fined $10, which he paid.

FIRE IN A GIRLS' SCHOOL.

Pupils Are Marched Out in Good Order as Firemen Do Their Work.

A girls' school, maintained by the Sisters of St. Joseph in a two-story building at 172 Sanford Avenue, Flushing, L. I., was discovered to be afire early yesterday morning, just as the pupils had finished prayer and were singing the morning hymn. During the hymn one of the Sisters discovered smoke coming up through the floor of the class room, and the twenty-seven pupils in the class room were marched out with little disorder.

The school adjoins St. Joseph's Orphanage, and the pupils were all marched across the lawn to the orphanage, where they remained while several fire companies which had responded to the alarm fought the flames. The blaze started in the basement, and is said to have been due to an overheated furnace. The building was damaged to the extent of about $500.

St. Joseph's Orphanage adjoins the damaged building on the west, while the Flushing High School is directly across the street, but at no time was either building in danger, and the pupils in the high school did not know of the fire until it had been extinguished.

The small blaze recalled to old-timers a fire in St. Thomas's Hall, now St. Joseph's Orphanage, where the Rev. Thomas Gilder, father of the late Richard Watson Gilder, had a school for girls. It was more than fifty years ago, in the dead of Winter, that an overheated stove set fire to the school, and in an article written at the time for one of the local papers by the late poet and author, in describing the scenes at the school he said that the "girls behaved with splendid bravery." He also told of the old hand engine freezing up, and of the efforts of the villagers to keep it thawed out and in running order.

CHANDLER UPHOLDS MEYER'S NAVY PLAN

Former Secretary Says Bureau Chiefs Had Too Much Power Under Old System.

SOME COMPLAINTS HEARD

Bureau of Construction Officials Believe Line Officers Incompetent for Navy Yard Work.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The reorganization of the Navy Department announced by Secretary Meyer has caused a great deal of comment here to-day. Much of it undoubtedly is adverse, but the general impression seems to be favorable. Of course the men who resent the changes most are those who lose power by the new arrangement, and they, under the discipline of the service, cannot express themselves.

The man most interested in the proposed reforms is former Secretary of the Navy Newberry, under whose direction the present system was inaugurated, but he refused to discuss the sweeping changes that will go into effect to-morrow. His friends, however, are of the opinion that his work did not have a fair test. He reorganized the navy last Winter, and his orders went into effect on Feb. 1. The new Administration went into office on March 4, and at once showed its determination to sweep away the whole Newberry system.

Former Secretary of the Navy William E. Chandler, who was also Senator from New Hampshire, expressed himself this evening as greatly pleased with the innovations of Secretary Meyer. Mr. Chandler headed the Navy Department under President Arthur. He said to-day:

"The changes in navy regulations specified in the order of the Secretary of the Navy are very lengthy, covering a great deal of what is now a part of the regulations, and adding much that is new, making altogether some twenty-six pages of fine type. I have been able only to glance at them. My impression is entirely favorable, especially as one of the changes restores to the office of the Secretary of the Navy the office of detail, which has been so long absurdly made, in attempt, at least, a part of the Bureau of Navigation, subject to the control of the chief of that bureau.

"The original organization of the Navy Department into bureaus dealt only with material substances, as ships, their ordnance, and the material substances used in navigation. The personnel of the navy, its officers ad men, was controlled directly by the Secretary, and the orders to them issued by him. When, however, naval officers sought to lessen the powers of the Secretary through the chief of a bureau, they gave the right to determine and issue the orders to the Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, which work of issuing orders had no more relation to the preparation of the compasses, chronometers, and the conduct of the naval observatory than it had to the building of steam engines.

"So the Chief of the Bureau of Navigation assumed to become the 'boss' of the navy, and occasionally succeeded in becoming such. This anomaly is now ended forever, and the Secretary, through the help of his Assistant Secretary and the aid in the division of personnel truly commands the navy in the name of the President.

"The grouping of the affairs of the navy under general divisions, including the operation of the fleet, personnel, material, and the inspection, seems to me to be a admirable conception. So also the provisions made for conducting the work of the navy at the navy yards.

"Hereafter the Secretary of the Navy, with his aids, will properly control the whole navy personnel and material, while the bureaus and their chiefs will attend specifically and directly to the detailed work connected with such material, such as the ships, their hulls, their ordnance, supplies for navigation and medicine and surgery. The Bureau of Yards and Docks, according to the provisions of the order, has its own peculiar province. The abolition of the Bureau of Equipment seems to be not unwise, and doubtless will be eprmitted by Congress.

"These observations are all that I can make offhand, but it is apparent that the whole scheme has been prepared with conscientious care and great labor. I hope that it may not be found to be mistaken in any direction."

In the Navy Department perhaps the most opposition is centred in the Bureau of Construction, with the possible exception of the Bureau of Equipment, which it is proposed to abolish altogether. The Bureau of Construction, however, feels that far too much advantage is given to line officers in the navy yards. Officers in the bureau feel that it is as unreasonable to have line officers at the head of navy yards as it would be to put a good all-around explorer in charge of railroad construction. It is technical work, they say, and should be left to men of technical and specialized education.

Capt. Murphy, Commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, was in Washington to-day and talked to Secretary Meyer. It was said afterward that he had no complaint to make, and that he seemed satisfied with the new arrangement.

William A. Becker's Recital.

William A. Becker gave a piano recital yesterday afternoon in Mendelssohn Hall. The programme included Handel's "Harmonious Blacksmith" variations, Beethoven's "Waldstein" sonata, three Schumann numbers, three Chopin numbers, a Schubert impromptu, a Barcarolle by himself, and Rubinstein's etude in C.

A BROOKLYN 'DEATH AVENUE'?

Sugar Trust Applying for a Surface Railroad Franchise Over There.

Strong objection is likely to be raised at a public hearing to be held by the Board of Estimate on Dec. 23 to a proposal to grant a fifteen-year franchise to the East River Terminal Railroad, a corporation believed to be affiliated with the Sugar Trust, for the operation of tracks along the East River front between Greenpoint and Williamsburg. The fear is being expressed that the granting of this franchise may create an "Eleventh Avenue situation" in Brooklyn.

The tracks have been in existence for some thirty-five years. Several weeks ago the company applied to the Board of Estimate for permission to make certain changes in them involving the installation of new spurs and switches. The matter was turned over to the Franchise Bureau for investgation, and it was found that the compensation received by the city was altogether too low.

It was then decided that the company must apply for a new franchise for all its tracks.

Our Prices Fall To The Lowest Level at This Time

Intelligent and disinterested comparisons show that the best values are to be had here all the year 'round. However, the unmistakable economy of our liberal store policy is more pronounced at this special season than any other of the year. The whole business responds to the dynamic Holiday enthusiasm. You, the retail buyer, begin your active Christmas choosing one, two or three weeks before the gala day dawns. Our preparations have a twelve months' reach. We have to make selections a whole year in advance. In many lines the delicate question of quantity has to be determined upon even earlier than that. There is always the disturbing thought that varieties will break before the demand is supplied. That is why we usually err on the side of business—and because we'd rather have it that way, we frequently overbuy.

And about this time begins the annual irrepressible conflict between regular and special Holiday stocks. Both clamor for the ampler, broader and most prominent spaces. With counters heaped and shelves abulge, we keep a steady watch with hands on the pulse of trade. It's a trying period. The vigil and nervous strain doesn't relax until the last moment. There must be no uncertainty now. Goods must go. They must go fast. Anything that hesitates is prodded—gets the price spur. The things we bought for this Christmas must be sold this Christmas. We don't haggle with conditions. Dickering methods are antique. As the Holiday shopping approaches its zenith all our efforts are concentrated on selling, selling, SELLING, and the prices feel the force of our determination. We take advantage of your eagerness to buy by making it profitable for you to buy here and now.

Macy's For Dolls and Toys

Our Toy Store is the scene of a swelling surge of humanity. The little ones are there, radiating and pulsating with the uncompromising and material freshness of American childhood. The wild rose in the hedge is not more tangible than their cheeks, nor the summer sky more clearly cool and blue than their eyes. As they gaze at the wonderful things that hint of the beaming face of old Santa they are beautiful pictures of the period—flesh-and-blood expressions of Holiday happiness.

Please Shop Early

We do not keep open evenings—nor will we between now and Christmas. We could sell many extra thousands of dollars' worth of goods by doing so—but it would be at the physical expense of our employees. Therefore, we close at the usual hour each day—and for that reason we urge you to shop as early as you can.

MRS. PANKHURST BIDS US FAREWELL

Expresses Gratitude to Americans for the Sympathy and Support She Received.

CROWDS PACK COOPER UNION

The farewell meeting of Mrs. Pankhurst, the English Suffragette leader, was held last evening at Cooper Union under the auspices of the People's Institute and the Collegiate Equal Suffrage League of New York State. The great hall was crowded, people standing back of the seats and down the aisles. There was a large proportion of men. While many of the people there were Mrs. Pankhurst's followers, it was on the whole a typical Cooper Union audience.

People began to gather outside the building at half past six, and when the doors were finally closed at twenty minutes of eight, large numbers had been sent away. These gathered later at overflow meetings in the vicinity of the hall.

On the list of platform guests appeared the names of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Mrs. Clarence Lexow, Mrs. Henry Villard, Mrs. Pierce Bailey, Mrs. John Brannon, Mrs. Henry Phipps, Mrs. Wendell T. Bush, Mrs. James Laidlaw, Miss Mary Drier, the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, and Mrs. Ella Hawley H. Crossett. Other prominent people occupied front seats. Miss Forbes Robertson, wearing two English suffrage badges, was one of the front line who lead in the applause for Mrs. Pankhurst.

The suffragette leader seemed somewhat affected by this last American meeting before she returns home to meet possible imprisonment, or she is not quite sure what. Of the reception accorded her by the American people she spoke appreciatively.

Her cheeks were flushed and at times her voice showed much feeling. She wore the heliotrope velvet gown in which she appeared at her first New York meeting in Carnegie Hall. This was combined with purple, green, and white, the English suffragette colors. She wore a necklace of amethysts, emeralds, and pearls, the three colors again, and they were repeated in her corsage bouquet, violets, white gardenias, and green foliage. She was received with warm applause, but it was as nothing to that which followed her address and called her to her feet again, again and again until she threw out her hands in good-humored protest.

Grateful to Americans.

Mrs. Pankhurst has not been willing to say much about the work of American women for the franchise since she has been in this country, confining herself to the English struggle, with which she is familiar, but she gave her opinion frankly last night in answering the last of a lot of questions sent her, and which closed the meeting.

"Do you believe in the vote being given to American women and at once?" read the question.

"Yes, I do," replied Mrs. Pankhurst, "and the sooner the better," and the audience clapped heartily.

"I cannot tell you how grateful I feel to this great American people," said Mrs. Pankhurst, in beginning her address, "for the sympathy which it has shown to a woman whose only claim upon it is that she is fighting as best she knows how in the cause of humanity, and is going back to England to take up the struggle again."

The address was devoted largely to a history of the conditions in England which forced the suffragettes to their militant methods. Referring to the printed accounts of scratching and biting by women, Mrs. Pankhurst said:

"My friends, that was not true. What the women have done is to tap a policeman gently on the face or to pull his coat to prevent the humiliating struggle, because it is humiliating to a woman to have a stranger's hand laid upon her."

She told of the action of the police after the demonstration in the House of Commons, when the women were chased in the streets by the police, mounted and on foot, when any woman, because she was a woman, was subject to arrest.

"Two young girls, one of them my own daughter, took refuge from the mounted police upon the hospital steps near the House of Commons, and there they were taken by the stewards of the House, like rats, by the back of the neck, and flung from the steps to the ground and were trampled upon."

Cries of "Shame! Shame!" came from voices in the audience. "The Chief of Police told a woman whom he met at a ball later, who reproached him for this treatment, that the agitation must be crushed and the women frightened. They don't know the women, my friends."

When She Goes Back to Prison.

"I feel that I am less degraded," said Mrs. Pankhurst, "in being thrown violently out of the House of Commons than I am in asking the members individually and as a favor for what they should do as a right and duty." Speaking about her case, which is being tried in England and the result of which may mean her going to prison, she said with a note of strong emotion in her voice:

"I am not very anxious about it because in a war, whether you lose one battle does not make much difference, but it is going to be an important matter for the Government. If we win there will be 500 women in position to sue the Government and to ask what is going to be done with the Prime Minister, and it will be a very difficult matter to answer at general elections. If we lose I shall go to prison, and there will be ninety women who will go with me and we shall practice the hunger strike. [Applause.]

"We shall refuse to be stripped and searched, and put on prison clothing, and we shall refuse food, and heaven pity the Government at the general elections if we should happen to die on their hands. I am well known by the working men. I belonged to the labor party for fifteen years before I began this fight. I don't think they would like me to die there, though I am perfectly willing to if it will help 'votes for women.' [Applause.]

"One thing this work has done has been to break down class distinctions, and that is worth while if we should never get the vote."

A resolution proposed by Mrs. Harriot Blatch at the close of the meeting with reference to Miss Alice Paull, the American girl now practicing the "hunger strike" in an English prison, said in the first part that if Mrs. Pankhurst was only a political prisoner and could be admitted into this country then Miss Paull was not guilty of "moral turpitude," and the United States Government should interfere in her behalf. The two closing clauses read:

> Whereas, The English Government has shown its respect for aristocracy by liberating Lady Constance Lytton, and its contempt for democracy by subjecting Miss Alice Paull for a lesser offence to mediaeval prison brutalities, be it
> Resolved, That we urge our Department of State to protest to the English Government for its discrimination against an American citizen, and call upon it to liberate a woman whose only offense was proclaiming at a public banquet "Votes for Women."

It was unanimously passed with great applause. Open-air meetings outside Cooper Union were addressed by Mrs. Helen Hoy Greeley, Miss Ida Rauch, Miss Elizabeth Cook, and Miss Mary Keegan.

MRS. BELMONT TO AID STRIKE.

Said to Want to Convert Girl Waistmakers Into Suffragists.

The Associated Shirt and Waist Manufacturers held an open meeting at the Hoffman House yesterday, where it was announced that they had agreed to break the strike of their workers for shorter hours and more pay. Several of the manufacturers reported that they had hired strikebreakers and that some of the strikers had been taken back. It was decided to ask the strikers to return on the open shop plan. The meeting then went into executive session, after which President I. B. Hyman said:

"We have decided to stand out for the open shop policy no matter how long it takes it break the strike."

Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes spoke at several meetings of the strikers yesterday, and at a meeting in a hall at 209 Second Street she advised the striking shirt waist girls not to let the winning of the strike be their ultimate aim.

"You should identify yourselves with the woman suffrage movement," she said. "It is far more important for women to have a share in the making of the laws by voting for those who make them than even the winning of this strike."

There was a report, which could not be verified, that Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont was going to identify herself in the cause of the strikers and wanted to make the women strikers suffragists. Some of the women strikers wore suffragist buttons yesterday. Solomon Schindler, the leader of the strike, would neither admit or deny that Mrs. Belmont was interesting herself in the strike.

The Central Federation Union Committee was still trying to make settlement. It was announced that about a dozen more manufacturers had granted the demands.

There were several arrests of strike pickets during the day. Sadie Levine was fined $5 by Magistrate Kernochan in Jefferson Market Court for threatening Olga Mareberg, a strikebreaker, at Broadway and Thirteenth Street. Fannie Rankie got into a row at a factory at 17 West Twenty-first Street with Jacob Stegman, manager of the place. She was discharged in court with a reprimand.

OPPOSE WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE.

REVIVES THE GLORY OF BONNIE SCOTLAND

AMERICA THEIR PURGATORY

With the skirl of the pipes and the trooping of the haggis and Harry Lauder's latest stories, the Scotchmen of St. Andrew's Society celebrated last night the feast day of their patron saint by a dinner at the Waldorf. It was the one hundred and fifty-third anniversary of the society, and with the great ram's head snuffbox displayed before the President, with heather sprigs for their buttonholes and Scotch ballads between the speeches, the members did all they could to bring back the spirit of the land of their origin.

Robert Frater Munro thanked the society for the honor of election as its President for the third year in succession, but regretted that one honorable illusion had been dispelled in the last year.

"We have learned," he said, "that after all there is one place where no Scotchman is to be found. There was not one at the north pole. If only Dr. Cook had been a Scotchman we should never have doubted that he had been there, but as neither he nor Peary say they came across one, we must conclude that there is one place where a St. Andrew's Society is not to be found."

The healths of President Taft and of King Edward were honored with cheers and bumpers, and then Andrew McLean of The Brooklyn Citizen was introduced as a Scotchman born, to reply to the toast the "Land o' Cakes." He dwelt on the difference between the Scotland before 1750, the Scotland of Bonnie Charlie, of the clansman, of the heroic age, and the Scotland since that date—the Scotland of the philosopher, of Scott and Burns.

"Scotchmen," he said, "love still the wave of the tartan and the sound of the pipes, and to dream of the days when their ancestors rode boldly to the field without thinking much of the justice of their cause, but the Scotland of to-day is concerned with much the same problems as other lands, and there is little to distinguish its people from other men save their delicate sense of humor.

"Scotland, it seems to me, bears the same relation to other lands that a great university does to the community. It is not so much to the point to say that Scotchmen have gone to the ends of the earth as to say they have gone effectively, with the spirit to do something when they got there. We can only account for this by the presence in Scotland of great educative forces, of philosophers, poets, inventors. They have educated the whole race."

Darwin P. Kingsley, President of the New York Life Insurance Company, was selected as the American to reply to the toast "The Land We Live In."

"The wording of the toast," he began, "is somewhat limiting. It is the land we live in, not 'home.' It says in effect that to the Scotchman there are but two desirable places, Scotland and Heaven. America will do as long as you never forget the Land of Cakes and the other land to which every Scotchman thinks he is headed. But perhaps of all purgatories in which Scotchmen may be forced to tarry the United States is one of the most endurable."

Mr. Kingsley went on to pay a tribute to the liberality of Andrew Carnegie and the munificence of John S. Kennedy, and pointed out that if the nationality of Scotchmen had been merged in Great Britain, it might be for the good of the world. Their national characteristics were influencing, he said, the whole world, and in the great melting pot of America they were playing a great part.

"Here," he declared, "come face to face rival schools of law, philosophy, and social theory, not in antagonism but in action and reaction. If it is true that we waste our natural resources and are mostly governed by grafters, it is also true that the rail splitter of to-day may become the President of to-morrow. It is in such conditions that the Scotchman finds what he likes. The ultimate product of the melting pot may be more Scotch than Puritan, Englishman, Jew, or Latin, but he will be more American than Scotch."

Other speakers were J. Amman Bryce, M. P.; James Hamilton Lewis of Chicago, F. Hopkinson Smith, the Rev. Dr. Anthony Evans, and Harry Lauder.

Among those present were George W. Perkins, John Claflin, Henry Phipps, John G. Milburn, James W. Alexander, A. Barton Hepburn, ex-Gov. Odell, George F. Baker, Jr., John Hays Hammond, Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission, Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards, and Justice M. Linn Bruce.

8,590 KILLED IN A YEAR.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 30.—Suicides, 1,488; homicides, 304; deaths from accidents, 6,798; total, 8,590. These are the statistics of death in New York State due to other than natural causes in the twelve months ended with October, 1909, according to the figures in the monthly bulletins of the State Health Department. October, with a record of 150, was the month with the greatest number of suicides. The lowest number, 100, was in February. November, January, and August each had a record of 109. Of the total number of suicides, 411 were by shooting and 328 by means of poison. The other methods employed were: Asphyxia, 309; hanging and strangulation, 212; drowning, 64; with sharp instruments, 92; jumping off high places, 60; by crushing, 4, and by other means, 8.

The homicides ran from 15 a month in October to 39 in November. Only two months had less than 20 and only three months more than 30 homicides.

Deaths from railroad accidents continue to head the list, with 1,052, while drownings are second with 981. Starvations are classed as accidents in the bulletin, which shows that there were 19 deaths from this cause. June had the largest number of accidents, 743, and February the least, 441. There were 156 deaths from sunstroke, the earliest being in April, when a single one was recorded. There was none in May, but June had 92, July 48, and August 20. But May had 2 of the deaths from freezing, of which there were 28 during the year. April, besides having 1 death from sunstroke, had 4 from freezing. The remainder of deaths from freezing were during the Winter months, with January leading with 7.

Sixty-three fatalities were from electric shock and 89 from gunshot wounds. The deaths from poisonous gases were 380, the largest percentage being during the cold months, when houses and factories are tightly closed. The deaths from accidental poisonings were 251, running from 12 to 24 a month. Deaths caused by horses and vehicles total 417, and are distributed quite evenly among the months. The railroad fatalities were 57 in January and 109 in July. Drownings occurred every month in the year, July, with 193, having the greatest number, and January, with 12, the least. The figures of the twelve months, compared with those for the calendar year 1908, give 106 less deaths from railroad accidents and 28 less from drowning.

ST. GABRIEL'S GOLDEN JUBILEE

Parochial School Alumni Celebrate—Archbishop Farley Honor Guest.

The alumni of St. Gabriel's Parochial School, to the number of more than 200, celebrated last night the golden jubilee of the institution, which was the first combined church and school organized in this city, by a dinner at the Hotel Marlborough.

Archbishop Farley, a former pastor of St. Gabriel's, was the guest of honor. He was accompanied by Mgr. P. J. Hayes, Chancellor of the Diocese; Mgr. James V. Lewis, secretary to the Archbishop; the Rev. William Livingston, parish priest of St. Gabriel's; the Rev. John J. Dunn, President of the Society for the Propogation of the Faith; the Rev. Leo J. Doyle, the Rev. J. G. Murray, and the Rev. Michael Larkin. Other guests were: William A. Prendergast, Controller-elect; William S. Devery, John S. Shea, Sheriff-elect, and Police Lieut. Andrew J. Devery.

UNCONSCIOUS IN THE STREET.

Dr. Elliott, Having Epilepsy, Was Locked Up, Supposed to be Drunk.

Dr. Elmore Elliott of 142 East Sixtieth Street was picked up unconscious at the corner of Eighth Street and Sixth Avenue early yesterday morning by Patrolman Kern of the Mercer Street Station. It was at first thought that he was intoxicated and he was placed in a cell in the station for three hours. When he failed to regain consciousness, Dr. McReynolds of St. Vincent's Hospital was called. At the hospital, where he was removed, it was thought that he had lost consciousness either through apoplexy or a drug.

Dr. Elliott regained consciousness in the afternoon. Last night he said he had been on his way to a patient Monday night when he was stricken with epilepsy, from which he had been a sufferer. He could remember nothing thereafter. It was said at the hospital that he would be able to leave to-day.

Capt. Fairchild in Auto Accident.

Capt. John F. Fairchild of Company H, Tenth Regiment, of Mount Vernon, and his wife were running through East Third Street, that city, in their auto last night, when it came into collision at a street corner with a market wagon owned and driven by John Traynor. Traynor was thrown from his seat and cut about the head. Capt. Fairchild had him attended by a physician and taken home. The horse had to be shot. Capt. Fairchild and his wife escaped injury.

FEAR CHILD WAS KIDNAPPED.

Second Police Alarm for Seven-Year-Old Lottie Menninger.

The police have sent out two alarms for 7-year-old Lottie Menninger of 514 West Forty-fourth Street, who disappeared from her home yesterday morning.

At first it was thought that the child had simply strayed away. Later, although the police declined to give out any information, a second alarm, this one confidential, was sent out, and it was rumored that the child had been kidnapped.

All the detectives of the West Forty-seventh Street Station were out last night searching for the child, but none would say that he thought she had been kidnappede.

14,000 Miles with the Taft "Steam Roller"

Mr. Lewis writes:

Having just gone over this first article with a pencil, as farmers go over a row of corn with a hoe, loosening up the soil of the sentences, killing the lingual weeds, I am set to marveling that I so persist in telling the truth when lying would be so much more pleasant and profitable and polite. What I've told, what I'm going to tell, will in some quarters provoke frowns. And yet all that has been or shall be set down, was what I saw and heard and thought in connection with those cross-country journeyings of Mr. Taft which I have undertaken to report.

Of all men, so it might be fancied, the President is that one of whom too much truth could not be told. This, correct in theory, breaks down under practical test. So many are partisans before they are patriots, so many are concerned for party rather than nation, that a truth as to a man or a measure which serves to hurt their cause is as sharply resented as it is sharply denied.

For myself, however, I can see no way open but to go on giving facts as I find them, let them gall whom they may. All the hard words ever flung at me were for telling the truth. The greatest compliments paid me were on what good-natured occasions I lapsed into sweetest fiction.

Not but what I can go wrong in both conclusion and discovery. I may, and honestly too, in this attempt to "travel with Taft" get things snout for tail more often than once. What then? We can't all be always right. As I have said before in the pages of Human Life, were we all to be right, and so all go one way, we'd tip the boat over. Half of us must be wrong to keep the ship in trim. I have been wrong as often as any gentleman of my acquaintance, and found it out myself. I shall decline to be discouraged, however, but continue on in the same old unpopular, unprofitable, impolite way of truth, and face the natural chances which menace all veracities. Being born into the port watch I might as well stay there. And this I repeat, with rich, successful liars all about me.

President Taft covered 14,000 miles in his swing around the circle. He didn't do it for comfort or fun. It was no picnic. It was a purpose. 14,000 mile trips don't just happen to happen. It was a plan to get steam up in the "road roller"—to wave the red flag at the timid—to chase off the doubtful—run over or flatten out people who can't be enthusiastic over the way things have been going on in Washington.

Roosevelt Against Taft

Mr. Lewis will tell how Mr. Taft offended the jealous Roosevelt by his friendly confabs with Speaker Cannon, and his tariff talk with Aldrich before Mr. Roosevelt had left Washington. The Roosevelt anger hurled at Mr. Taft has taught him the need of a personal machine in 1912. He fears the Roosevelt influence, the Roosevelt interference.

Business and Buncombe
Money, Mormonism, and Votes all the time

Mr. Lewis will draw a pen picture of the interior and exterior of the machine, and show you how it is expected to work. He will take you with him on the trip and let you see how the president "took." He will relate how Mr. Taft made a hit in Wisconsin by declaring for Postal Savings Banks, only to blunder in Minnesota by a defense of Mr. Tawney and the Aldrich tariff, which drew every income tax insurgent horn his way. Particularly will Mr. Lewis give the story of how, in Provo and Salt Lake City, Mr. Taft went over to the Mormons, how he was presented to two of Prophet Smith's wives while Gentiles raved, and how he was finally assured that as against Roosevelt or any one else, he would be given the solid Mormon support.

And how his proposal to govern Alaska as in the Philippines was widely denounced as the initial move in the intrigue to give Alaska to the Guggenheims.

Throughout the trip Mr. Lewis will give all the humorous sidelights, the fun and misadventures as well as the serious, important, history-making episodes. Every citizen, regardless of politics, will find entertainment, interest and food for thought.

MANY DEBUTANTES AT JUNIOR COTILLION

SUPPER IN THE BALLROOM

The Junior Cotillion, the first of the season's dances, was held yesterday evening at Sherry's, and as usual brought out a large number of débutantes. Many dinners preceded the dance, among the hostesses of which were Mrs. Joseph F. Stillman, Mrs. Lindley Hoffman Chapin, Mrs. Thomas Barber, Mrs. Henry S. Glover, Mrs. James May Duane, Mrs. George G. Haven, and Mrs. Daniel C. French.

Mrs. Dallas Bache Pratt, who in the absence of Mrs. Arthur Murray Dodge, always has charge of these dances, was unable on account of mourning to be present with the other receiving patronesses.

The guests, who began arriving at about 9 o'clock, were received by Mrs. Henry A. Alexander, Mrs. Archibald Rogers, Mrs. Henry Emmet, and Mrs. J. Vinton Greene at the entrance to the ballroom, which was decorated with palms.

Stowe Phelps led the cotillion, which began shortly before 10 o'clock, dancing with Miss Eleanor Livingston Burrell. The favors were picture frames for the men and small painted mirrors for the girls.

At midnight there was a seated supper at some thirty small tables in the small ballroom. These were decorated with pink roses and carnations. The Hungarian orchestra played throughout the evening.

The patronesses of the Junior Cotillion this Winter are Mrs. Ada Phipps, Mrs. Edward D. Adams, Mrs. Henry A. Alexander, Mrs. John E. Alexandre, Mrs. J. Turner Atterbury, Mrs. Thomas H. Barber, Mrs. William B. Beekman, Mrs. S. R. Bertrom, Mrs. W. Rossiter Betts, Mrs. Gorham Bacob, Mrs. James Brown, Mrs. Winthrop Burr, Mrs. Edward Livingston Burrell, Mrs. Lindley Hoffman Chapin, Mrs. D. Crawford Clark, Mrs. Henry E. WANT THE HOCKING TO PAY.

Kanawha & Michigan Stockholders in Merger Going Into Court.

The minority stockholders of the Kanawha & Michigan, who for three years have been seeking dividends on their stock, control of which is exercised by the Hocking Valley, may take steps, it was learned yesterday, to bring their case into court. The minority stockholders were recently asked in a circular issued by their committee, headed by George D. Mackay, to contribute $1 a share to establish a fund with which to meet legal expenses in such a fight. At the same time the committee sent a request to the Hocking Valley Railway asking what it was prepared to do to in the way of helping the minority to some return on their investment.

Under the terms of the merger of the two roads, which was planned three years ago, but has been held up by litigation by the State of Ohio against the Hocking Valley, the Kanawha & Michigan minority stockholders would have received by this time in the aggregate about 7 per cent. in dividends, but they have received nothing. The Hocking Valley has made no response so far to the request that it define its position.

HANDCUFFED THE FRESHMEN.

Sophomores Capture Ten Men on the Way to College Dinner.

The freshmen of New York University got rather the better of their natural enemies, the sophomores, yesterday. First they beat them in football 6 to 0, and then by a ruse ran off their class dinner in such a way that only ten of their number were forcibly detained from coming. These ten were roped up in a barn on University Heights, and three more went to the dinner in handcuffs.

But the sophomores say the freshmen did not play fair, for they should have held the dinner by the rules of tradition within the Boroughs of Manhattan or the Bronx. As a matter of fact, they held it in the Elks Hall in Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn.

As soon as the umpire's whistle blew to signal the end of the game the freshmen began to "beat it" for the Subway. The sophomores, smarting under defeat, interfered as much as they could. Scrimmages followed. Many freshmen were captured, but all but ten broke away. These ten spent most of the night in the barn on University Heights.

The sophs followed the freshmen into the Subway to a considerable number, and both classes cheered back and forth on the ride to Brooklyn. At Borough Hall taxicabs were awaiting the freshmen. Two sophomores managed to cling to the back of one of these unobserved, so that they found where the dinner was. They straightway telephoned back to some of their colleagues, and that soon brought about seventy more—as many as there were freshmen within the hall. They brought with them three freshmen in handcuffs, captured at the Heights. They found before the doors of the hall two policemen, for the freshmen, fearing they might have been followed, had notified the police of probable trouble.

The sophs tried to beguile the police with offers of wine and other luxuries, but it was no good. They were immovable. So then the sophomores sent into the banquet hall one of their prisoners, Peter White of 239 West 105th Street, with his handcuffs and all—just to show what they would like to do with all freshmen. White's friends managed to break the chain that held the handcuffs, but could not unlock them. Neither could they do this at Police Headquarters, Brooklyn, whither White, seeking relief, went when the dinner had successfully ended, for finally the sophomores, seeing all was in vain, disbanded. This matter will figure somewhat in the award of "the bun"—a silver casket awarded by every class that graduates with it to the class it deems most popular. The senior class has it now.

RESOURCES OF ALL OUR BANKS

The special reports of the banking resources of the United States compiled for the use of the National Monetary Commission were submitted in summary form to the Economic Club at its meeting on Monday evening by United States Senator Nelson W. Aldrich, Chairman of the commission, who authorized the publication of the figures. They are made up as of April 21 last, and comprise the returns from 22,491 National, State, and private banks, including savings banks, loan companies, and trust companies. The total resources are $21,095,054,420.

The capital stock of these institutions represents a total of $1,800,000,000 in round numbers, and they have surplus to the amount of $1,326,000,000 in addition to $508,000,000 of undivided profits. Individual deposits subject to check stand at the large total of $6,956,000,000, and savings deposits at $4,926,000,000. The amount due National banks is $1,103,000,000, and due to other banking institutions $1,380,000,000.

Bond holdings by these institutions are $792,000,000 of United States bonds, $1,091,000,000 of State, county, and municipal bonds, $1,560,000,000 of railroad bonds, $846,000,000 of other bonds, and $280,000,000 of stocks.

Loans and discounts include $660,000,000 of demand loans not secured by collateral, $1,939,000,000 demand loans secured by collateral, $2,539,000,000 time loans on two or more names not secured by collateral, $1,351,000,000 single name paper, $2,036,000,000 time loans secured by collateral, and $1,396,000,000 of other loans, including those secured by real estate.

Actual cash held by the banks amounts to $1,451,000,000, and checks and other cash items to an additional $57,000,000, in addition to which the National banks had $38,000,000 cash in the 5 per cent. redemption fund.

WHITEMAN STAYS IN PRISON.

The Convicted Swindler Not Eligible to Parole Under a New Ruling.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 30.—Alonzo J. Whiteman, who was sentenced to State prison from Erie County in December, 1905, for a term of eight years and five months for obtaining money under false pretenses, must serve out his sentence under a ruling announced to-night by Attorney General O'Malley.

A statute enacted by the last Legislature makes all first offenders eligible to patrole when they have served half of their sentences if committed for a definite period. Whiteman, the Attorney General finds, entered a plea of guilty in Massachusetts in 1901 and was placed upon probation. Mr. O'Malley holds that such disposition of the case, based upon the defendant's plea of guilty, amounted to a conviction, and that, therefore, Whiteman is not a first offender.

The State prison department has been so notified.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 30.—Alonzo J. Whiteman has had a varied career. He was born in Danville, N. Y., is a graduate of Hamilton College, was a member of the Minnesota Legislature at 24, was once Mayor of Duluth, where he was President of two banks, and owned two newspapers, and was a Democratic National Committeeman. His fortune, left him by his father, was estimated at $2,000,000.

To his defeat for Congress was attributed his downfall, and he became a gambler. His fortune disappeared, and it was alleged he forged checks.

LOIE FULLER SHOWS HER DANCING GIRLS

Rita Sacchetto Achieves a Remarkably Novel Effect—Thirty Young Women Appear in Fire Ballet.

Miss Loie Fuller, known in Paris as La Loie, returned to dance in New York yesterday at the Metropolitan Opera House after several years' absence. Miss Fuller, it will be remembered, invented the serpentine dance, and devised light effects to simulate fire and other natural phenomena. It was in dances which employed manifold draperies and numberless colored lights that the dancer was formerly seen here. Since then, however, Isadora Duncan and Maud Allan have revived the Greek dance, at least their own idea of the Greek dance, and Miss Fuller's performance yesterday afternoon included examples of these latter-day conceptions as well as many of her own earlier ideas.

For the first time that she has been seen here she was surrounded by a group of dancers, a complete ballet, in fact. Added to these were several solo dancers, many of whom have achieved Continental fame quite independently of Miss Fuller, but who have joined her company for this American tour. The programme, therefore, presented a varied aspect.

Miss Fuller and her muses were seen at the beginning in an interpretation of the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria." Following this Orchidee, an American girl, who is young and beautiful, danced to a prelude of Chopin in Greek costume and with bare legs. Orchidee was later seen in a "Diana Dance," which was most effective, and an interpretation of Mozart's "Turkish March."

Mme. Thamara de Swirsky, a Russian dancer with quite another style but the same sort of costume, followed. Mme. de Swirsky makes a more sensuous appeal than most dancers of the classic type. Miss Irene Sanden, a German girl, who is said to find her chief joy in dancing waltzes, followed in a waltz of Rubinstein and Strauss's "Roses from the South."

The second part of the programme was in many ways the best part of the afternoon's entertainment. Miss Rita Sacchetto, who is well known in Europe, danced a dance of madness to Chopin's Tarantelle. The explanation of this dance is that a maiden who has been stung by a deadly spider can save her life only by mad dancing. The tempo increases with such intensity that the dancer breaks down, completely exhausted, only to rise again to intensified emotion.

Miss Sacchetto achieved a remarkably novel effect in this dance and succeeded in working the audience up to a high degree of enthusiasm. Many doubtless wished that they could see her do her Spanish dances.

Miss Gertrude Van Axen, who shared this portion of the programme with Miss Sacchetto, was seen in Greek dances, into the scheme of which she fitted perfectly. Her figure is beautifully modeled and she is marvelously plastic.

The entertainment concluded with the Ballet of Light, in which the older ideas of Miss Fuller were incorporated and manifolded. If you have seen Miss Fuller do her fire dance in which the draperies take on the color and texture of flames, conceive of it done by thirty young women at once and you will have a picture of the Ballet of Light. Other dances of Miss Fuller's were manifolded in this same way, and the programme closed with the appearance of Miss Fuller herself.

A very large audience, which included many notable people, was in attendance, and the entertainment seemed to meet with approval. The Metropolitan Opera House orchestra, under the direction of Max Bendix, furnished the music.

NEW ISSUE OF NORTHWESTERN

Possible Rights at Par for a Total of $30,502,800.

The Chicago & Northwestern, it was announced yesterday in dispatches from Lansing, has received permission from the Michigan Railroad Commission to issue $30,502,800 new stock. This foreshadows an issue of new stock by the Northwestern to the extent of 25 per cent. of the outstanding stock, there being now a little over $122,000,000 of stock of the road outstanding. Wall Street expects that this stock will be offered to the present shareholders, probably at par. It was understood in the financial district that an announcement by the road will be made whenever permission to put out this new stock is obtained from the other States besides Michigan to which the Northwestern must apply.

The proceeds of this new issue will be used principally, it is expected, for the construction of additional branch lines, and perhaps for pushing the line westward from its present terminus in Wyoming. It has lately been denied, however, that the Northwestern proposes to build an extension to the Pacific Coast.

The issuance of this amount of new stock at par would give valuable subscription rights to the stockholders. The new stock will be common, and this issue sold yesterday at 179. It is paying 7 per cent. dividends and earning considerably more than that rate.

WHAT CONGRESS SHOULD DO.

The National City Bank, dealing in its December circular with questions which call for attention by Congress at the session about to open, points out that the protection of the outstanding 2 per cent. Government bonds as a medium of circulation is of primary importance.

Attention is drawn also to the need of making some fresh provision for the tax on circulation, which may be secured by the authorized 3 per cent. bonds which were provided for in the tariff act. Unless the tax on these bonds when used for circulation is raised above 1 per cent. the holders of the 2s would be placed at a decided disadvantage, as these low interest bearing bonds would be pretty sure to suffer considerable depreciation. The circular suggests that the situation may be met by Congress putting a tax of 1½ per cent. on all circulation taken out against any 3 per cent. bonds not now pledged as security for circulation.

Dealing with the outlook for the Government's revenues with special reference to the corporation tax the circular says:

> The long future is rather bright so far as the aggregate of revenues is concerned. It is confidently expected that the corporation tax will add on June 30 next somewhere in the neighborhood of $27,000,000 to the Treasury. This is regarded by some competent authorities as an under estimate, and the result may be much larger. The corporation tax will be assessed on the business of the calendar year to end Dec. 31, 1909. Returns are to be made to Collectors of Internal Revenue by March 10, 1910, and the tax paid June 30, 1910.

Regarding the Philippine situation the City Bank says that, for the first time since American occupation of the Philippine Islands, the conservative observers see commercial prosperity and advancement in sight.

More Gold to South America.

Further arrangements were made yesterday for the shipment of gold to South America. Goldman, Sachs & Co. announced the engagement of $250,000 to be shipped to Argentina and $250,000 to go to Brazil. The National City Bank has engaged $600,000 additional gold for export to Argentina, and another shipment of $500,000 to that country will be made by the Merchants' National Bank.

TELLS HOW MOTHER KILLED HIS FATHER

UNTERMYER RAPS JEROME

Samuel Untermyer, acting as counsel for Mrs. Augusta Crisani, the poor Italian woman who is on trial for the murder of her husband, in a quarrel in their flat at 171 Avenue A last August, began her defense yesterday, with the same energy which marked his examination of talesmen regarding her plea of self-defense on the day before. He wound up with a sharp criticism of the methods employed in the District Attorney's office and, taking advantage of a loop-hole offered by Assistant District Attorney Nott, read into the evidence parts of the correspondence between himself and Mr. Jerome when he was preparing the case.

The twelfth juror was selected a little before noon, and the prosecution began by calling as a witness Alfred Crisani, the eldest of the woman's four children. He is a dark, keen-eyed boy of 17, and gave a graphic description of the long series of quarrels which ended in the tragedy.

On the morning of Aug. 18, he was still in bed in the front of the little three-room flat when he heard the discord from the rear, where his father was demanding the chamber of his revolver. The mother had taken the precaution to hide it, but under his threats gave it back. The father then ran to the front room and got his revolver from the mantel shelf. Turning on his wife, who had followed him, he exclaimed:

"Now, I've got you!"

"Then I jumped out of bed," said the boy, growing excited with his recollections, and speaking in the soft burr of his native tongue, "and caught his arm and held it behind him. It all happened like a flash. Mother ran out of the room, and when she came back, she struck him with the knife. He fell back into my arms, and she dropped to the bed, sobbing. 'What have you done?' I asked her, and she cried out, 'If I had not stabbed him, he would have killed me.'"

The prosecution contends that the stabbing was not necessary for self-defense, in that the woman, running for the knife, had to pass through a room which opened into the hallway. In response to this, Mr. Untermyer drew from the boy the fact that his mother was barefooted and scantily clad, and that the outer door was not only locked but the key hanging on the wall.

As the boy started to leave the stand, Mr. Nott held him with a question.

"How often have you seen Mr. Untermyer since you were released from the House of Detention?" he asked. The witness thought it must have been six times.

"And who bailed you out of the house?" asked Mr. Nott.

"Mr. Untermyer," was the response.

"That is all," said Mr. Nott, dismissing him.

"That is not all," cried Mr. Untermyer, leaping to his feet. "Why was he placed in the house at all? I had to bail him out because there was no other way that I could talk to him; I, the counsel for his mother, and he, the most important witness of the crime with which she is charged. And in support of this let me read the correspondence I had with Mr. Jerome."

Mr. Untermyer then read his first letter to Mr. Jerome, in which he complained of being unable to see the witnesses, and contended that they were witnesses for the prosecution only in the sense that the prosecution had locked them up. He then proceeded to the second.

"There was no answer," said Mr. Untermyer. "We had to write twice before we received any attention."

By the second letter, Mr. Untermyer had received round-about permission to see the witness in the presence of an officer. The lawyer's letter read:

> If every person who happens to be so unfortunate as to witness a crime, and who is unable to furnish bail for his appearance, is to be deprived of his living and put under lock and key, it is about time that the Bar and the public should know that this is the way in which the criminal law is being administered.
> I would like also to know how it is going to be possible for this poor woman without friends or money to defend herself if her counsel is denied access to the witnesses on whom she relies to establish a defense. I had supposed that it was a part of the duty of the public prosecutor to lend every reasonable assistance to the preparation of the defense of a prisoner.
> The attitude which I am told is taken by your office is so repulsive to one's sense of justice that I am unwilling to believe you have sanctioned any such course, without written confirmation. If your attitude be as represented I shall consider it my duty to bring the subject to the attention of the Court, so that if there be any such barbarous and inhuman rule as has been indicated, it may be promptly rescinded.

In his answer, dated Oct. 11, 1909, Mr. Jerome wrote:

> I know of no practice, either in the civil or criminal law, whereby counsel for one party to a litigation can with propriety be called upon to submit his witnesses to an exparte examination by counsel for the other side, and so far as my consent is a factor in the matter I cannot consent to such a course.

This was Mr. Untermyer's answer, written two days later:

> When we subsequently complained to your office we were definitely informed that the qualified permission to confer with the witnesses had been withdrawn, and that we would not be permitted to see them under any conditions. The suggestion by the Prosecuting Attorney that a prisoner charged with murder in the first degree cannot through her counsel, be permitted to confer with her son, who was present at the occurrence, is too extraordinary and untenable to require comment.
> I cannot for a moment assent to your contention that because you see fit to take poor and helpless witnesses who are not vagrants, but are earning their living and lock them up, we must get your permission before we can approach them, however willing they may be to confer with us, and however necessary their testimony may be to our client.

"And that," said Mr. Untermyer, as he finished reading, "is why I furnished the bail for the two witnesses."

The case will continue to-day.

AS CONGRESSMEN SEE CANAL.

Committee on Appropriations Pleased with Progress in Panama.

The Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives, headed by its Chairman, Congressman James A. Tawney of Minnesota, arrived here yesterday on the Panama liner Cristobal after a month's stay on the Isthmus. In addition to Mr. Tawney, those in the party were Congressmen H. H. Bingham and A. J. Barchfield of Pennsylvania, E. J. Bowers of Mississippi, J. J. Fitzgerald of New York, Washington Gardner of Michigan, J. W. Keifer of Ohio, J. V. Graff of Illinois, and Swager Sherley of Kentucky. Other members of the committee returned previously, most of them by way of New Orleans.

Every member of the party that got in yesterday was enthusiastic for the canal, and one and all agreed that the work was progressing in splendid fashion, and there was every reason to believe that the great waterway between the two oceans would be completed on schedule time and within the appropriation asked for the work. That Col. Goethals and his assistants of the Army Engineering Corps are making wonderful progress was the consensus of opinion among the Congressmen.

"The canal is fine," said Chairman Tawney, "and will be finished by 1915, on schedule time. We have had a most instructive trip and have had a splendid opportunity to witness the progress of the great work at close range."

Congressman Graff has visited the canal on several previous occasions, and was one of the Congressmen who accompanied Col. Goethals when he went to the Isthmus two years ago to take charge of the construction of the canal.

"The work," said Mr. Graff, "is progressing splendidly, and I was greatly impressed with the spirit of enthusiasm of everybody concerned, particularly the American employes of the commission. The work shows a marked improvement everywhere, particularly in the Culebra Cut Division and at the dam on the Atlantic side at Gatun. The foundations for the two locks that are to be on the Pacific side at Miraflores are also under way."

It was said yesterday by a member of the Congressional party that the money asked for by Col. Goethals for the canal work in the coming year would undoubtedly be voted by the committee.

None of the Congressmen who arrived yesterday would talk about the trouble in Nicaragua. They all professed ignorance of the happenings in Zelaya's country. The Isthmian newspapers brought by some of the passengers, however, said that Zelaya's forces were deserting him in large numbers, and that the revolutionists were continually strengthening their positions.

TRUST ICE FOR INDEPENDENTS

Several employes of the American Ice Company were called as witnesses for the defense yesterday in the trial of that corporation before Supreme Court Justice Wheeler for violation of the Anti-Trust act. They said that the American concern supplied many independents with ice, but their testimony was somewhat crippled on cross-examination by their admission that they could not tell an independent from a branch company of the parent corporation.

John A. McCarthy, an independent wholesale ice dealed, met with the same difficulty. He said he was in keen competition with the American, and denied ever having had a defensive and offensive alliance with the ice trust. Prosecutor Osborne then refreshed his memory with a letter in which he had complained to American headquarters that some of his customers were being taken away from him, and McCarthy admitted that there must have been some agreement between them. He told of the various meetings of independents to control the price of ice.

"You could throw a stone anywhere at a meeting of independents and you'd be pretty sure to hit an American representative," said McCarthy. "There were only three or four that you could be sure were real independents."

The next witness, William C. Bryant, was Secretary and Treasurer of the Continental Hygeia Ice Company when it went into bankruptcy. He told of having interviewed President Oler in an attempt to persuade the American to follow the Continental's lead in raising the price of ice. Mr. Oler, he said, met the overtures with an indignant refusal, and declared that any increased profits must come from increased economy in harvesting.

On cross-examination the witness said that he had warned Mr. Oler that his refusal would mean bankruptcy for the Continental and that this prophecy had been fulfilled forty days later. It is expected that Mr. Oler will be called to the stand this afternoon.

SUES INVALID HUSBAND.

Wife Seeks Divorce Because Schultz Misled Her as to His Health.

Because, as she alleges, her husband assured her before they were married on Jan. 6 that he was not suffering from heart disease and was not subject to fits, although she had received anonymous letters to that effect, and it was later shown that he had not told the truth in this respect, Mrs. Lena K. Schultz is suing Morris Schultz for divorce in Newark.

Mrs. Schultz, who separted from her husband on St. Patrick's day, said yesterday that a short time before her marriage she received an anonymous letter saying that her fiancé suffered from organice heart trouble and was subject to spells of unconsciousness as a result of this. He replied, she said, that it was untrue, and that he had never paid a doctor's bill in his life. She further alleged that she found that he breathed with difficulty, and on investigating learned that he had been under the care of a physician for the last five years. She did not make these inquiries until after she had been married for a time.

The matter came up before Vice Chancellor Stevens yesterday, when counsel for Schultz asked that the bill filed by Mrs. Schultz be dismissed. The request was denied, but the defendant was granted the right to present the request in a different form.

EASTERN ANTIQUITIES SALE.

At the Khayat sale of Eastern antiquities at the Fifth Avenue Art Galleries yesterday afternoon H. O. Watson paid $105 for a small Greek urn from Tarsus and W. Patterson $100 for a large Rekka pottery pitcher.

Mrs. M. H. De Young of San Francisco purchased several pieces of iridescent glass to add to the San Francisco Art Museum collection.

George Pratt bought for Pratt Institute a large Greek amphora of the third century B. C., a double unguentarium inlaid with blue and with blue iridescence, two Phoenician perfume bottles with blue and silver iridescence, and other pieces of Greek glass. T. E. H. Curtis of Plainfield, N. J., purchased a rare bronze figure of Phoenician god Baal, found at Irbid, Syria; a beautiful Rekka pitcher in blue and white, and many other choice specimens.

Other purchasers were Mrs. A. P. Draper, Carl H. De Silva and Col. Robert B. Woodward, Vice Presidents of the Brooklyn Museum; L. G. Gans of Philadelphia, E. J. Benjamin, Burton Mansfield, Joseph S. Garcia, F. Ferre, Italian Consul at Minneapolis; Edward T. Newell, A. Douglas Miller, Robert S. Chapin, and Mrs. A. A. Andrean.

The sale will be concluded this afternoon.

MURDERS HIS WIFE, BEATS HER MOTHER

SLAYER ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Brother-in-Law Who Grappled With Him Is Forced to Take Refuge in Flight.

Patrick H. Rafferty, a giant of a man, with shoulders nearly three feet wide, murdered his wife about midnight on Monday, and early yesterday morning attacked his mother-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Kelly, in her home at 1,832 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, beating her into insensibility with an exe helve. He was only prevented from killing her by another brother-in-law, Frank Ohland, who in a desperate struggle with Rafferty was himself slightly injured.

With his wife dead in the front bedroom of the house, his mother-in-law apparently dying, and a witness to part at least of the tragedy hastening to notify the police, Rafferty sat down and slashed his own throat with a razor, but the wound was slight.

Rafferty, who was crazed with drink and far more powerful than Ohland, seemed on the point of gaining the mastery when Ohland fled from the house and brought back the police. Rafferty is now a prisoner in the Brooklyn Police Headquarters, seemingly dazed at times and quie unconscious of what he had done, but recovering at intervals and declaring that he is glad he killed his wife and only sorry he was frustrated in his attempt to kill his mother-in-law, whom he blames for his marital troubles, which began shortly after his marriage four years ago.

Rafferty was formerly a contractor in a small way. He would occasionally get contracts for brick work and would hire a few men to do the job for him. For awhile he lived at the home of his mother-in-law, but was of a very quarrelsome disposition, and there was frequent trouble between Rafferty and his wife. In these Mrs. Kelly always took the side of her daughter.

The quarreling reached such a stage last Summer that Rafferty left the house and did not return. He was not seen again in the neighborhood until last Wednesday evening, when Ohland ran across him in a saloon.

"Look here, Rafferty," said Ohland, "Come on home with me. Make up with your wife and we will all have a fine Thanksgiving dinner to-morrow."

After a little persuasion Rafferty consented to return. There was a warrant out for his arrest, charging him with non-support, but Ohland told him it would be all right and he would see to it that Mrs. Rafferty did not have him arrested. So on Thanksgiving Eve there was an apparent reconciliation.

The Kelly home is on the second floor of 1,832 Fulton Street, and the sleeping quarters are cramped. Ohland offered to sleep on a couch in the sitting room, giving up his front bedroom to Rafferty. Ohland's son, Frank, slept with his grandmother, Mrs. Kelly, in the bedroom adjoining that which had been given to Rafferty.

The Thanksgiving dinner was not the success Ohland had anticipated. Rafferty began to quarrel with Mrs. Kelly, and Ohland reprimanded him sharply.

"If you can't live here without fighting you had better get out," he said to the former contractor. Rafferty said nothing more at the time.

Ohland spent the evening at the home of his fiancée on Monday. He got home about 12:30 o'clock yesterday morning. He was preparing for bed when his son, Frank, a lad of 9 years, burst into the sitting room and cried out:

"Grandmother is being killed!"

Through the open door Ohland heard Mrs. Kelly moaning: "Help! help! He is killing me!"

Ohland reached Mrs. Kelly's room at one bound. She was lying on the floor by the bed and over her stood Rafferty with the axe helve. He had the crude weapon raised above his head for another blow when Ohland grappled with him. In the struggle which followed several of Ohland's fingers were badly bruised, for once the axe helve came down upon his hand. Finding at last that he was no match for his big brother-in-law, Ohland fled, followed by his son. Over a near-by telephone he called for the police, and soon Acting Capt. Woods and several reserves from the Atlantic Avenue Station had reached the house. Mrs. Kelly was unconscious when they got there. They found Rafferty sitting in a chair a few feet away, his head bowed low. On the floor near him was the razor with which he had slashed his own throat. But the wound was not deep and he was in no danger.

An ambulance took Mrs. Kelly to St. John's Hospital, and later, on recovering consciousness, she told the story of what had occurred in the house prior to the arrival of Ohland.

In the front bedroom the police found Mrs. Rafferty dead on the bed. Her throat was cut from ear to ear. Rafferty had used his razor to kill his wife.

REPUDIATES RABBI MEETING.

Dr. Mendes Says Conference Couldn't Speak for Judaism.

The Executive Committee of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of the United States and Canada, of which the Rev. Dr. H. Pereira Mendes, rabbi of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, at Central Park West and Seventieth Street, is President, at a meeting held in Dr. Mendes's study at the synagogue last night repudiated the deliberations of the Jewish Conference, held in this city last week. Dr. Mendes, on behalf of the Executive Committee, issued this statement:

"While repudiating the authority of the 'Conference of American Rabbis' to speak for Judaism, we consider that the publicity given to its recent deliberations in New York City demands a reply in the name of traditional Judaism.

"Matters affecting Judaism as a whole can be legislated upon only by an assembly which fulfils the requirements indicated in Holy Writ, that is to say, 'Elders,' (Numbers XI., 16,) 'Able men, God-fearing men, men of truth, haling profit,' (Exod. XVIII., 21;) 'Wise men, men of understanding, men of ascertained reputation,' (Deut. I., 13.) Or, to state this in present day rabbinical terms, the members of a rabbinical conference must be men who by virtue of profound and thorough acquaintance with Biblical and talmudic and rabbinical codes, and by virtue of earnest and sincere piety in the traditional and historical sense, are intellectually and spiritually qualified to interpret and expound the law and universal Jewry.

"And even a conference thus qualified has no power to abrogate any commandment of the divine law, or any practice enjoined by it. In a Jewish assembly the abrogation of divine precepts does not admit even of discussion.

"Therefore, such questions as Sabbath transference to Sunday, mooted at a former conference, or intermarriage, mooted at this latest conference, cannot be even considered at any Jewish convention. And certainly not at a 'conference of American rabbis,' representing, as this docs, only a small section of American Judaism called American reform, which differs from European reform Judaism, and differs totally from Orthodox Judaism in all countries. There is but one historical Judaism."

MISSING TAXICAB WRECKED.

Disappeared While Chauffeur Was at Dinner—Girl Passenger Hurt.

James Keating, a chauffeur for the New York Taxicab Company, stopped at his home, 103 King Street, last night, for dinner, leaving the taxicab he was driving in front of the house. When he came out a half hour later the machine was gone. Keating hunted through the block and then went to the MacDougal and the Charles Street Stations. As he was reporting his loss in the latter place, Patrolman William Brazier entered to report that he had found a wrecked taxicab, 48,149, at Morton and West Streets.

In the taxicab the policeman said he found a small silver purse containing a letter addressed to Miss Josephine Condon, 65 Downing Street. The machine, Brazier said, had hit a fire hydrant.

Detective Fitzpatrick of the MacDougal Street Station went to the Downing Street address and found a middle-aged woman living there on the second floor. She said she had a grand-niece named Josephine Condon, who worked in an ink factory in Grand Street. She had left home at 7 o'clock in the evening, and shortly after word had come that she had been taken to the home of a Mrs. Hamilton in West Tenth Street, suffering from cuts and bruises, which she had received in an automobile accident.

Policeman Brazier said that when he came across the wrecked machine in West Street a bystander told him a man dressed in a light suit and a black derby and a young woman jumped out of the taxicab and hurried away. The police are still investigating.

WORK OF THE BLIND ON SALE.

Macy & Co. Open a Department to Aid Those Without Sight.

R. H. Macy & Co. yesterday opened a department for the sale of goods made by the blind. The Ziegler Magazine for the Blind receives all of the goods that the blind send in and lists and tags them, and forwards them to Macy's. There is every variety of article, from booties, mittens, and baby sacks to rugs and hammocks. About twenty rugs were sent from the Clovernook Home for the Blind in Cincinnati. This home stands in what was the girlhood home of Alice and Phoebe Cary. It is now a working home where fifteen blind girls are cared for and do all kinds of fancy work. A blind man from Boston contributed a lot of fancy baskets. A blind girl from Canada sent forty table mats, and another girl from Duluth, Minn., a dozen sets of table mats. There is no end to crochet and knit work, several shipments coming from the Pacific Coast.

There are a number of hammocks, from dolls' to men's sizes. From Philadelphia came a roll of forty yards of rag carpet.

TIMOTHY P. SULLIVAN BACK.

Friends Deny Disquieting Reports as to Alderman's Health.

Alderman Timothy P. Sullivan has returned to town from Hot Springs, Va., and those of his friends who have seen and talked with him are greatly encouraged over the condition of his health.

President McGowan of the Aldermen, who lives in the next house to Mr. Sullivan in East Twelfth Street, said yesterday that he had not yet seen the Vice Chairman, but as far as he knew Mr. Sullivan was in shape to attend to the business of the Sinking Fund Commission which called him back to the city. The meeting is scheduled for to-morrow.

"Little Tim" did not appear at the meeting of the Aldremen yesterday, but several of the members said they had seen him about the district, and that he appeared about the same as when he was in town at election time. Dispatches from Hot Springs had aroused fears that he was a great deal worse.

EXPRESS TRAFFIC HEAVY.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 30.—The Adams Express Company has shown to the Pennsylvania Railroad that the amount of business being done even now is in excess of that done the week immediately preceding Christmas, 1907, which was the banner week in Christmas deliveries for decades. The railroad began preparations to-day for taking care of the holiday trade, which is expected to break all records.

The express management met the railroad officials yesterday, when reports from all points on the Pennsylvania system were submitted, and it was announced from the railroad officials here to-day that twenty-five new express trains would be put on the different lines at the end of this week. They are to run daily until after the holiday rush.

The Pennsylvania finds itself in poor shape to take care of the unexpected express rush, as its cars are not all in shape for the road. Orders were sent out last night to hasten the work of repair on all express cars, so they could be put into commission as early as possible. In the Pittsburg district the men are working overtime to repair cars for the rush of holiday gifts.

Denies He Theorized on Steinheil Murder.

Alfred Partridge Klots, the American artist, who returned to this country from Paris on Monday, telephoned yesterday to his counsel, Brower & Stout of this city, that he was surprised to see himself quoted in the newspapers as saying that he believed the real slayer of Steinheil was Grand Duke Alexis, uncle of the Czar. Mr. Klots asserted that he never even discussed the Steinheil case with reporters when he arrived here, and knows nothing of it. He is soon to go to Russia, and for that reason was the more concerned about the report with which his name was linked.

Bay Side Review in Receiver's Hands.

Walter B. Atterbury was appointed yesterday by United States Judge Chatfield in Brooklyn as receiver of The Bay Side Review Company, on the application of Lucy C. Kelley and other creditors. The Bay Side Review has been published as a local newspaper at Bath Beach for about ten years. Edward Stratton, Jr., is the President and General Manager of the company.

Those Tax Board Judgments.

No little curiosity was aroused by the appearance of the names of all the Commissioners of the Department of Taxes and Assessments as judgment debtors in the list of recorded judgments published on Nov. 25. Judgments were recovered in favor of two prominent banks of this city, $328 in the case of one and $332 in the case of the other, against each member of the board. The explanation is simple. The finding of these judgments has no relation whatever to the personal credit or responsibility of the Commissioners. The judgments were really obtained against the city, but, in cases of this nature, they were entered against the members of the Tax Board individually.

Coffee to Postum.

The large army of persons who have found relief from many chronic ailments by changing from coffee to Postum as a daily beverage is growing each day.

It is only a simple question of trying it for oneself in order to know the joy of returning health as realized by an Ills. young lady. She writes:

"I had been a coffee drinker nearly all my life and it affected my stomach—caused insomnia and I was seldom without a headache. I had heard about Postum and how beneficial it was, so concluded to quit coffee and try it.

"I was delighted with the change. I can now sleep well and seldom ever have headache. My stomach has gotten strong and I can eat without suffering afterwards. I think my whole system greatly benefited by Postum.

"My brother also suffered from stomach trouble while he drank coffee, but now, since using Postum he feels so much better he would not go back to coffee for anything."

RICH FRIENDS AID MYSTERY PRISONER

POLITICAL HELP PROBABLE

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 30.—It isn't often that a man held as a pickpocket has friends who are able and willing to put up $25,000 cash to secure his release on bail. Such a man, however, has held the centre of interest here for the past week, and, although $10,000 was the price paid to secure his liberty, the State might as well have had $25,000, as the man's friends, who conceal their identity, admitted. The man, who is known as Joseph Stevens, alias "Red" Murray, alias Frank Flood, is said to have "had something on" somebody high up in New York political circles, hence the desire to obtain his freedom. With this rumor another circulated to the effect that the New Yorker who appeared here was a saloon keeper in New York politics.

It has been impossible to verify these reports, as no one in this city, with the possible exception of Joseph L. Barbour, the lawyer who conducted the negotiations, knows of the associations or wealth behind Stevens.

Stevens was charged with robbing Thomas F. Foley of $664 in this city on Oct. 23 as he was leaving a bank after drawing the money to pay employes of the company which employed him. Stevens's bail was first fixed at $5,000. His unknown friends came forward and put up the money. Another bond of the same amount was furnished, and Stevens went free. The prisoner is a well-built man of perhaps 35 years, dressed like a gentleman, and had the air and manner of one. He said at the jail that he would return and plead guilty. He said that he could not earn $10,000 any easier than to come back here and serve time, and that he would sooner serve the sentence that might be imposed than to put his friends to a loss of $10,000.

The anxiety to have him admitted to bail he explained on the ground that he had a wife and mother. They had no suspicion of what his business was, supposing he was a traveling man, and they did not know that he was under arrest. His friends wanted to get him out so that he could go and see his wife and mother and arrange for their care. He was going to tell them that business called him away and that he would be absent for a number of years. That was the sole reason that his friends were standing behind him, he said. This statement is regarded as unconvincing here.

If he is a member of a gang, as the police of New York and Hartford say, there may be something he wants to arrange with his associates. The gang could not see him while he was in jail, neither could they see him if he was committed to State prison.

It is said by the police that not so very long ago he held up a Dr. Gibson at Poughkeepsie and took $300. When he was turned over to the police and searched he had a roll of $1,000, and when the case came to trial Dr. Gibson did not appear.

When Detective Sergt. Butler was in New York not long ago, he obtained the man's record from the New York police. His picture is in the Rogues' Gallery, the police say, as a pickpocket, and he has been in prison.

On the day the new State Arsenal and Armory was dedicated, John McMullen, a New York detective, who was doing duty in this city, went to the jail to see the prisoner. He said "Hello, Red." The prisoner's answer was "Hello, Mac."

McMullen said the prisoner was a bad man and would make trouble if he got away. After McMullen had gone away the prisoner said that "Mac" was a good fellow, and that he was not like some of the other "fresh guys" on the New York police force.

Stevens served a sentence in New York for stealing a diamond scarfpin from a man in Brooklyn in 1904. His term was two years. He has been arrested repeatedly by the New York police.

Stevens is said to come from Toledo, Ohio.

"CHICKEN MANUFACTURER" UP

But What That Profession Is, His Indignant Accuser Leaves in Doubt.

Looking down the long line of men and women who wanted to tell him their stories yesterday afternoon, Magistrate Breen, in the Essex Market Court, marked one whose face proclaimed the fact that she was really suffering with indignation. Presently this woman, Ida Goldberg of 124 Cannon Street, stood before the Magistrate and began to pour out her story.

"That man," she said in a tone of accusation, "is a chicken manufacturer."

"What is a chicken manufacturer?" asked Magistrate Breen.

"You ask him," retorted Mrs. Goldberg, again pointing at Seiger. "He'll tell you. He is one of those things. He has a shop in Columbia Street. I took one of my fancy hens to him to sell it for me. He sells fowls on commission for customers. He said he would brush up my hen a bit, repair her so that she would look better. I went there in a few days. That man told me he let the hen go loose. She was worth 40 cents, and I want it."

When asked about the charge Seiger said he was a shoemaker, not a chicken-maker; that Mrs. Ida Goldberg had brought a hen to him to keep for a while. After a day or so, remembering stories about women leaving babies they didn't want with policemen, he grew suspicious and turned the hen loose to go where she listed. He hadn't seen the hen since.

The Magistrate passed the problem on up to the civil courts, declaring that neither his knowledge nor his jurisdiction was equal to it.

MINE SWINDLERS SENTENCED.

Judge Hand in the United States Circuit Court yesterday sentenced J. Walter Labaree and George W. Emanuel, who were convicted of misusing the mails to defraud investors, to terms in the Federal prison at Atlanta. Labaree got two years and a half and Emanuel got a year and three months' imprisonment. Their counsel will appeal to the United States Supreme Court and to this end a five-day stay was granted.

The two men operated a fake brokerage firm under the title of George W. Emanuel & Co., at 576 Fifth Avenue, where they had elaborate offices and they are said to have cleared $150,000 out of their experience with trustful investors in Mexican mining stocks. The stocks which they handled were those of the Dos Estrellas Mines and the Development Company of Mexico, which they represented to be owners of valuable gold and copper mining properties. The Government, in a trial which lasted eleven days, proved that the properties were holes in the ground, innocent of ore.

Two other men, Louis A. Prince and Max Samuel, were wanted with Labarre and Emanuel. Prince was indicted and fled to France, and Samuels also is a fugitive. It is believed that he is in Mexico.

Battleships Off for Hampton Roads.

The battleship Connecticut, flagship of the Atlantic Fleet, and the battleship Nebraska, two of the battleships that have been at the Navy Yard since the Hudson-Fulton Celebration undergoing the annual overhauling, sailed for Hampton Roads yesterday, where the fleet is reassembling. The gunboat Yankton, the fleet tender, also sailed yesterday for Hampton Roads.

CONTEMPT DECREE UPHELD.

ALBANY, Nov. 30.—The decision of the lower courts finding members of Typographical Union No. 6 of New York City guilty of contempt of court was upheld to-day by the Court of Appeals.

During a strike in New York City a few years ago, Justice Blanchard issued an injunction restraining Patrick H. McCormick, President of the union, and several of his associates, including George W. Jackson and Vincent Costello, from interfering with the men who took their places. They were found guilty of violating the injunction, and each was sentenced to serve twenty days in jail and pay a fine of $250. Jackson died while the case was pending in the Appellate Division.

Ford Near a Knockout.

The ten-round contest between Jack Denning of this city and Barney Ford of Chicago was stopped in the eighth round by Referee "Bill" Brown at Brown's Athletic Association, West Twenty-third Street, last night, to save the boy from the "Windy City" from a knockout. Ford did not have a chance throughout the contest, and was unable to protect himself from Denning's blows. Ford clinched whenever he came in close quarters, and had to be separated by the referee.

In the other bouts Jack Crealy defeated George Hoey in six rounds; John Perrelli, the wrestler, knocked out Jack McDermott in the first round of a four-round contest, and the six-round contest between "Irish" Paddy and "Pat" Sullivan was stopped in the fourth round, as Sullivan was outclassed.

Sutton Wins Two Games with Cue.

George H. Sutton, the handless billiardist, defeated two amateurs at the Knickerbocker Billiard Rooms in Brooklyn yesterday. He won from T. G. Baxter by a score of 200 to 102. Sutton's high run was 45, and his average 11 2-18. Baxter had a high run of 27 and an average of 5 12-18. Sutton also defeated Frank Boyd by a score of 200 to 88, his high run being 59, and his average 7 11-27. Boyd had a high run of 15 and an average of 3 7-27.

New York Dogs Beaten.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Nov. 30.—The all-age stake of the Pointer Club of America was run at Barbers, N. C., to-day, the finish being at 5 o'clock. There were eight starters, numbering in the list the best pointers in America, including Master Pierce, owned by A. H. Ball of New York and handled by J. A. Gude of Bruceville, Ind.; Furlough Hobo, owned by George J. Gould of New York and handled by Thiers Leach of High Point, and Bang of Kent, owned by S. H. Brown of New York and handled by W. H. Hammond of Madison, Fla. All of the New York entries were beaten. The winners were as follows:

First place, Manitoba Frank; second place, Cords Lad; third place, Sports Rip Rap. A handsome loving cup was presented the winner of first place by George J. Gould of New York. Of the New York entries Master Pierce probably put up the best exhibition.

HORSES AND HORSEMEN.

For the racing season of 1910 Christopher J. Fitz Gerald and Joseph A. Murphy will be the placing judges of The Jockey Club. The recent death of Clarence McDowell made necessary the appointment of a new official, and C. H. Pettingill has had his hands full during the past season in the dual role of clerk of the scales and assistant to Mr. McDowell.

Ballot and Helmet, who raced in the silks of James R. Keene in England during the past season, are on their way back to this country and will be sent to James Rowe at Sheepshead Bay, where they will arrive Saturday.

Harry La Montague will branch out on his own account with a racing stable next season. He will race the three-year-old Scarpia, and he has six yearlings that will bear his colors. In recent years Mr. La Montague has been associated with his brother in the ownership of the Chelsea Stable. His horses are at Sheepshead Bay in the care of W. H. Karrick, who is also handling the horses of H. K. Knapp.

It has been about definitely decided that the racing season at Pimlico will begin April 1 next year. Last Spring the Maryland Jockey Club began at Pimlico April 24, and there was no racing about New York until the opening of Belmont Park, May 13. With a shifting forward of the Pimlico dates it will be possible to begin racing in New York April 15, which is the legal date and the one that was maintained all through the prosperous years of the sport.

W. Ghent Wins at Pool.

W. Ghent defeated Joe Kane last night in the Class B pool tournament at Doyle's Academy, Broadway and Forty-second Street, by the score of 60 to 58. Kane, with 15, made the high run of the game. H. Kalvin will play A. Coryell to-night.

Madden Sells Horses in Kentucky.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 30.—Horsemen from all over the United States and Canada are here to-day attending the annual Fall sales of thoroughbred horses. The Adelbert and other well-known studs are to be disposed of. John E. Madden sold twenty-seven head to-day. The best sales included The Hoyden, to F. M. Taylor, New York, $850; Drama, to August Belmont, New York, $800, and Ornus, to H. T. Oxnard, Blue Ridge Stud, Upperville, Va., $1,900.

Columbia Five to Play Trinity.

Although Columbia was not heard from during the football season, the students on Morningside Heights expect to cut a big figure in the world of intercollegiate sports this Winter with a crack basketball team. Friday night in the local gymnasium the blue and white will open the season against the strong Trinity College five, and there will be a game practically every week at home until well into February.

Pugilist Fined $100 in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 30.—Harry Trendall, a pugilist, pleaded guilty in the County Court of St. Louis County to-day to having been a principal with George Memsic of Chicago in a prize fight at Wellston on Sept. 23. He was fined $100. Cases against Memsic, Mat Doyle, referee, and promoters of the affair, are pending.

MODIFY FOOTBALL RULES, SAYS PIERCE

FEELING COLLEGE PULSE

Special to The New York Times.

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Nov. 30.—That the Intercollegiate Athletic Association is making every effort to get a sane and practicable revision of the present football rules, was the statement made to THE TIMES correspondent here to-day by Capt. Palmer E. Pierce, United States Army, who is its President.

It was when Capt. Pierce was stationed at West Point a few years ago that the Military Academy inaugurated that movement among the so-called "minor" colleges which led to the changes of 1905 in the playing rules. With the fatalities and serious injuries attending the season just ended, the work of the association to make all college athletics safe as well as attractive, which had temporarily abated in the belief that the football rules had been changed to meet the requirements, has again started with full vigor.

"The Intercollegiate Athletic Association," said Capt. Pierce this afternoon, "is now asking the colleges which compose it to state whether they desire football to continue under the present rules or whether the regulations shall be greatly modified, so as to make the game more open. We have asked them, also, whether they desire the American game to end so far as they are concerned and whether they want to substitute for it either the English Rugby or association game.

"Our annual meeting, to be held in New York on Dec. 28, promises to be attended by delegates from all sections of the country who will be asked to pass upon these points. At that time a definite line of action will also be decided upon. If the conference decides for the present American game—as to its retention in some form, that is—then it will elect a representative committee which will be directed to carry out the wishes of the conference.

"The colleges are undoubtedly in favor of revision of the rules. As to just what form it is going to take, that is, of course, impossible to say until we shall have had the chance to get together and talk it all over. But it seems certain that our every effort will be made to open the game.

"The changes which THE TIMES proposed last Sunday are very interesting. I approve heartily the general proposition to open the game if it will make accidents less serious and frequent. I doubt the feasibility of restricting field judges to physicians. The present rules seem, also, to accomplish their purpose. However, I do not pretend to be an expert and I do not care to pass upon your other proposals with any degree of authority.

"Certainly the attitude of THE TIMES in thus offering suggestions for the guidance of the rulemakers and to bring out divers opinions on the subject cannot but work for good. It has, in every way, my most unqualified approval. Nothing can be accomplished by 'standing pat.' The time may not have come for radical changes, but changes there must be. The game must be rendered as safe as it is possible to make any sport wherein physical contact plays such a large part."

"The very best thing that can possibly happen to the game is that the Intercollegiate Athletic Association, headed by Capt. Pierce, shall appoint a committee of, say, five members, charged with a radical revision of the rules. Let the association order this committee to make its report, not to the public, but to the association. Then have the association rest on its oars until the present Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee finishes its deliberations and issues its findings and changes.

"Should the present Rules Committee not have so modified the game as, in the opinion of the association, to make it safely playable for all colleges—minor as well as 'big'—and secondary and preparatory schools as well, then let the athletic association promulgate its set of rules as the only ones under which its members will meet on the gridiron. Let them say to the 'big' universities, 'If you want to play your regular (so-called) 'practice' games with us, we shall be glad to accommodate you—but under our rules, not yours.'

"Let everybody concerned with football—coaches, Captains, players, and, particularly, the Rules Committee—know that such is the stand of the colleges composing Capt. Pierce's association, and you'll find it will bring the coon out of the tree faster even than did Davy Crockett's famous gun."

SCHOOLBOY ATHLETICS.

Report of Ninth Athletic District Shows Plans for Big Season.

At a meeting of the delegates of the Ninth Athletic District of the Public Schools Athletic League, representing 6,000 of the elementary school boys of the city yesterday afternoon at Public School 6, the officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President—A. Horn; Vice President—B. Solomon; Secretary—A. Eckstein; Treasurer—D. Lane; Chairman of the Games Committee—J. Laibson; Delegate—A. Eckstein.

The report forwarded to Dr. Crampton showed that the athletic interest among the youthful contestants is steadily growing. Skating, baseball, basket ball, and track athletics will all be indulged in during the coming season. Public Schools 6 and 77 will hold big indoor meets, and practically every school will be represented in the baseball tournament. Public Schools 6, 77, and 74 have arranged to run off a basket ball tournament among the school teams, and entries will be made in any skating races scheduled.

Those present at the meeting were Daniel B. Lane of Public School 6, Jacob Laibson of Public School 82, Arthur Eckstein of Public School 77, Boneparth Solomon of Public School 70, and A. E. Horn and R. Mandelstram of Public School 77.

N. Y. U. Freshmen Beat Sophs.

The annual New York University freshman-sophomore football game was played on Ohio Field yesterday afternoon, the freshmen winning by a score of 6 to 0. Yule was the star of the game, he making the touchdown and kicking the goal. It was chiefly due to his line-bucking ability that the ball was shoved over the 1912 goal line, for the freshman interference was not very good. Frequent fumbles occurred, the sophomores being the worst offenders. The first half resulted in no score, the ball seesawing back and forth near the centre of the field. In the second half the touchdown was made shortly after Yule's punt was fumbled by a sophomore on his 10-yard line. Line-plunging tactics took the pigskin over. Toward the close of the game 1913 carried the ball up to the sophomore 1-yard line, but time was called and the score stood 6—0. The line-up:

Crowley	Left guard	Henneberger
Bregovsky	Centre	Scharwenker
Kempner	Right guard	Holm
Dresler	Right tackle	Davis
Elliffe	Right end	Crawford
Nixon	Quarter back	Roselle
Moore	Right half back	Zimilli
Yule	Full back	Roberts

Touchdown—Yule. Goal from touchdown—Yule. Referee—J. A. Wheeler. Umpire—E. Galloway. Head linesman—W. Du Mond. Linesmen—J. A. Malloy and Charles Norlin. Time of halves—Fifteen minutes.

Navy Declines Army's Football Check.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 30.—The West Point athletic council showed splendid spirit when it sent to the Athletic Association of the Naval Academy a check for the Navy's share of advance expenses incurred in arranging for the annual Army-Navy football game, which was cancelled this year because of the fatal injury Cadet, Byrne received in the game played against Harvard. But the Navy, feeling that the Army was in no way responsible for the unfortunate accident, resulting in the cancellation of the game at Philadelphia, has declined the offer of the Army athletic council to pay the entire expense and to-day the check, representing the Navy's share, was returned to West Point with satisfactory explanations.

Yale to Elect Football Captain.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 30.—It was announced to-night that the twenty-three Yale players who won their "Y." in the games against Harvard and Princeton will assemble to-morrow afternoon and select a Captain for the 1910 eleven. Half Back Fred Daly and John Kilpatrick, who played at end, are the candidates to succeed Capt. Ted Coy. To-night the chance of victory for each candidate seems nearly equal.

Injured Middy Able to Sit Up.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 30.—For the first time since the accident on Oct. 16, when a vertebrae of his neck was broken during a football game, Midshipman Earl D. Wilson was able to sit up to-day. His general condition is good and his spirits excellent. A course of electrical and massage treatment has been begun and good results are expected. Since the operation on Nov. 14 there has been a slight diminution of the paralysis and the wound of the operation has entirely healed.

$5,000 More for Irish Home Rule.

T. P. O'Connor, M. P., of the Irish Nationalists in the British Parliament, sent another $5,000 to John Redmond, leader of the Nationalists, yesterday, making a total of $30,000 which he has forwarded for the cause of Irish home rule during his six weeks' visit to this country.

RETAIN DAVIS TENNIS CUP.

Australians Win Final Matches in International Tournament.

SYDNEY, New South Wales, Nov. 30.—The Australasian defenders retain the Dwight F. Davis Challenge Cup, having defeated the Americans in the final matches to-day of the international tennis tournament. The play was in singles, and the Californians made a better showing than in the earlier matches. The scores:

International Singles.—A. F. Wilding, New Zealand, beat Maurice E. McLoughlin, United States, 3—6, 8—6, 6—2, 6—3; Norman E. Brookes, Victoria, beat Melville H. Long, United States, 6—4, 7—5, 8—6.

Canadians May Play Rugby Here.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Nov. 30.—There is a movement on foot to take two of the leading Canadian football teams to the United States to show American how to play Rugby football. An exhibition game would be played at Philadelphia on the Franklin Field. Arthur Irwin, the old time baseball player, is one of those behind the proposition. Hamilton Tigers will probably go, and the other team will be either the Ottawas, holders of the interprovincial championship, or Toronto University, that on Saturday won the Dominion championship. It is also suggested that Yale and other teams be played, half under the American rules and half under the Canadian code.

Sporting Show at Garden To-night.

Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson, principals in the biggest heavyweight championship match ever arranged, will be seen in the same ring to-night at Madison Square Garden. Jeffries will box with Sam Berger and go through a series of gymnastic stunts such as a fighter uses in training, and Johnson will exhibit his speed and cleverness against two of his sparring partners, Kid Cutler and Jack Hynan. In addition to this Johnson will put on his vaudeville sketch, "An Afternoon in a Training Camp." The title of Jeffries's sketch is "Training with a Champion." Another feature of the entertainment is the appearance of Frank Gotch, champion heavyweight wrestler of the world. There are a number of smaller features, among them exhibitions of bag punching, acrobatic feats by the best men in this profession, and a series of tumbling acts.

BANKING REFORM PROGRESS.

It is a pleasure to compliment Senator ALDRICH upon his banking address before the Economic Club, and easier to do so than to deduce from it plans of the Monetary Commission. Each fresh utterance of his confirms the impression that he is committed to the principle of a central bank, but he always gives the impression also that the realization of the project is remote. However, it is no small progress to find the Senator himself no longer praising the American system as the best on earth, but holding up for admiration and imitation the results attained by foreign systems.

The Senator encourages nobody to hope that any banking system will abolish hard times, or economic cycles, or punishment for speculative excesses or errors of judgment. What he does offer is freedom from the recurrence of universal suspension of bank payments. This is a National humiliation, and the cause of general and undeserved hardship such as other nations escape, and which there is no reason why we also should not escape. Other countries have their trade reactions, and embarrassments among their leading industrial and financial undertakings, and the Senator mentioned some of them. But he added:

> There has been no general suspension of banking institutions, and no general destruction of credit in any of the great countries of Europe for more than half a century.

But the realization of this aspiration for ourselves is remote. The Senator carries the burden alone. The Commission of which he is the head will not, he says, consider the formulation of a system until "the whole field has been presented to the people." Apparently there is need for missionary work even among the members of the Commission itself. The Commission will publish some twenty volumes in its effort to educate the people, but the members will not sign the essays. There is authority for saying that they have not read them yet. Then there is an elaborate programme of hearings to be held, and those who are well informed do not expect a report at the approaching or short session. If one were made it could not be suitably considered. Considering the Senator's account of the urgency of the business, it would seem that he could not be altogether pleased with such a rate of progress.

Is the Commission really so much in advance of the sentiment of the community that there is need of such deliberation and elaborate preparation of the public mind? Central banks are not a novelty, or a discovery of the Commission. It is years since a central bank was the second choice of practically all bankers, who preferred other schemes only because deeming them more practical under the conditions. About the time of the Commission's appointment the second choice of nearly all became the first choice of a majority. The Commission is still in the early stage of preparation. The country is readier to consider the Commission's proposals than the Commission appreciates.

A WISE RETREAT.

The appearance of Justice FRANCIS M. SCOTT before the Board of Estimate and his public remarks as to the project to advance the salaries of the Judges of the Supreme Court were entirely creditable to him. He assumed the responsibility for the argument on which the Board had acted and relieved all his associates of any share in preparing it or even suggesting it. It is indeed probable that had he consulted his brethren on the bench it would have seemed inexpedient to take any steps in the matter. As it is, with all the Justices of the Second Department opposing the increase, with two of those of the First Department declining in advance to accept the increase if voted, and with the public withdrawal of support by the only Justice that had argued for it, the position of the judiciary regarding the increased pay is in the end very satisfactory.

All's well that ends well, and there is no need for further comment. But we may remark, quite apart from the merits of the matter now closed, that the incident is another example of the inadvisability of fixing the compensation of judicial officers in the Constitution. We called attention to this during the discussion of the amendments, which was apparently conclusive up the State, where this amendment failed to receive the required vote. What it was that influenced public opinion at this end of the State in favor of this clumsy way of dealing with judicial pay we cannot imagine, but probably the sentiment in favor of the amendment increasing the debt limit carried all the others with it. It was easier for the average voter to mark them all "Yes" than to run the risk of making a mistake. It is another proof of the intolerable burden of minute decisions that is thrown on the voter, a burden that causes a large part of the defects and errors attributed to popular government.

CHEER UP.

When Congress is assembling, and the President is writing his message, and Wall Street is queasy, there is never any better reading than Secretary WILSON's reports, and one of them is at hand to-day in the nick of time. The year 1909 was "the most prosperous of all years" for farmers. The gain over 1908 was $869,000,000. The total product doubled in a decade, within which agriculture has produced $70,000,000,000. This year's corn crop alone was equal to all the gold and silver in the Nation. The earth and the air produced the equivalent of two Dreadnoughts daily. Cotton, the dethroned King, produced a mere $850,000,000. Wheat fetched a price at the farm not equaled since 1881, an unprecedented total of $725,000,000. The cereals aggregated 4,711,000,000 bushels, and the list of bests on record for minor crops is too long to reproduce. It is a species of benediction after the Thanksgiving feast.

Two points present themselves. All this plenty has not produced cheapness, and the good fortune of the agriculturists has not promoted the yield of milk of human kindness among them. They have reduced no prices, but are leaders of the demand for the reduction of the unearned increment of others. "There has been a tendency of the animals and crops of the farm to increase in value per unit at the farm at a faster rate than all commodities have increased at wholesale." The trusts are the wholesalers. Their problem is the reduction of the rate of profit per unit. The happy farmers' profit increases per unit. Yet it is the trusts that must be regulated. Particularly it is the railways that must be compelled to reduce rates, and increase wages, as in the old granger days. Yet but for the railways the farmers would be burning their corn from inability to get it to market. Is it not also a problem how the price of farm products shall be regulated?

THE BRITISH POLITICAL CRISIS.

It is significant that all the ablest speeches in the House of Lords on the budget were freighted with counsel against its rejection. Lords ROSEBERY, CROMER, JAMES of Hereford, and BALFOUR of Burleigh, with the Archbishop of YORK, all of whom are opposed to the terms of the budget, and some of whom contend that the peers have the constitutional right to pass judgment on new taxation and taxation for new purposes, strongly advised the upper house against so radical a departure from precedent at this juncture as the rejection of the Lloyd-George measure.

On the Liberal side, which is a small minority in the House of Lords, Lord MORLEY made one of the most noteworthy speeches of his brilliant career. The points he made against the Lansdowne resolution were wise and clear. It placed the peers, he declared, in opposition to the Constitution, as claiming for themselves the taxing power, vested by custom and law in the House of Commons, as "assuming the power of enforcing a penal dissolution by refusing supplies," as tending to change "representative supremacy into an oligarchic and non-representative supremacy."

Nevertheless, the resolution of the Marquis of LANSDOWNE was adopted by a large majority of votes, the financial budget of the Commons has been rejected by the peers, and Parliament is to be prorogued by King EDWARD. The wiser counsels of the foremost peers of the realm have been unheeded, and those members of the upper house who, according to The London Daily Telegraph, "have never given proof of political capacity," have plunged the country into a political campaign which promises to be unprecedented in bitterness, and is likely to lead in the end to the reconstitution of the House of Lords.

THE HOUSE OF GOVERNORS.

3.—Privately Owned Forests.

Much has been heard of public forest preserves, little of the fact that four-fifths of the timber standing in this country is privately owned. Not only do private interests own four times as much of the woods as the State and Federal Governments own, but these woods are the more valuable. They are being burned over at an average yearly loss of $50,000,000. They are cut wastefully, at the rate of three and a half times their annual growth. One-fourth of the timber is lost in logging. In the White Mountains and on the Southern Appalachian range the forests that regulate the headwaters of enormous water powers are being stripped from the mountains.

On April 6, 1908, Justice HOLMES of the Federal Supreme Court handed down a decision sustaining the State of Maine in its contention that its police power was adequate to restrict the cutting or destruction of private forest coverts in a way "to preserve or enhance the value of such lands and trees thereon, and protect and promote the interests of such owners and the common welfare of the people." The principle has this broad application, in Justice HOLMES's opinion:

> The State as quasi sovereign and representative of the interests of the public has a standing in court to protect the atmosphere, the water, and the forests within its territory, irrespective of the assent or dissent of the private owners of the land most immediately concerned.

THE TIMES advises those vast interests that are being ruined by the denuding of the White Mountains and the Southern Appalachians to abandon their attempt, futile after sixteen years of continued effort, to persuade Congress to buy "limited strategic areas" in these regions, and to submit to Gov. WILLSON of Kentucky, Chairman of the Committee of the House of Governors, a plan for uniform State laws to control them in private ownership for the "common welfare of the people."

Such a law, passed and enforced in every State of the Union, would conserve and increase its wealth more than any other single project of legislation.

SECRETARY MEYER'S REFORMS.

The Secretary of the Navy is, first of all, a business man of experience and sound judgment. In the Post Office Department he gave proof of the possession of those qualities. There some reforms and changes that he had planned encountered obstacles—obstacles of a political nature. Not much has been said about them, but they were so formidable that it is understood that Mr. MEYER willingly exchanged the Postmaster Generalship for the Navy portfolio. In that department there was an opportunity, and he was the man for it.

The country has heard much of the astonishing bureau system, of the division and comminution of authority and responsibility, of the jealousies of line and staff, and of the confusion inevitably resulting from a false and unworkable method of administration. Out of this chaos Mr. MEYER, after months of diligent study and conference, has brought the beginning of order. That will be recognized as the foundation, the primary quality of the system he has now established.

The Secretary set out in this work of reform with the conviction that the navy exists for military purposes. It is known that some Senators have long had their doubts about that. Mr. MEYER has none. Accordingly, authority and responsibility in the department will be centred in naval officers trained in the service, trained in and for military duty. The Secretary will himself have as a council of advisers four Rear Admirals, each of whom will be personally charged with supervision of one of the four divisions under which the Secretary classifies the work of the department—material, personnel, operations, and inspections. A system of accounts under which cost in the operations of the department and in the navy yards will be readily ascertained has also been established. It was needed. Navy yard work is separated into two divisions, hull and machinery. Plain common sense would indicate that naval constructors should have charge of hull work, and engineers of machinery work. The commandants of the navy yards are to have those larger powers of control which, by experience, they are qualified to exercise. This is a logical following out of the Secretary's judgment that in a military establishment matters of policy and detail should be intrusted to the line. The Bureau of Equipment is abolished and its duties assigned to other bureaus.

Under the system now established it will no longer be possible for a commandant of the navy yard to receive an order to send to sea at once a ship out of which the boilers were taken on an order from another bureau received the previous week. It puts an end to conflict and confusion. It co-ordinates, consolidates, and promotes the effectiveness of the establishment. There will be opposition, but these are reforms which have long commended themselves to enlightened minds. They are necessary, they are logical, and we have little doubt but that they will be permanent.

THE PORTRAIT PAINTER.

In an address to the members of the McDowell Club Monday night Mr. WILLIAM M. CHASE, a painter of just renown who has been indisputably successful in portraiture, made the somewhat radical and amazing assertion that Americans should have their portraits painted only by American artists. This was no plea for the right of American artists to commercial monopoly in their field. It was no outburst of the National spirit, but an emphatic expression of Mr. CHASE's opinion that the American painter knows best the American type and can most accurately and sympathetically reproduce it. The same rule he applied to all nations, but he admitted that SARGENT and VAN DYCK, prodigiously successful painters of persons of other nationalities than their own, were exceptions to the rule. He might well have included HOLBEIN and others in his exceptions.

In a day when so many wealthy Americans are importing foreign artists to make their family portraits, and so many more are giving sittings to painters abroad, Mr. CHASE's announcement is significant. The fact seems to be, however, that the portrait is best when the painter best knows his sitter, and SARGENT seems to be endowed with an intuitive faculty, possessed by VAN DYCK before him, to get quickly at the very essence of a sitter's character. There is a psychological side of portrait painting overlooked by Mr. CHASE in his address, though not, we fancy, in his best portraits.

It is a matter of fact that the large promise of pecuniary reward for portrait painting has induced too many American artists to take up a branch of work for which they have no particular fitness. We have seen American portraits of American subjects, and "heard others praise them, and that highly," which were neither good as potraiture nor recognizably American. Doubtless many persons have portraits painted abroad for the sake of the glamour of a foreign name. But the best plan is to have your portrait painted by an artist who has the faculty of comprehending his subject, the will to exert it, and the skill to put the living image on canvas. Such artists can be found here, of course.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Can Libel Be an Indorsement? One of the city's well-known scientists has written to us, asking if THE TIMES has ever "indorsed" EUSAPIA PALADINO. His reason for making this—to us—decidedly surprising inquiry he incloses in the shape of a letter from the woman's business manager, inviting him and his friends to attend one of her séances. For, printed on the paper bearing that invitation are the words "Indorsed by" over a long list of names of men and newspapers, the latter including that of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

As indorsement may be of several kinds, including repudiation and condemnation, as well as authentication and commendation, and as THE TIMES has more than once expressed its opinion of the claims made by and in behalf of EUSAPIA PALADINO with respect to her possession and exercise of supernatural or supernormal powers, we could not with entire accuracy deny that this paper has "indorsed" her. As the term is commonly used, however, as it will be understood by everybody who sees it on the business manager's letterhead, and as he presumably intended it to be taken, to say that THE TIMES has indorsed her is—well, the exact contrary of the truth. Naturally we do not like this particular sort of business managing, and are somewhat tempted to characterize it harshly, but anger is not a good aid toward the wise selection of epithets, and we will refrain from doing more than advise anybody who sees this letterhead to recall that "false in one, false in all," is an old saying—so old that it must more than just occasionally be correct.

Curiously enough, on the same day that our scientific friend asked us about our alleged indorsement of the Paladino woman, we received from the lawyers of another manager of hers a long and elaborate legal notice that he thinks himself injured to the amount of an appalling number of thousands of dollars by implications against himself which he thinks he finds in what we have said about her and her performances. We do not remember ever before to have had this double experience with respect to the same statements. The exact relation between the two managers we do not know, but they are obviously friendly, and, therefore, we are deeply puzzled to see that one of them advertises us as indorsing their show, while the other is so aggrieved by our criticism of it that he sues us for libel. But never mind! Variety is the spice of life—as well as another name for vaudeville—and the trial of that libel suit will at least make a lot of interesting "copy" for ourselves and our esteemed contemporaries, if ever it comes off.

Injurious, but We Must Read. It was in gentle humor, doubtless, and with no intent to deceive, that Mr. HEDLEY said that the lamps in the Subway cars were reduced from sixteen to ten candle power because the lower degree of illumination is more soothing to the passengerial eye. Even those of us who do not hate corporations as corporations know better than that, and though we see the joke, our smiles at it are just a bit sour.

Mr. HEDLEY might have argued gravely, however, and with a lot of truth, that even the ten candle power lights might be reduced with advantage to the public's eyesight, for by them one can still manage to read, and he could have brought many an oculist to testify that reading in a moving train, no matter how bright the light, is bad for the eyes—that to take away the privilege altogether would tend to the longer preservation of acute sight.

All that is unquestionably true, and yet we New Yorkers, and we semi-New Yorkers, meaning the commuters, almost must, and certainly will, read our papers during our daily journeys. Not to do so would be at a cost of tedium and waste of time which we consider less than that to be paid in eyesight when the reading is done in the best of lights that the transportation companies can be and are expected to provide. The Public Service Commission should also get after the companies serving the commuters, or, rather, those that the commuters serve. Their trains are worse lighted than the Subway cars have ever been, and there is no more excuse for dimness in the one case than in cuse for dimness in the one case than in the other.

Alabama Will Take Her Time. For whatever of a setback the prohibition cause may receive from the emphatic defeat of the constitutional amendment voted on in Alabama on Monday, the prohibitionists have only themselves to thank. Alabama has undoubtedly the same good reasons for closely restricting the liquor traffic that have been accepted as conclusive throughout so much of the South in recent years. It long since acted upon those reasons much as the other Southern States have done, and many of its counties have for more than two decades been submissive to and content with a regulation of the sale of intoxicants so strict that in most parts of the North it would be considered irksome if not intolerable. The other counties, while not yet entirely "dry," were showing a strong tendency to approach that ideal and would surely have done so in time.

But the advanced and radical prohibitionists were not content to wait the not very slow progress of events, and the natural increase of temperance sentiment. They insisted on doing in a day the work of years—and a lot more than the years will probably ever do anywhere. They drew up a constitutional amendment that utterly ignored any right of private judgment as to the personal use of alcohol, and aimed to impose a meticulous and tyrannical control of individual conduct and property. No man's house was to be a castle if there was even a suspicion that it contained a bottle of the Accursed Stuff, and he who took the wee-est of nipples from his own bottle, whether its content was imported or of domestic manufacture, was to be made as gravely misdemeaning as he who sold or gave a "drink" to his weak and thirsty neighbor.

Of course this injudicious endeavor gave the discouraged rummies new hope and turned into reluctant allies, at least for the time being and against the monstrous amendment, many and many a sober man who had been their enemy. The amendment was beaten, and by a big majority, and unless the facts in the case can be made thoroughly understood, the evilest influence in political and social life will take new heart. In reality, temperance was not the issue in Alabama, or even prohibition, as hitherto known. An unreasoning and ruthless fanaticism is what the State repudiated and did well to repudiate.

All the valid arguments for strict sobriety remain unaffected, there as elsewhere, and he who fails to appreciate their cogency will find himself at an economic disadvantage, as steadily and rapidly increasing as before. Men can probably never be convinced that moderate indulgence in intoxicants is wicked, but more and more of them can daily be compelled to admit that it is foolish because unprofitable at best, and the reverse of unprofitable in any of its other degrees.

RESIGNED AND SINGLE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I, too, am an "Unclaimed Flower," but that is the least of my troubles. I have even reached the period in my life where I may be spoken of as of "uncertain age," although, of course, I flatter myself no one suspects the facts in the case. I have to "hustle" for my daily bread, and while I cannot make $200 a month, I am pretty well satisfied with my income. I am fairly well educated, and more than well informed on topics of the day. I like men and women—some women—but still I am "unclaimed."

It occurs to me that since this is so, and it is so for many reasons, not all of which we may know, why bother our heads about it. I am busy all day long, I have a certain amount of social life in the evenings, and, in order to do my work and do it well, it is necessary for me to have a certain amount of rest, which naturally precludes much gayety in the evenings. Moreover, as I am interested in my daily labor, I am quite willing to go to bed nights so that I may be feeling my best next day. I don't say that this is the life that I would choose to live—far from it—but since this is so, why not give my attention to my business and let the other things take care of themselves. I do not know that I will ever marry, but I do know if I don't I shall be very lonesome as I get older, but the question I have to answer for myself is, "Will spending all my spare time thinking about it bring it to pass?"

It always seems to me that our good times are incidental anyway, and meeting men or any other part of our social life must be incidental with women who are business women, and it seems to me also that giving too much time and attention to this one subject will only make a woman more self-conscious with men and show only too plainly in her attitude toward men, thereby destroying her chance even for companionship with men, if that is what she desires so much.

Therefore, say I, forget it; go about your business as though you intended to make working downtown your life work; be cheerful, get plenty of sleep, be carefully dressed and groomed, and perhaps, after all, sometime, something will happen when you least expect it. In the meantime, however, I must continue to sign myself ANOTHER.

BEHAVIOR TOWARD WOMEN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a native-born American, with a dozen generations of American ancestry behind me, I must protest against the habit some Southern persons have of judging the men of the North by the individuals they meet in the street cars. Let me remind women from New Orleans and elsewhere that 75 per cent. of the population of New York City is either foreign born or immediately descended from foreign born. Americans they may be in citizenship, but they are not Americans in spirit. They come from countries where women receive less consideration than is justly granted to them here. They assimilate Americanism less rapidly in New York than anywhere else in the country. Who has not seen a strong Italian man walking along the street unincumbered while beside him walked his wife with a heavy package on her head? The true type of the American of the North is now to be found in the Middle West, and I gently but firmly refer our Southern critics to that section of the country rather than to this metropolitan jumble of nationalities.

There are, to be sure, some ill bred men there, but I have found some symptoms of ill breeding now and then in that well-spring of chivalry, the South. I have no apologies to offer for being a Northern man, and even in New York I have never seen a woman with an infant in her arms get aboard a crowded car without instantly having one or more seats offered to her. F. L. ORTON.

Brooklyn, Nov. 30, 1909.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your letter, published to-day, from the poor young "working girl" of the "chivalrous South," has stirred me considerably. I, too, am a young girl, and it seems to be the general impression that I am pretty. At any rate, I don't dispute it. For the past six years my work has taken me around New York at almost any hour of the day and early evening, and I have yet to meet with the unsolicited attention that has caused my maidenly cheek to grow "hot with shame."

Pretty nearly the only disagreeable experience I have had was down in that citadel of "Southern chivalry," Charleston, S. C.

By the way, no well-bred Northern woman would employ the phrase "not even by a nigger." E. H.

SIX CHILDREN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter by "Domestic Economy" in yesterday's paper is certainly a pleasure, coming as it does from the city of baby carriages!

A little more straight out from the shoulder talk to the poor creatures who will propagate their kind in half-dozen batches and then expect sympathy for their wretched conditions may some day awaken even the lowest to some sense of their own responsibility.

For many years the writer has tried with voice and pen to teach that overproduction of humans was the source of most of the poverty, drunkenness and misery in the world, but it takes the school of experience to instil the lesson.

Live in the hospitals and see the mothers who come there! Live in the asylums for orphans, monstrosities, and incurables for a time and study the results of matrimony! Visit the millions of homes of poverty and hear the story of the cause of discouragement, poverty, and illness! It is only the voice of ignorance that still babbles of large families, and only the pen of the willfully blind that writes of environment as a more important factor in child raising than inheritance! It is a gratifying thing to hear one's long possessed theories on the lips of the wisest in the land, even though there is some exasperation over the bestowal of all the praise upon these tardy thinkers. Eugenics—the steppingstone to something better! Race culture—the beginning of the blessed end!

A little later on will come hygienics, common sense, and self-control for the masses, and then soon we shall have something like a civilized Nation! LURANA W. SHELDON.

COURT DIVIDES TRUST FUND.

Gives Cash Left to Incompetent to Other Daughters.

Supreme Court Justice Erlanger decided yesterday the contest among five of the daughters of the late Mrs. Mary J. Martin over the division of a trust fund, amounting to more than $81,000. The fund was established by Mrs. Martin to provide for her son, John C. Martin, an incompetent, and under her will was to be divided among her "unmarried daughters." Three of the daughters married after their mother died, but before the death of their brother. The two sisters unmarried at the death of John thereupon held between them the whole of the trust fund.

Justice Erlanger's decision is tat all five daughters unmarried at the time the will was made are entitled to shares. Each of the litigants had received equal shares of an estate of $574,521, when the will was admitted to probate.

The five daughters affected by the decision are Mrs. Sarah M. Le Boutillier, Mrs. Phoebe P. Hayward, Mrs. Anna E. Rogers, Miss Mary Martin, and Miss Katharine T. Martin.

A Brooklyn Bridge Nuisance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For days after every heavy rain, and throughout the progress of snow-thaws, there is a showerbath of drippings, tinctured with the rust of erpding iron, coming down from the top (above which run the Brooklyn elevated trains) of the Brooklyn entrance to the promenade of the bridge, and under foot it is extremely wet. You cannot get away from the downpour, however devious a way you may try; the only escape is an embrella, an apparently absurd resort—did you happen to have one at hand—when it is nowhere "raining" save in this one restricted place. One might be content to bear with such an administrative shortcoming in a fifth or sixth-rate municipality, but with the great city of New York it is a case of noblesse oblige, and it is distinctly derogatory—disgraceful is perhaps not too strong an epithet.

A considerable number of interborough pedestrians find refreshment and healthful pleasure in a daily walk across the bridge, but at the times described there is a very objectionable fly in the ointment. If any one can suggest some course which would lead to its removal, he would have the grateful thanks of bridge walkers. C. B. ROBERTS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I learn that one of the few remaining woodland landmarks of the Bronx, the old "Spy Oak," is in peril of being destroyed by the proposed extension of Westchester Avenue. This grand old relic of the revolutionary days should be spared. The "Spy Oak" derives its name from the fact that an English spy was captured close by and hanged on the spot from one of its great branches.

Bronx Borough President Murray has shown his interest by having a map drawn of the proposed "Spy Oak Park," a small area of about an acre which is to hold the mammoth oak, and thus preserve it for generations to come. May this plan be approved by the city authorities, so that the Bronx may welcome the future "Spy Oak Park." M. E. RANDALL.

The Seaside Park.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Thousands will be delighted with the able and timely editorial in THE TIMES to-day strongly favoring the successful issue of the long-time project for a seaside park at Rockaway Beach. It is to be hoped that the new Board of Estimate will take prompt action for the success of a project so beneficial to the the poorer classes, and which has in its earnest support the leading philanthropic, benevolent, and religious organizations of this city. The Return from Elba.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems strange that the return of ex-President Roosevelt from Africa is so often alluded to in the press as "the return from Elba." How illogical it sounds! Why, the original return from Elba was after a great defeat; Napoleon was then a "has-been," who merely awakened like the Biblical Samson after all had been lost only to be soon defeated again, whereas Col. Roosevelt is in the bloom of his strenuous career. I think, therefore, that Mr. Roosevelt's return would rather be termed "the return from Egypt." Apart, that Egypt is in Africa—a curious coincidence, which would make it sound so logical—Napoleon's return from Egypt was after a brilliant and crowning success. E. J. ELLERSTON.

How One Motor Car Was Driven.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At Fortieth Street and Sixth Avenue the other evening a motor car drew up to discharge its passengers. On starting again it bumped into an automobile ahead of it, backed into one behind it, started across the street, and only by the narrowest margin missed knocking me down and then backed heavily into a lamppost. A pedestrian made some joking remark to the chauffeur, who replied, "Aw, you can never tell what these machines are going to do." H. R. L.

THE HONORLESS PROPHET.

Jed Hawkins knowed a bank as well as any man or men
I ever see, although he wasn't workin' at it then;
He did all kinds o' tinkerin' but any Summer day
He used to stan' an' talk finance in his convincin' way;
He knowed what's wrong with currency, an' what we orto do
T' make it more elastic for th' needs o' me an' you,
But when they got a new cashier, they paid one round an' high
T' come on from some city bank an' passed Jed Hawkins by.

An' knowed department stores, which was his specialty.
He'd been all through th' Broadway stores an' had th' system down
So fine he thought with backin' he could run one here in town.
He used t' often stand in front on sunny days an' fine
An' tell how he knowed dry goods stores from ladies' suits to twine;
But when they got a manager for our one store here, why
They got one from outside somewhere and passed Jed Hawkins by.

Jed Hawkins knowed newspaper work, I guess about as well
As any editor that walks, an' I have heered him tell
About Th' Times an' Tribbyoon, them days when big men run
Th' papers as they orto be, an' Dana had Th' Sun.
Why, all that kept Jed offen them was bein' here, an' so
Th' papers never heered o' him, an' so he had no show,
But when Th' Piketown Courier was short a writer, why
They hired some smoothfaced college kid, an' passed Jed Hawkins by.

Jed Hawkins said a good, live man such as he had in view
Would run 'bout half our business men right outen town, he knew;
An' sech a bank as he would run, right from th' hat's fust drop
Would make th' old Cornplanters Bank go some or shut up shop.
An' Jed he ain't much disturbed because they pass him by,
An' said it's plain to any one to see th' reason why:
"A prophet," Jed says, lookin' wise up at th' town hall dome,
"A prophet gits no honor jist as long as he stays home!"

CITY WATER SYSTEM CALLED TOO COSTLY

Charter Witnesses Advocate Abolition of Either Aqueduct or Water Supply Boards.

MISMANAGEMENT CHARGED

Mistakes of Water Department Due to Lack of a Proper Head, Assemblyman Bates Declares.

The Legislative Commission appointed to investigate the proposed revision of the city charter closed its sessions yesterday. It heard severe criticism of the present administration of the city's water system. The division of control and the way in which the affairs of the different boards were conducted were taken up by the speakers. They were characterized as unbusinesslike, wasteful, and useless.

The proposal to do away with the Aqueduct Commission or the Board of Water Supply, or both, or to consolidate one or the other with the Water Department is not new, and it is probable that some such action will be recommended by the commission. The Aqueduct Commission was created by special act of the Legislature to develop the Croton watershed. Under the law creating the commission its members were to stay in office as long as there was any work for them to do. It has been said that the existence of the commission has been prolonged needlessly through planning extensive work which there was little prospect of carrying out.

The Board of Water Supply was also created by special act to construct the new $160,000,000 Catskill water system. The Water Department, of which John H. O'Brien, ex-secretary to the Mayor, is the present head, has jurisdiction over the distribution of the water supply solely within the city limits. It has frequently been suggested that a consolidation of these boards would operate for economy and greater efficiency. Provisions to this end were included in the Ivins charter.

Assemblyman Bates of Manhattan was one of the principal speakers before the commission yesterday, and devoted the greater part of his time to criticism of the present management of the city's water supply.

"The whole history of the Board of Water Supply is one of mismanagement," he said. "The work of the body should be in charge of some thoroughly competent engineer. I do not believe that the mistakes of the board and the Aqueduct Commission have been due to dishonesty, but to lack of a proper head." He then took up several of the details of the work on the Catskill system, declaring that the greatest mistake of all had been made in the syphon across the Hudson at Storm King.

"And now," he continued, "the board is asking for a modification of the distribution system here in the city which may add $25,000,000 to the cost of the scheme, and it recently applied for $47,000,000, or enough to build another subway, for an aqueduct from Suffolk County, to add to the water supply of Brooklyn. These are the big things, but, furthermore, the flood of water bonds continually pouring out is reducing the city's credit and increasing the interest charges of the city by $2,000,000 a year. It is costing $40 to condemn every $100 worth of property acquired for the new Catskill system."

The Assemblyman then turned to the distribution of water in the city, and declared that "it is a veritable sieve," giving several instances of waste in city water caused by lack of supervision over possible leaks.

William M. Ivins was an interested spectator at the hearing in the morning, and got into a controversy with V. C. Coleman, the first speaker, over his opposition to the recommendation of the Charter Revision Commission that jurisdiction over the parkways of the city be taken away from the Park Department and given to the Board of Estimate.

Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards, who appeared to object to the taking away of his power over the street incumbrances, was followed by H. W. De Berard, representing the Merchants' Association, who also took up the control of the water supply of the city.

He argued for the abolishment of the Aqueduct Commission, declaring that its work was finished. "The expenses of the commission are about $175,000 a year, and I cannot see that there is any desirable function left for it to perform," said he. "I also believe that the Board of Water Supply should be composed wholly of engineers, who should look after the question of the acquisition of land and its condemnation as well as the actual work of construction."

President Cowan of the Aqueduct Commission declared that the body had by no means finished its work. "The $175,000 we spend," said he, "brings better results than the city would get by hiring a private contractor." He took up the question of the proposed Paterson aqueduct, and declared that the plans for it submitted to the Water Department had never been acted upon for political reasons.

Thomas A. Fulton, Chairman of the General Committee on Water Supply, representing many real estate and taxpayers' organizations, opposed the abolishment of the Aqueduct Commission, but declared that it might well be consolidated with the Board of Water Supply.

William W. Niles, who as a member of the Charter Revision Commission, wrote a dissenting report objecting to the provisions curbing the power of the Borough Presidents, and spoke at length in favor of retaining borough autonomy. He declared that the Borough Presidents elected by the people would be much more responsible than any Commissioner appointed by the Mayor, and said that if any department in the City Government had been investigated as had the offices of the Borough Presidents, similar conditions would have been found.

Mr. De Berard again spoke in favor of the creation of a Department of Fires to have wide powers over measures for the prevention of fires, to co-ordinate with or be superior to the present Fire Department.

E. W. Bloomingdale, representing the Retail Dry Goods Association, argued in favor of the latter course, declaring that the prevention of fire is much more important than the extinguishing of it. Several speakers advocated the restriction of the number of pushcart peddlers and the area to be open to them, among them Mr. De Berard, Assemblyman Smith and Chief Oliver of the Bureau of Licenses.

COPLEY MEDAL FOR HILL.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Ambassador Reid to-day received on behalf of the recipient the Copley Medal, awarded by the Royal Society to George William Hill, the astronomer and author of West Nyack, N. Y., in recognition of his work in mathematical astronomy.

The Copley Medal is the most highly prized of the several awards made periodically by the Royal Society. It may be awarded to foreigners, but only to distinguished persons.

George William Hill is a native of New York City, where he was born on March 3, 1838. He was graduated from Rutgers College, in 1859, and two years later became assistant in the office of the American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac. He received a medal from the Royal Astronomical Society of England in 1887 for his researches in connection with the lunar theory. The Paris Academy of Sciences gave him the Damoiscan Prize in 1898.

Mr. Hill has been lecturer in celestial mechanics at Columbia University since 1893. He is a foreign member of the Royal Society of London, foreign associate of the Royal Astronomical Association, and a fellow associate of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Among the universities of the world which have honored Mr. Hill are Cambridge, Columbia, and Princeton. Mr. Hill is the author of several works on mathematical astronomy.

GERMAN LIGHT OPERA AT THE NEW THEATRE

In producing "Czaar und Zimmermann" at The New Theatre last evening the directors of the destinies of the Metropolitan Opera Company made an experiment in a new direction. This opera of Lortzing's belongs to a genre known in Germany as "singspiel," a sort of Teutonic equivalent for the most naïve kind of French opera comique. Of its kind it is perhaps the most excellent example, but it may be doubted if the experiment will meet with much success except among a few students of operatic history, who, if they have not traveled in Germany, may perhaps indulge in their first opportunity to hear this work.

"Czaar und Zimmermann" is much too German in its spirit to find itself exactly at home in the precincts of The New Theatre. Although both the dialogue and the music are old-fashioned it still retains its place on the German stage by right of a certain homely feeling which it doubtless imparts to German auditors. Americans, especially the sort of Americans who attend present-day opera performances, which are very expensive, are not likely to understand the somewhat faded music, which is not light enough to be operetta music, and not heavy enough to carry the work into the class of opera with which this public is more familiar.

Gustav Albert Lortzing was one of a group of men who composed "singspiele." Kreutzer was another, whose "Nachtlager von Granada" has been performed here twice. Heinrich Marschner's "Hans Heilung" is known here principally through the air "Heil jenem Tag," which is sung very often at German singing society concerts. Lortzing was the son of an actor and an actor himself. His father led a rambling life, which he shared. He found himself, in fact, with insufficient time for serious study, and plunged into composition with a superficial knowledge of the technique of his art. It must be confessed that as a result his music has a certain naturalness and spontaneity which, however, must have been much more felt at the time of the first performances of his operas than it can be now.

"Czaar und Zimmerman," one of his earlier operas, was written and produced in 1837. It immediately achieved favor in a succession of German theatres, and has retained that favor ever since. In other countries the same lively interest in the opera has hardly been maintained. The first recorded performance in English occurred in London in 1871, when it was produced under the name of "Peter the Shipwright." In America there is a record of a few performances in 1857 at the old Broadway Theatre. In February, 1867, a German company appeared in the work at Mrs. John Wood's Olympic.

At Booth's Theatre, in 1882, the Boston Ideals, afterward known as the Bostonians, gave the work one performance in English. Geraldine Ulmer, Marie Stone, Tom Karl, Myron Whitney, H. C. Barnabee, and George Frothingham were in the cast. There is a record of another performance given under the name of "The Two Peters" at the Academy of Music. Probably a thorough study of the records would bring to light performances at the Thalia Theatre on the Bowery, but it is quite safe to say that the work has not been sung here in twenty years, and that it probably has never achieved a score of performances in New York.

Nor is the work likely to meet with more favor at this time, although it has been produced with great care, with a good cast, and with a fine orchestral leader. In spite of all these favorable conditions "Czaar und Zimmermann" is not a work for The New Theatre. That auditorium, comparatively small though it may be, is too large for the intimate comedy, unresponsive to the long stretches of German speech. A German audience in a very small theatre would undoubtedly enjoy the piece, but it is not likely that the subscribers of this institution will.

The obvious merit of the piece is proclaimed by the fact that in Germany it has held the stage continuously for seventy years. Much of this success is undoubtedly due to the libretto, for which Lortzing also was responsible, but the score plays its share in this popularity. The music is pretty, and ripples along at a fast-enough gait, even though it be a bit old fashioned. In the first act Von Bett's air, "O Sancta Justitia," is amusing, if somewhat naïve in spirit. There is much effective writing for a quartet in the finale of this act. The Marquis's air in the second act is a neat melody, and the sextet which follows it is the best number in the score. Marie's "Brautlied" has a good flavor. In the last act is the "Czaarenlied," which has achieved a certain sort of fame in Germany.

The story of the opera is concerned with Peter the Great, who disguises himself and works in a shipyard at Saardam in Holland in order to acquaint himself with the ways of the people. The first act discloses the Czar and Peter Ivanoff, a deserter from the Russian Army, working together. The British and French Ambassadors, having been notified that the Czar is there in disguise, come in search of him, wishing to negotiate a treaty with him. The British Ambassador employs the Burgomaster of the village, who is a pompous individual, to find a Russian named Peter for him, without telling the Burgomaster that he is searching for the Czar. The Burgomaster of course mistakes Peter Ivanoff for the man wanted, brings him to the Ambassador, who takes him to be the Czar and gives him a passport so that he may go to England. Meanwhile the people of Saardam, being informed that the Czar is with them, prepare a reception for him.

The French Ambassador is more successful in his attempt at discovery. He tells Peter a story of a Russian disaster which causes him to betray himself. The Czar wishes to return to Russia and crush out the rebellion without the knowledge of the Dutch and the English. Finding out by chance that Ivanoff has an English passport, he secures it and gives Ivanoff another paper, which he is not to open for an hour. The festivities in honor of the Czar continue, when suddenly the gate of the great hall is opened, disclosing the port. The Czar, with the Russian and French Ambassadors, is sailing away. Ivanoff opens the paper to learn the identity of his companion in the shipyard. The Czar has given him a title as well as his consent to his marriage to Marie, the burgomaster's niece, who is the woman figure in the play. With the main plot she has little to do, but she manages by philandering with the French Ambassador, to make Peter Ivanoff very jealous.

The performance last night was a most excellent one, and for this a great deal of the praise must undoubtedly go to Mr. Dippel and Mr. Hertz. It is through Mr. Dippel that the public is given the opportunity to take a taste of a school of operas which is virtually unknown here, and it is through the generalship of Mr. Hertz that the music fared so well at the hands of the orchestra. A more spirited performance could not have been demanded.

Mr. Goritz, as the pompous Burgomaster, was undoubtedly the central figure of the performance. He played the part with the most unctuous humor, and succeeded in creating much merriment by his action, even among those who did not understand German. He sang the music allotted to him in the proper style.

Miss Alten, too, was altogether delightful as Marie, the kind of a part in which she is inimitable. She sang her music extremely well and acted the part with the dash and charm which it needs.

Mr. Whitehill sang the part of the Czar, for which Mr. Forsell was originally cast. The illness of that Scandinavian singer made a substitution necessary. It can hardly be said that the American baritone did himself justice in a part which he has had so short a time to learn. He will doubtless improve in it. But last night he sang the music of the Czar, which is the most serious in the score, with a beautiful tonal quality, and played the part with the dignity which it demands. Mr. Jörn's voice made the part of the French Ambassador stand out. Mr. Reiss was most amusing as the second Peter. Others who aided in giving the performance lustre were Miss Mattfeld and Messrs. Muhlmann and Blass.

The wooden shoe dance in the third act of the score was transferred to the second act. In the third act a ballet was interpolated, the music being Dvorak's Slavic Dances, which sounded strangely modern after Lortzing's music. To the ballet, however, must be given the credit of one of the successes of the evening. Mme. Thamara de Swirsky made her first appearance with the company on this occasion in a dance which was really beautiful, and Miss Ivy Craske, a young English dancer, also made her début with success.

The chorus sang with great spirit and the necessary volume. The settings were handsome, particularly that of the third act. To Mr. Schertel must be given a word of praise for the excellent stage management.

William A. Becker Recital.

William A. Becker, a pianist of American origin and European experience, gave a recital yesterday afternoon in Mendelssohn Hall. Mr. Becker could hardly have expected in these days crowded with music a larger audience than he had, although he is a pianist of artistic instincts and no inconsiderable attainments. He has an admirable feeling for tone and variety of tonal coloring on the piano, and gained some interesting results in this direction. His rhythmical sense can hardly be strongly developed in him, or he would not have treated some of the music he played quite as he did, especially the last movement of Beethoven's "Waldstein" sonata. He gave in other respects an excellent performance of that sonata. There was poetic feeling in this and several of his other numbers.

In Aid of Crippled Children.

For the benefit of the Association for the Aid of Crippled Children Kate Jordan's play, "Miss Daken," will be presented at the Hackett Theatre through the courtesy of Lee Shubert on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, Dec. 14 and 15. The play has never been acted in New York, and as many fashionable women are deeply interested in the association, a large audience is expected. Miss Eleanor Erving, 17 West Fiftieth Street, will have seats and boxes for sale, and they may also be obtained at the box office.

GRAHAM—HARRISON.

The wedding of William Alston Graham, formerly of Washington, D. C., and Miss Madeleine Harrison, daughter of Mrs. William Henry Harrison, took place yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the residence of the bride's mother, 103 East Thirty-eighth Street, the bride being a Protestant and the bridegroom a Roman Catholic. Mgr. M. J. Lavelle of St. Patrick's Cathedral officiated. The bride wore a white satin robe, with point lace, and a point-lace veil worn by several brides in the family and formerly belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. Peter C. Baker. Her cousin, T. Chesley Richardson, gave her in marriage. She carried lilies of the valley and white orchids.

Mr. Graham's best man was Cornell S. Hawley. There were no ushers and the bride had no attendants.

None but relatives and a few intimate friends were present at the ceremony, which was followed by a small reception.

GANTERT—DRAZ.

Carleton Palmer Gantert and Miss Emily Draz daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Draz of New York, were married yesterday evening in All Angels' Protestant Episcopal Church, Broadway and Eighty-first Street. The Rev. Dr. Delancey Townsend officiated at the ceremony, which was supplemented by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, 122 West Seventy-second Street. Remsen Williams was best man, and the ushers were William Long, Edwin Updike, William K. Grove, Herbert Steyn, and Rudolf Draz. Mrs. William K. Grove was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Hazel Crawford, Ellen Gleason, Annette Buckley, Lillian Smith, Catherine Lawrence, and Miriam Howe.

SCHIEREN—MATHEWS.

LEVERICH—PERRY.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Leverich of Corona, L. I., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mathilde G. Leverich, to John Moore Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Hazard Perry of Newtown, L. I.

BODINE—BABCOCK.

Dr. John A. Bodine and Mrs. Bodine of New York have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Gertrude Ferrell Bodine, to Frederick Howard Babcock, U. S. N.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"His Name on the Door," now playing at the Bijou Theatre, will move to the Garden Theatre next Monday to continue its run. The Garden has been dark so far this season. Other bookings at the Bijou is the reason given for the removal.

More souvenirs will be given away at Saturday's matinée of "The Chocolate Soldier" at the Lyric Theatre. These souvenirs are boxes of candy containing real chocolate soldiers.

The thirty girls from Cleveland, Ohio, winners of a newspaper contest, visited the performance of "The Climax" at Weber's Theatre last night.

To-night's performance of "The Fourth Estate" at Wallack's Theatre will be for the benefit of the Co-operative Service League, and the proceeds will be used for the erection of hotels for women. Between the third and fourth acts of the play addresses will be made by several leaders in the movement for woman's suffrage.

Connie Ediss has been engaged by Charles Frohman for an important comedy role in "The Arcadians."

Tim Murphy, the comedian, has obtained a new play, "The Poor Rich," by Paul Wilstach, for early production. Mr. Murphy will continue on tour in his two comedies, "Cupid and the Dollar" and "Old Innocence," until he is ready to produce the new play. He is ment obtained in 1898; Oliver Dowd

Nora Bayes and Jack Norworth have rejoined "The Follies of 1909" and will resume their old roles next Monday night, at the Grand Opera House, New York.

Arrangements were made yesterday by Wagenhals & Kemper and J. C. Williamson, the Australian manager, for the production of "Paid in Full" in that country by Katherine Grey. Miss Grey is to tour Australia under the Williamson management in a repertoire of plays that will include, besides "Paid in Full," "The Whirlpool," by Maximilian Foster, that Wagenhals & Kemper brought out last Spring.

Mary Garden gave a box party at the Savoy Theatre last night, to witness a performance of "The Awakening of Helena Richie." Between the acts she visited Margaret Anglin in her dressing room.

"Mrs. Dot," by W. Somerset Maugham, will be the play in which Billie Burke will appear at the Lyceum Theatre on Dec. 13.

MUSIC NOTES.

Mme. Lillian Nordica will make her reappearance at the Metropolitan Opera House after an absence of four years on Wednesday, Dec. 8, as Isolde, in "Tristan und Isolde." Arturo Toscanini will conduct, and the cast will be otherwise the same as that which was heard on last Saturday afternoon.

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink will sing at the Metropolitan Opera House at the concert next Sunday evening.

CHARLES S. SMITH, OLD MERCHANT, DEAD

Headed the Committee of Seventy, Which Brought About Mayor Strong's Nomination—His Interest in Art.

Charles Stewart Smith, noted in the commercial, financial, political, artistic, and social affairs of this city for years, died yesterday of pleurisy at his home, 25 West Forty-seventh Street. Born 77 years ago in Exeter, N. H., he came here as a boy without capital or backing and rose steadily till he headed the dry goods firm of Smith, Hogg & Gardiner, and was elected President of the Chamber of Commerce. Once he was offered the Republican nomination for Mayor, and several times he was spoken of for that of Governor, but he steadily refused to run for political office.

On his father's side he came from those who settled in the Connecticut Valley in 1681, and the names of two ancestors—Lieut. Samuel Smith, Sr., and Richard Treat—figure prominently in Colonial history. His mother's father was Aaron Dickinson, at one time Attorney General of New Jersey. His own father was a Congregational clergyman of Exeter, N. H. He taught his son Greek and Latin and sent him to the village school. The boy so quickly learned that at 15 he was teaching school himself in Connecticut. When 16 years old he became clerk in a dry goods jobbing house, his energy advanced him, and at 21 was partner of S. B. Chittenden & Co. and as their representative went abroad. This gave him a chance he had longed for, to see the great paintings and pictures which had always interested him. His work kept him largely in Glasgow and Manchester, but considerably in Paris, and he could often visit London. So he developed the natural taste for art which was finally, combined with business success, to make him life member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Academy of Design, and owner of a famous collection of pictures.

At this time he was married to Eliza Bradish of this city, but she died in 1863. He on his return from Europe organized the dry goods firm of Smith, Hogg & Gardiner, which had also a dry goods commission business, and as its senior partner he brought it the highest success. He married again in 1869 Henrietta H. Caswell, and when in 1887 he retired from business his son took a place in the firm. He retired because of his many public interests, and in the same year was elected President of the Chamber of Commerce; the next year he was re-elected unanimously, and for seven years thereafter.

He had been among the founders of the Fifth Avenue Bank and the German-American Insurance Company. His name was on the Directorate of the United States Trust Company, the Fourth National Bank, the Fifth Avenue Bank, the Greenwich Savings Bank, and the Equitable Life Assurance Society. He was Trustee of the Presbyterian Hospital, and in 1879 had headed the Chamber of Commerce Committee on Railroad Transportation. He was also a member of the old Rapid Transit Commission.

Mr. Smith headed, in 1894, the famous Committee of Seventy which brought about the nomination and election of W. L. Strong as Mayor; he stood prominently forth in the Citizens' Union when Seth Low was nominated; the committee he then headed for that organization, bringing about Low's nomination, led to the polling of 150,000 votes.

All this time Mr. Smith, traveling considerably abroad, had been active in artistic lines. He was one of those whose vigorous advocacy led to the opening of the Metropolitan Museum of Art on Sunday afternoons; he spoke for a gallery exclusively devoted to American art; he had presented to the Museum a valuable collection of Chinese and Japanese porcelains gathered abroad, and some of the pictures in his own collection included the works of these men: Messonnier, Diaz, Dupre, Daubigny, De la Croix, Decamps, Detaille, Troyon, Gerome, Domingo, Cavanel, Gleyre, Knause, Rousseau, Bargue, Jules Breton, Defragge, Boldini, Zamacois, Millet, Fortuny, Corot, Edouard Frere, Leloir, Ziem, De Neuville, Shreyer, Van Marcke, Cazin, and Munkacsy. He had also examples of the work of many well-known American painters.

On Nov. 18 Mr. Smith, apparently in good health, attended the annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce. Then next day he was taken with pleurisy and finally double pneumonia set in, and, according to Dr. Jasper J. Garmany, this caused his death. His clubs were the Union League, Lawyers', Players, Century, and Merchants'. He was a member of the New England Society, the Sons of the Revolution, and the Society of the Colonial Wars.

Vaudeville Matinee for Bide-a-Wee Home.

A vaudeville entertainment will be given on Friday afternoon, Dec. 17, at the Waldorf-Astoria in aid of the Bide-a-Wee Home for friendless animals. This organization, in which many women well-known in society are interested, has rescued the last year more than 6,000 animals. It recently opened a country home at Harrington Park, N. J., in connection with the city home at 36 Lexington Avenue, and urgently needs funds for the work, which is supported entirely by voluntary contributions. An attractive programme has been arranged by Frank Ferguson, and several well-known actors and actresses have consented to assist.

SOCIETY WOMEN HAVE A SALE.

The New York Exchange for Woman's Work of 334 Madison Avenue held a sale at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday afternoon at which there was a large attendance, and much of the work of its thousands of consignors was sold. This included fancy articles of all kinds and many beautiful things in the way of laces and jewelry which have been in possession of the owners for years but which they feel that they cannot keep longer and must have turned into money. Two shawls, one of red Chinese silk and embroidery and another of a soft shade of blue cashmere with a wonderful Persian border, sold for $50 each. A beautiful rose-point wedding gown the exchange offered as a whole for $3,000, different pieces, flounces, fichus, bodice, and skirt selling separately. The skirt was priced at $1,800.

Cakes, jellies, and preserves, rolls, prepared bread crumbs, a new cheese sandwich mixture were a few of the edibles. The managers of the exchange, New York society women, acted as saleswomen.

Miss Elise Ladew's Reception.

Miss Marjorie Bourne Introduced.

Mrs. Frederick G. Bourne gave a reception yesterday afternoon in the annex of the Metropolitan Club to introduce her daughter, Miss Marjorie Bourne. Receiving with Mrs. Bourne and her daughter, who wore a gown of mauve satin, were the Misses Rosalind Romeyn, Bessie Yoakum, Muriel Kelley, and Mrs. Anson W. Hard, Jr. (Miss Florence Bourne.) After the reception there was a small dinner before the cotillion to which Mrs. Bourne took a few of Miss Bourne's friends.

Social Notes.

Mrs. Thomas H. Barber will give a reception this afternoon at 45 East Sixty-eighth Street to introduce her stepdaughter and niece, Miss Justine Van Rensselaer Barber.

Mrs. Frederic N. Goddard of 33 East Fiftieth Street will give a tea this afternoon for her niece, Miss Elizabeth Love Godwin, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herald Godwin.

Miss Eleanor Livingston Burrell will make her début this afternoon at a reception given by Mrs. Edward Livingston Burrell at her residence, 8 West Forty-eighth Street. Mrs. George W. Forsyth is giving a dance for Miss Burrell on Dec. 9 at Sherry's.

Mrs. J. Francis Aloysius Clark will have a luncheon of twenty covers to-day at her home, 13 East Thirty-eighth Street.

Mrs. Woodruff G. Langdon, whose daughter, Miss Helen Montgomery Langdon, made her début yesterday, will give a cotillion on Friday, Dec. 17, at her residence, 719 Fifth Avenue. Alexander M. Hadden will lead.

Miss Gertrude B. Pardee, the daughter of Dr. Ensign B. Pardee and Mrs. Pardee of 74 West Forty-eighth Street, will make her début at a reception to be given on Saturday, Dec. 11. Mrs. Pardee will give a theatre party and dance for her daughter later in the month.

Mrs. William Archer Thomson has postponed the début of her daughter, Miss Edith Moore Thomson, until next year.

Mrs. Elmslie Morven Gillet of 158 East Thirty-eighth Street will introduce her daughter, Miss Mildred Gillet, this afternoon at a tea.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald A. Bramwell have returned from Havana, Cuba, and are at 901 Lexington Avenue for the Winter.

Mrs. Warren McConihe will give a reception at her residence, 449 Park Avenue, on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. McConihe, who were married about a year ago, have spent much of the time since traveling in Turkey, Russia, and Asia.

Mrs. Frederick Roosevelt is giving a luncheon on Dec. 4 for Miss Baker of Paris.

No date has been set for the wedding of Miss Anita Wolfe Richardson Hanna and Paul Primus Marcarrone di Giovanni, son of Giovanni Marcarrone Giovanni, which was announced yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bushrod R. Bayne of Short Hills, N. J., are stopping at the Hotel Wol[illegible] for a few weeks.

Obituary Notes.

WILLIAM TOMPKINS, whose grandfather, Daniel D. Tompkins, was Governor of this State, a purchasing agent for a dental company, and at one time purser on a Fall River steamer, died yesterday at his home, Townsend Avenue, Clifton, S. I. He was born in Staten Island in 1846. He was President of the Ten Mile Walking Club, an officer of the Tompkins Lodge of Masons, No. 471, and member of the First Presbyterian Church of Stapleton. He is survived by a widow and one son.

BENJAMIN RODMAN WELD, President of the Lyman Mills, and Director of many important companies, died on Sunday of heart trouble in Jamaica Plain, Mass. He was 68 years old. He entered Harvard University, but instead of graduating, took a trip round the world, stopping mainly in the Far East, where his father, an East Indian merchant, had large interests. He was Director of the Webster and Atlas Bank, the National Rockland Bank, Roxbury, the Manchester Mills, the Arkwright Mutual Fire Insurance Company, the Sun Cook Mills, and the Pocasset Manufacturing Company.

Capt. JOHN DOWNING, who passed his 103d birthday on July 4 last, died at his home at Little Creek, near Dover, Del., yesterday. Capt. Downing served in the civil war, holding the position of Master-at-Arms on the Uniter States gunboat Yankee.

Col. CYRUS SEARS, commander of the Forty-ninth Negro Infantry during the civil war, and who received a medal of honor for bravery, died in Upper Sandusky, Ohio, yesterday. He was 78 years old.

JOHN DAVIS, for many years recognized as a realty expert in this city, is dead at the age of 75, at his home, 620 West 132d Street, of heart disease. For fifty years he had been in the real estate business here, although by birth an Englishman. He retired two years ago, and his sons continued his business at 95 Liberty Street. Several times Mr. Davis acted as Appraiser for the city, once, when the property for the site of the Hall of Records was bought, and again in calculating the values and sites of Hamilton Fish and Seward Parks. He served also in that capacity for the Manhattan Elevated Railroad. He is survived by two daughters, four sons, and a widow.

Dr. ISABELLA M. WILSON, a prominent physician of Middletown, N. Y., formerly of New York City, died at her home in Middletown Tuesday, aged 59 years. She was the wife of the Rev. Dr. Frank L. Wilson, pastor of St. James' Methodist Episcopal Church of Kingston, and former Presiding Elder of the Kingston District. She was born in Belfast, Ireland, and came to this country in 1869. She was graduated from the New York Homeopathic Medical College, class of 1894, and after a post graduate course practiced medicine in New York.

ISADORE NEWMAN, head of the banking firm of Isadore Newman & Sons of New Orleans, and one of the best-known capitalists of the South, died at his home in New Orleans yesterday, after an illness of several weeks. He was largely interested in street railway enterprises.

HUBERT O'ROURKE, who for thirty-six years had been a policeman in Jersey City, died yesterday morning of pneumonia in St. Francis's Hospital, Jersey City. He was born in Ireland 63 years ago.

WILLIAM RICHARDSON, a retired cloth merchant, died yesterday in his apartment, 328 West Fifty-seventh Street, from a general breakdown that resulted from old age. He was nearly 87 years old, and has been all but blind for the last twelve months. He was born in Oneida County, and there had his schooling. When only 16 years old he came to this city and went into the cloth business. Later he founded the wholesale cloth firm of Richardson, Weaver & Co., and till a few years ago, when his health forced retirement, conducted it. He is survived by two sons and a daughter.

ANNA RANDALL DIEHL, said to be President of the oldest Shakespeare Club in America, and a prominent member of several womans' clubs in this city, died yesterday. She belonged to the Mary Arden Club, Sorosis, the Daughters of the Empire State, the Woman's Press Club, and the New Yorkers. Her funeral will take place on Dec. 3 at 11 A. M. at the Church of the Transfiguration, Twenty-ninth Street, near Fifth Avenue.

GEORGE LIED, Jr., prominent in Masonic circles, died yesterday after a long illness at his home, 551 West 178th Street. He was 46 years old. He belonged to the Tecumseh Lodge, the Brooklyn Lodge of Elks, 22; Kismet Temple, Scottish Rite Bodies, and Masonic Veterans.

BISHOP T. A. HENDRICK DEAD.

MANILA, Nov. 30.—Bishop T. A. Hendrick of the diocese of Cebu, died to-day of cholera. The iBshop had been gravely ill for several months, and a brother of Mgr. Hendrick recently came here from New York in the hope that he would be able to take the sick man home.

Thomas Augustine Hendrick was born at Penn Yan, N. Y., on Oct. 29, 1849. He was one of sixteen children, and two of his brothers, one of whom is Peter J. Hendrick, Justice of the Supreme Court, are well known in this city. Bishop Hendrick was educated at St. John's College, and later studied for the priesthood at Seton Hall and St. John's Provincial Seminary at Troy, N. Y.

He was ordained a priest in 1873 and assigned as assistant pastor of St. Mary's Church, in Rochester. He remained there only one year, when he became pastor of the Holy Cross Church at Charlotte, N. Y., and thereafter served in several pastorates throughout the State. He was acting pastor of St. Bridget's Church in Rochester when he received a summons from the late Pope Leo XIII. to come to Rome and prepare for consecration as the first American Bishop of Cebu. While he was traveling to Rome Pope Leo died and the Rev. Hendrick was consecrated Bishop in Rome by Cardinal Satolli, who had previously served as papal delegate to Washington.

DUKE KARL THEODOR DEAD.

BAIREUTH, Bavaria, Nov. 30.—Duke Karl Theodor of Bavaria, died to-day from kidney trouble. Duke Karl never figured prominently in military or political affairs, but studied medicine and became a famous eye specialist. He maintained several private hospitals where the poor were treated free and did much to introduce some sort of sanitation in the homes of the mountaineers.

He was the head of the Ducal line of the Bavarian House. One of his sisters, the Empress of Austria, was murdered in Geneva. Another sister married the Duke de Alenzon and was burned to death in the Paris Charite fire. One of his daughters is the wife of Crown Prince Albert of Belgium, and another daughter married Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, a grandson of the Prince Regent, and who will succeed probably to the throne upon the death of the insane King Otto.

Marriage and death notices intended for insertion in The New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

Twice within three hours of the time this is written we've been complimented on the fact that "our suits have no ready made look."

Why should they, if "ready made" is meant as a synonym for the commonplace and cheap?

We use precisely the same class of woolens as the best custom tailors—same quality, same weaves.

We cut and make our suits with the same care.

We're just as careful of the reputation of our customers as well dressed men.

Of course they're luxuries, but there's a certain satisfaction in the "feel" of a heavy all linen collar.

Very light.

Plain or gold mounted.

Cigarette and cigar cases in all sorts of leather as well.

What's your underwear preference?

All wool, all silk, all cotton, silk and wool, wool and cotton, linen or Ramie?

Single garments or perfect fitting union suits?

All here.

The best foot rule for wet weather!

Called "Soudan Buck."

JAIL PENALTY FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

ORGANIZATION WELL FIXED

Annual Report Shows $12,000 in Treasury with Membership of 25,759—Manufacturers Have Busy Time.

Speed regulations and the necessity for a more stringent observance of the rules of the road formed one of the most important topics of discussion yesterday at the annual meeting of the American Automobile Association at the Hotel Belmont. The attendance was thoroughly representative of the leading automobile sections of the country, about fifty Directors being present, the States sending the biggest delegations being New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Minnesota, Michigan, and Ohio.

Oliver A. Quayle, Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the New York State Association, opened the subject of reckless driving, which in some sections has caused autoists to be severely attacked, by offering a resolution which goes much further than any formal action hitherto taken by the National Association to curb motor recklessness and insist upon sane and reasonable driving. The motion places the association on record as favoring even the revocation of licenses and jail penalties in proportion to the extent of the offenses.

Mr. Quayle further explained that recent conditions in automobiling not only warranted but enforced some action by motorists who have the best interests of automobiling at heart, to prevent future repetitions of accidents and recklessness in driving which have agitated many parts of the country.

A large part of the meeting was devoted to the presentation of reports by the officers and Chairmen of the various boards. The new Directors will meet to-day for the election of officers. Both the Secretary's and the Treasurer's reports show that the National organization is in the best condition numerically and financially in its history. Treasurer H. A. Bonnell reported an approximate balance of $12,000. Secretary Elliott's report showed that during the past year the membership has increased by 50 per cent., the present membership being 25,759, representing thirty State associations. The total number of clubs affiliated with the A. A. A. is 225. Six new State associations were formed during the year.

President Lewis R. Speare's report dealt with the increasing interest in automobiling in its various phases throughout the country, as shown by the success of the work done by the Contest, Legislative, Good Roads, and Touring Information Boards.

In view of the fact that Chairman Frank B. Hower of the Contest Board indicated that he wished to retire from that position at the expiration of his time, and in recognition of the work he has accomplished for the association, a resolution presented by Chairman Charles Thaddeus Terry of the Legislative Board expressing the gratitude of the association for Mr. Hower's successful efforts was unanimously adopted.

Chairman George C. Diehl of the Good Roads Boar dspoke of the success of the second National Good Roads Convention, held in Cleveland last September, and urged all the members to support to the utmost the third National Convention, which will be held in St. Louis next Fall. Mr. Diehl said that the good roads movements in this country has just begun, and he suggested that special good roads meetings be held during the year by all automobile, Grange, and farmers' clubs.

Chairman Terry of the Legislative Board presented an exhaustive report of the work of his committee and outlined the general plan that has been proposed for the first National Legislative Convention, which will be held in Washington next February. At that time the National Registration bill will be reintroduced into Congress, and it is expected that a public hearing upon the merits of the bill will be held during the week of the convention. The uniform State motor vehicle law will also be brought prominently before the members, and efforts will be made to secure its introduction in the Legislatures of those States which either possess no effective motor laws or those which in certain instances have been shown to be unreasonable in their provisions.

Lewis R. Speare, President, who presided; Gorton W. Allen, Auburn, N. Y.; George B. Baird, Oneonta, N. Y.; H. A. Bonnell, East Orange, N. J.; A. G. Batchelder, Summit, N. J.; W. H. Chase, Leominster, Mass.; A. D. Converse, Winchendon, Mass.; John P. Coghlin, Worcester, Mass.; E. P. Chalfant, New York; S. Boyer Davis, Philadelphia, Penn.; George C. Diehl, Buffalo, N. Y.; J. H. Edwards, Jersey City, N. J.; F. H. Elliott, New York; Powell Evans, Philadelphia, Penn.; Dr. J. N. Faulkner, Paterson, N. J.; C. H. Gillette, Hartford, Conn.; Robert P. Hooper, Philadelphia, Penn.; C. W. Holmes, Elmira, N. Y.; Dr. W. H. Card, Minneapolis, Minn.; A. E. Lerche, Springfield, Mass.; S. A. Miles, New York; William E. Metzger, Detroit, Mich.; George A. Post, Paterson, N. J.; Oliver A. Quale, Albany, N. Y.; Dr. W. P. Richardson, Brooklyn, N. Y.; the Hon. John B. Rose, Newburg, N. Y.; M. L. Ryder, Albany, N. Y.; H. C. Schock, Mount Joy, Penn.; Charles Thaddeus Terry, New York; George H. Waters, New Brighton, S. I.; Joseph H. Weeks, Philadelphia, Penn.; Paul C. Wolff, Pittsburg, Penn., and John A. Wilson, Franklin, Penn.

There were also present W. O. Griffith, Secretary Touring Information Board; Howard Longstreth, member Automobile Club of Philadelphia; Bert Van Tuyle, Secretary New York State Automobile Association and Rochester Automobile Club, and E. L. Ferguson, Secretary American Automobile Association Contest Board.

A general meeting of the Board of Directors of the American Motor Car Manufacturers' Association was held at the association rooms, 505 Fifth Avenue, yesterday. The report of the tenth annual show was read by S. H. Mora, the Treasurer of the association, and showed that 325 exhibitors had secured spaces at the Grand Central Palace for the exhibition. It will be the only international show held in this country, as fourteen imported cars of different makes will be shown among the eighty-eight motors on the catalogue. General routine work and the general patent situation were discussed during the meeting.

There was a good attendance yesterday at the monthly meeting of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers, but nothing of importance transpired. It was expected that several important matters would be decided, but as no definite action was taken the meeting resolved itself into routine work.

The ninth annual banquet of the Long Island Automobile Club will be held this evening, when the newly elected officers of the American Automobile Association will be guests of the club. The presentation of the trophies won during the year will be a feature of the affair.

MANY PROMOTORS HERE

Coffroth, Graney, McCarey, and Rickard Come from Coast in an Endeavor to Secure the Bout.

It's a good many years since Broadway heard so much fight talk as it did yesterday. With the arrival of Eddie Graney of San Francisco in the city the collection of prize-fight promoters from the West was complete, and every one is wondering who will get the Jim Jeffries-Jack Johnson fight when Stakeholder Bob Murphy opens the bids in Hoboken this morning at 11 o'clock. Last night it was rumored that a number of local sportsmen were certain that none of the responsible Western promoters would offer more than $75,000, and it was said that these New Yorkers would quickly amalgamate themselves into a syndicate and put in a bid, accompanied by a certified check of $5,000 before the bids were opened to-day. The Westerners do not take this rumor seriously, but the New York men say they can go to the coast and make suitable arrangements for the big fight as well as the native Californians. This, however, is not likely to happen.

Stakeholder Murphy said last night that he had about a dozen bids which will be opened to-day. He has no idea, he said, how high the bids run, and he will not know how many are accompanied by the required guarantee of $5,000 until the long envelopes are torn open. There are also a number of offers which will not be taken seriously. The fight managers who were causing most of the talk yesterday were Tom McCarey of Los Angeles, Jim Coffroth of Colma, Jack Gleason and Eddie Graney of San Francisco. Graney was the last man to arrive on the scene, and he had little to say about his bid. He represents the Tuxedo Club of San Francisco, and says he has put in a bid which he thinks will top all the others. But all the others are saying this same thing.

Tom McCarey says he has put in a high bid, and if he gets the fight he will hold it at Vernon, which is about five miles outside of Los Angeles. There is a big arena there, where Jim Jeffries used to conduct fights when he was a pugilistic impresario a few years ago. The arena at Vernon can be enlarged to accommodate a crowd of any size, Mr. McCarey says.

There was some talk yesterday that Jim Coffroth had an unusually large bid in because he had an arrangement with a moving picture concern which warranted him in outbidding the other competitors. All the managers say that their respective arenas have the most suitable features for the moving pictures. This end of the fight will undoubtedly play a big part in the awarding of the bid, because the motion pictures of the battle will mean thousands of dollars for the promoters and fighters. Gleason is not saying much, and as he is close to both Jeffries and his manager, Sam Berger, it is believed that his bid is well up among the leaders.

The breeziest figure that has come to town looking for the fight is "Tex" Rickard, the cowboy, who pulled off the first Gans-Nelson fight and had a $50,000 house at the bout. Rickard was yesterday trying to get a line on what the other men had bid and was ready to boost the highest price that had been offered. Rickard is a picturesque Westerner and appears ready and game enough to go after the fight at any cost. He says he can hold the fight in Reno or Ely, Nevada, or even among the Mormons in Salt Lake City, Utah.

There was a lot of speculation among the managers yesterday about how much money the Jeffries-Johnson fight would draw. Most of them regard it as the biggest pugilistic card that was ever framed, and they say that the receipts will be greater than any fight that has ever been held in this or any other country. The fight which is said to have drawn the biggest gate money in recent years was the Jeffries-Sharkey fight at Coney Island, when the receipts were over $65,000. But the managers say that even if the fight doesn't draw more than this amount they are justified in offering $75,000 or more for the fight on account of the large receipts which are sure to come from the moving pictures.

Columbia Starts Hockey Practice.

The Columbia hockey squad held its first ice practice at St. Nicholas Rink yesterday evening. Twenty men reported to Coach Von Berduth, who put them through some practice in team work, after a short drill in the more elementary points of the game. The freshmen will hold their first practice on Thursday morning at 7:30 o'clock. For the entire squad a training table has been started in the commons, and the men are from now on to be kept in strict training.

Besides the regular intercollegiate schedule and the trip to West Point, games will be played in Albany with Williams on Feb. 25, and with Loudon Field Club on Feb. 26. A Western trip is being planned for the Christmas holidays, but as yet no definite games have been arranged, though Cleveland will probably see at least one game.

O'BRIEN FOR LEAGUE LEADER?

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 30.—That Joseph O'Brien, President of the American Association, is to be candidate of the Murphy-Brush combination for the Presidency of the National League and that they are to bolt John M. Ward of New York is the belief which has sprung up here to-day as the result of a chain of coincidences. Both Murphy and O'Brien came to Cincinnati early this morning. Murphy ha da long talk with Charles P. Taft this afternoon. Neither Murphy nor O'Brien registered at the Hotel Sinton, though both of them stopped there; Murphy and O'Brien had a long conference to-day at noon.

When Murphy left Chicago on Monday he told the newspaper men that when he returned to Chicago on Wednesday from a little visit that he would have something to say about the baseball election. A little later he is seen with O'Brien, whom he has mentioned often as favorite for the place, and holding conferences with Taft and O'Brien. Yet it cannot be absolutely said that he is to vote for O'Brien, even though the wind blows pretty strongly in that direction.

Asked if he cared to make a statement in regard to the names of the capitalists connected with the purchase of the Philadelphia club President Murphy said with emphasis:

"I am not discussing that deal in any phase, nor am I making any statements just now in regard to baseball politics."

Mr. Murphy held a long conference with Charles P. Taft, the chief stockholder of the Chicago club, but both declined to make any statement in regard to the Philadelphia club.

However, at the time it was announced that Mr. Murphy had completed the deal for the purchase of the Philadelphia club, The Cincinnati Times-Star, owned by Charles P. Taft, carried a story to the effect that Cincinnati capital was behind the deal. Owing to the close business relationship of Mr. Taft and Mr. Murphy this statement in Mr. Taft's paper inferred that Mr. Taft had furnished some of the "Cincinnati capital" for the Philadelphia deal.

Columbia Athletic Association.

After much discussion a draft of the constitution and by-laws of the Columbia University Athletic Association has been prepared and was presented yesterday for the inspection of the President of the University, the Faculty, and the Student Board of Representatives. Firmly knitted together by this constitution, it is expected that organization will be capable of carrying out the extensive plans which will make it one of the largest associations of its kind among the colleges. Through its Board of Directors, it will have complete control of all athletic affairs of the university.

To manage the financial part of the association a graduate Treasurer, to be elected by the board upon the written approval of the President of the university, is to be chosen, who will be subject to the supervision of the board.

CLINE PLAYS DEMAREST.

First Tie Play-Off for Billiard Honors Will Be Played To-night.

The struggle for the first honors in the billiard tournament for the 18.2 balk-line championship will be continued to-night at Madison Square Garden Concert Hall, when Harry P. Cline of Philadelphia will play Calvin A. Demarest in the first contest to break the three-cornered tie with George Sutton of New York. Demarest defeated Cline in the first round, and Cline won from Sutton. The Philadelphian had a big lead on the former amateur champion, but was unable to maintain it.

The loser will play Sutton to-morrow night, and the final game will be played between the winner and Sutton Friday. The game for fourth money between George Slosson and Albert Cutler will be played to-morrow afternoon.

AUTOMOBILES.

AUTOMOBILE ADVICE TO RESIDENTS OF NEW JERSEY

Whatever automobile you decide to purchase, it is decidedly to your advantage to get it of a New Jersey dealer. All cars need little adjustments and attentions on the start, to which you are entitled, and it is most important that the New Jersey agent have an interest in the car.

In addition, all contracts with manufacturers require dealers to sell only in their own territory. You want a clear title to your car.

CARRYING EXTRA TIRES, an extra wheel or extra rims with tires already on does not prevent tire trouble nor stop expense. But with the average automobile it is the only thing to do, for practically all effort toward handling tire trouble is along the line of getting on a new tire as quickly as possible. This is expensive, illogical and unmechanical.

Prevention of trouble rather than expensive ways to fix up after the trouble has happened is what you want. And that is the Franklin method.

In everything in an automobile, except tires, you expect and demand reliability. You do not carry extra drive shafts, extra axles or extra transmission parts. You are confident these parts are correctly proportioned and have the proper strength. Why not make the same demand of the tire equipment?

The proportion of tire size and strength to the automobile is purely a mechanical question, subject to exactly the same treatment as construction questions in any other part of the automobile; i. e., the tires should be large enough and strong enough, with margin to spare, to do the work.

It is probably true that some automobiles are so heavy that tires cannot be obtained that are large enough to properly do the work. Others are so stiff and rigid that their tires get undue punishment.

Light and flexible, the Franklin is easy on any tires—it has always been noted for that—and now all Franklin models with their large wheels have extra large tires so that tire trouble is not a factor.

Our tire sizes for 1910 are: Model H, rear 37 x 5 inches, front 36 x 4½ inches; Model D, rear 36 x 4½ inches, front 36 x 4 inches; Model G, rear 32 x 4 inches, front 32 x 3½ inches.

Compare these sizes with the sizes of tires on other automobiles and you will find that our tires are larger even than used on most of the heavy automobiles.

Large tires on a light-weight automobile are a reasonable, sensible proposition. They are durable, economical and efficient. It is the only practical solution of tire trouble. The fact that the tires give so much better service proves their economy and reliability. Tire trouble and useless tire expense are avoided. The danger of puncture by nails is much less. The tires are large and thick; the automobile is light—the force that drives a nail through a tire is the weight of the automobile. Punctures by striking a stone at speed are eliminated because the automobile cannot drive the rim against the stone and break the fabric or rupture the inner tube. The tires are not overloaded.

The Franklin tire equipment is so reliable that it is not necessary to carry extra tires.

Remember that extra tires are carried because of blow-outs and not because of punctures.

Crude rubber is steadily advancing in price. The cost of tires is increasing. You do not want your tires to break down or burst. You want their full life and service. You get this with the Franklin. The tires give service for more than double the mileage of the average automobile.

That the Franklin has advantages for tire economy over other automobiles is well known. With its full-elliptic springs and flexible construction the strain on the tires is minimized. They do not have to take all the force of road shocks; the springs and the laminated-wood chassis frame absorb their share. Then the Franklin is light-weight. Mr. M. A. Michelin, the noted tire manufacturer of France, has shown that every five per cent increase in the weight of an automobile increases the wear and tear on the tires fifteen per cent.

The time to take care of tire trouble and insure economy in tire expense is when you select your automobile. The way to do that is to buy a Franklin. No other automobile offers similar advantages.

The same reasons that make the Franklin easy on tires make it easy to ride in it. Vibration from road shocks is taken up, not transmitted through the automobile to the passengers, as is the case with rigid steel-frame and semi-elliptic-spring construction. And the larger the tires to the weight of the automobile the easier it rides.

CHICAGO SUBWAY PLANS IN DOUBT

Policy of Insiders May Be Known To-day, When Interest on First Lien Bonds Is Due.

SHARES REACH LOWEST MARK

Until Mr. Harriman's Death the Project Was Financed Privately by Himself and J. Ogden Armour.

The December semi-annual interest on the first lien 5 per cent. bonds of the Chicago Subway Company is due to-day at the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, and whether it is met or not will be the first certainty the public will have as to the intention of J. Ogden Armour and the Harriman estate in regard to the future of the property. The exact amount of the first lien bonds outstanding is not definitely known, for besides the $15,842,000 issued in exchange for Illinois Tunnel bonds, there may be others issued for additional Illinois Tunnel bonds, of which last Summer there were $13,000,000 outstanding as security for the $9,500,000 floating debt of the subway company, practically all of which was held by the Armour and Harriman interests.

Representatives of J. Ogden Armour, of the Harriman estate, and of J. B. Russell & Co., who largely financed the original Illinois Tunnel Company, have held intermittent conferences since September with a view to providing for the company's finances until the completion of the system and its full operation should put it on a paying basis, but no information of their intentions has been given out. Early in the negotiations, when the common stock of the company had been breaking heavily in the Curb market, on rumors of an impending reorganization, it was said by bankers in touch with the property that no reorganization or receivership had been discussed, and that it was only the providing of sufficient funds for the full development of the property which occupied the time of the conferees. It was pointed out by these interests that the month of November would see the dock property of the company in full operation, and it was expected that the company would then be able to earn its fixed charges. On the strength of these statements the stock recovered to some extent from its early losses. Yesterday the shares sold down to 4⅝, a new low record, although the volume of trading was small.

No information could be obtained from any of the officers of the company in New York yesterday of the result of the more recent conferences, or whether or not a receivership is contemplated.

The company is capitalized at $50,000,000, of which $45,000,000 is outstanding from the reorganization. In 1904, when the Illinois Tunnel Company, the Illinois Telephone Construction Company, and the Chicago Warehouse and Terminal Company were taken over, the funds for the development of the property were supplied by E. H. Harriman and J. Ogden Armour. Mr. Harriman, upon his entrance into the property, committed it to a policy of waiting until all the railroads of Chicago should be connected up before operations were begun. Since his death it has been necessary to find some other method of supplying funds other than the personally conducted financing which carried the property through the last four years.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Nathaniel C. Sears, attorney for the Illinois Tunnel Company, admitted to-night that reports from New York concerning the Chicago Subway Company were far from a surprise to him.

"The control of the properties will remain in the same strong hands as heretofore if there is a receivership," said Mr. Sears. "The only way the question of receivership comes up is in reorganization of the tunnel company. If there is a receivership applied for, the affairs of the tunnel company will be put in thoroughly good shape. The receivership will be a mere incident.

"The operation of the tunnel company has been such as to make it a heavy obligation to meet the interest of 5 per cent. on the bond issue. A large proportion of the tunnel bonds have been changed for Subway bonds. I am unable to give the figures."

When asked his opinion regarding the probability of failure to meet the interest which will be due to-morrow, Mr. Sears said he preferred not to be quoted.

The annual meeting of the Tunnel Company was called in Chicago for last Monday, but was postponed for a week. Mr. Sears said the meeting probably will be held as scheduled, but refrained from expressing an opinion as to what will occur at it.

MAY HOLD NEW HAVEN STOCK.

New York Central Permitted to Receive Its Quota of New Issue.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 30.—The Public Service Commission has authorized the New York Central Railroad Company to acquire 4,208 1-3 shares of the capital stock of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company at a cost of $526,041.66.

The stock represents the amount the New York Central was entitled to take in an increase of capital of the New York, New Haven & Hartford.

Short Covering on Rumors of Railroad Strike Made Wheat Firm—Foreign Trade Conditions Depress Cotton.

Wheat showed weakness early, with decided pressure on Chicago December on fear of large deliveries owing to the increasing stocks and decreasing cash premiums. Cables were lower, with favorable weather reported in Argentina. Prices ruled about steady at the decline, showing a good advance in the afternoon on rather active covering of shorts on the report that the railway switchmen in the Northwest would begin going out at 6 o'clock at night, and unless some settlement was effected the strike might extend from Duluth to the Pacific Coast. The market was very firm at the close, and final prices were at the best of the day.

The Northwestern markets showed considerable strength on the report, particularly in December, as it was apprehended that the strike would have most effect on the spot and near by situation. The point was made, however, that if the strike became at all general it would not only interfere with receipts of wheat, but also stop the shipments out, thereby curtailing the mill operations and reducing the consumption of wheat. A good export business was reported late, about 60 loads of Durum and Manitoba.

Corn was active and weak early on large receipts, rallying late with wheat. December sold off rather easily on the larger receipts at the West and weakness in cash corn. There were also reports from Western cash houses that the offerings of corn by the country were larger than at any time on the crop. There are many complaints of the quality of the corn, and these complaints and the actual condition are restricting the demand.

Oats were quiet, with prices showing very little change. Cash oats are firmly held, and receipts recently have been of very moderate proportions.

Provisions were somewhat less active and a little lower. Prices showed some reaction from the rapid advance of Monday on lessened nervousness of shorts and some profit taking by speculative holders. The live hog movement, however, is still small, and reports as to the probable supply continue disappointing.

Tuesday.

The heaviest trading on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was early in the day, but the market continued fairly active up to the close. Total sales of 147,720 shares were distributed among sixty-four different issues. Prices most of the day exhibited relative firmness, compared with quotations on the New York Stock Exchange. The last sale of Steel common was at 86¼, compared with a final price on the other board of 86½. That stock led all others in volume. Several of the prominent issues failed to touch as low figures as were reached on the other Exchange, among them Reading, Copper, and Smelting.

COTTON.

The cotton market was dull all day, with a net decline of 1 to 8 points on the leading deliveries. Prices moved slowly and without tendency. There was some selling pressure early and a moderate further decline from the final of Monday. This selling was very largely due to the bearish statements regarding the decrease in consumption of cotton abroad and to predictions that the decrease in spinning and mill operations would be kept up until prices were on a more normal parity with goods.

Against this statement was the rather large volume of spot sales in Liverpool, and the actual disappearance of American cotton this season is but little behind last year. A rather bullish crop estimate was put out by a prominent Wall Street house, inducing some little buying, and in the afternoon a report was current that the National Ginners' preliminary estimate made the amount of cotton ginned up to Dec. 1 only 8,951,000 bales, or 861,000 bales for the period, against 1,403,000 bales for the corresponding period a year ago.

The improvement of the market was not very marked, however, and the volume of both professional and outside interests was much restricted. As the time draws near for the Government report on the crop, and for the Census Bureau figures on the amount of cotton ginned to Dec. 1, there appears to be less and less disposition to take sides on the market excepting for rather limited turns.

If the Government figures should confirm the smaller crop estimates, there is decided confidence expressed by the bulls that prices would be easily carried up to new high levels without delay, while if the figures by any possibility should be in the neighborhood of 11,500,000 bales, it would without doubt unsettle market feeling very materially and give the bears a great leverage against the market.

COFFEE.

There was a quiet market in coffee with sales for the day amounting to 10,000 bags. Prices ruled about steady, closing at net unchanged to 5 points decline. There was comparatively little feature to the news, and traders were apathetic.

Private advices from Brazil said that engagements had been made to the limit of the 9,500,000 exports, but coffee continues to arrive at Santos in large quantities, and the trade is more or less puzzled as to what disposition will be made of this coffee, and whether it will be cheaper to pay carrying charges in Brazil or to pay the extra 20 per cent. export duty beyond the 9,500,000. The foreign markets were generally steady, Havre being unchanged to ¼f higher, while Hamburg was unchanged to ¼ pfennig lower. The Brazilian markets were steady and unchanged. There are now 968,000 bags of Brazilian coffee afloat for the United States.

ELGIN, JOLIET & EASTERN RAILWAY COMPANY
UNITED STATES STEEL CORPORATION

We are advised that these bonds are a legal investment for New York and Massachusetts Life Insurance Companies and for Savings Banks in Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island

Application will be made in due course to list these bonds on the New York Stock Exchange

Mr. A. F. Banks, President of the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern Railway Co. and the Chicago, Lake Shore & Eastern Railway Co., gives full information in regard to these bonds and the mortgaged property in a letter to us, which we summarize as follows:

The bonds are secured by the first and only mortgage on the railways and all other property of the company.

The railways and equipment owned and mortgaged represent an investment of at least $18,000,000. The remaining bonds may only be issued at not to exceed 50% of actual costs of property acquired or improvements and betterments made.

Net earnings for the 5 years, 1904 to 1908, inclusive, have averaged $1,791,304.24 per annum. The annual interest charge of $405,000 on the $9,000,000 bonds issued and $56,000 rentals are the only present fixed charges.

The mortgaged railways furnish exclusive railway facilities for the new plant of the United States Steel Corporation at Gary, Indiana, and the South Chicago and Joliet plants of the Illinois Steel Company. The Company owns 326 miles of tracks and operates 654 miles.

Having sold privately over two-thirds of the issue, we offer the unsold balance for public subscription at 106½ and accrued interest, to net 4.20%.

The subscription will be closed at our offices at or before 3 o'clock P. M. on Wednesday, December 1, the right being reserved to reject any applications, to award a smaller amount than applied for, and to close the subscription list at any time without notice. Payment for the definitive bonds will be required on Monday, December 6, and may be made at any of our various offices.

Subscriptions will also be received by Lloyds Bank, Limited, London, and its branches in England, and at our London Office, No. 5 Lothbury, E. C.

33 WALL STREET.

New York, November 22, 1909.

A special meeting of the stockholders of The Mechanics' National Bank of the City of New York, is hereby called to be held at its banking office, No. 33 Wall Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 23d day of December, 1909, at 12 o'clock noon, for the following purposes:

1. To vote upon resolutions authorizing and approving of the purchase by this Bank of the assets and business of the National Copper Bank, as the same shall appear upon the books of the said Bank at the time of the merger, which shall be at least equal to the assets and business of the said The Mechanics' National Bank of the City of New York, at the time of such merger.

2. To authorize the increase of the capital stock of The Mechanics' National Bank of the City of New York from three million dollars ($3,000,000) to six million dollars, ($6,000,000,) by the issue of thirty thousand (30,000) additional shares, each of the par value of one hundred dollars ($100), which said increased capital stock shall be used for the purpose of acquiring the said assets and business of the National Copper Bank, to the end that the said National Copper Bank may be consolidated and merged with this Bank; and to confirm the action of the Board of Directors in declaring a dividend of 21 per cent., contingent upon the consolidation of this Bank with the National Copper Bank becoming effective.

3. To provide that the Articles of Association of this Bank be amended so that the name of the Bank shall be changed to The Mechanics' and Metals National Bank of the City of New York, so that the Board of Directors shall consist of not less than twenty-five nor more than forty Directors, as from time to time the by-laws may prescribe, so as to provide for additional officers, so as to provide that a number of Directors less than a majority as determined by the by-laws of the Bank shall constitute a quorum, and in the event that the Articles of Association shall be so amended and the Board of Directors increased, then to elect a Board of Directors in accordance with such amendments.

4. In the event that the capital stock shall finally be increased to $6,000,000 by the addition of 30,000 shares, each of the par value of $100, then to waive the right to subscribe for such shares and to authorize the use of such additional shares in acquiring the assets and business of the said National Copper Bank.

And generally to vote upon any and all propositions in connection with the proposed merger and consolidation and the increase in the capitalization, the amendment in the Articles of Association and the issue of the proposed capital stock and the waiver and use thereof, as shall be necessary in order to carry into effect the proposed merger and consolidation and the acquisition by this Bank of the assets and business of the National Copper Bank.

The transfer books of this Bank shall be closed from 12 M., December 11, 1909, to 10 A. M., December 24, 1909.

This meeting is duly authorized and called and this notice is duly given by order of the Board of Directors.

FRANK O. ROE, Cashier.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

RECOVERY AFTER DECLINE

Extensive Short Covering Steadies Prices—Excellent October Railroad Returns—Banks Still Exporting Gold.

There were no developments in the financial situation over Monday night of sufficient moment to justify any expectation that yesterday's stock market would run counter to that of Monday, which was decidedly weak, but after a renewal of weakness in the first hour of business prices began to betray signs of returning strength, and, recovering their early losses, finished the day level with Monday's closing quotations or a trifle better. To all appearances the main influence in the steadier movement of the market after its forenoon decline was found in the covering purchases of speculators, large and small, who have been operating for the fall consistently since the publication of the Standard Oil decision. In a half-dozen issues moderate support was forthcoming when prices broke early in the day, but the buying of this character at no time developed into anything beyond mere support, and was discontinued as soon as the covering of short contracts began. In the parlance of the Stock Exchange the recovery lacked "snap" and left the question of the immediate future of prices open, with the chances favoring further irregularity for the time being. So fixed is the attention of the financial district upon what it considers the consequences of the Standard Oil decision and the treatment of corporation problems in President Taft's message and by Congress that for the moment it has little regard for other happenings of financial import. This is true even of the Rock Island-'Frisco transaction, the consummation of which is expected at any time now, and the influence of which upon the stocks directly concerned was disclosed yesterday in their consistent strength in an otherwise irregular market. Announcement of the intention of the Chicago & Northwestern to increase its stock by at least $30,000,000 was made, and a series of remarkable October gross earnings statements published, embracing Union Pacific, which gained $1,244,000; the Southern Pacific, with an increase of $1,584,000, and the Chesapeake & Ohio, whose gross returns rose $374,000. The Canadian Pacific eclipsed the showing of our own roads, with its gross increase of $2,362,000 for the month.

An advance in call money rates to something over 5 per cent. had been looked for owing to the financing involved in the very heavy Dec. 1 interest and dividend payments, but the maximum quotation of the day was 5 per cent. and the minimum rate 4 per cent. It is possible that with the actual distribution of the funds gathered for the purpose of these payments money may run up later in the week, but nothing above the maximum quotation of the year, thus far 6 per cent., is anticipated. New York exchange at Chicago again ruled at a substantial premium, and on transactions with the interior the banks are doing exceedingly well. On the other hand, their loss to the Sub-Treasury since Friday last has been heavier than in the same period for some weeks past, and engagements of gold for export to South American points or for shipment to Canada also promise to make up an amount to exceed the total of any one week during the movement, with a single exception.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

On the Metal Exchange in London yesterday copper for both spot and future deliveries scored a gain of 7s 6d over the final figures of Monday for both commodities. The market finished strong, closing prices ruling at: Spot, £58 12s 6d; futures, £59 15s. Pig tin ended strong, with spot deliveries up £1 7s 6d, to £142 15s, and future deliveries £1 5s higher, to £144 12s 6d. Spanish pig lead was easier at a recession of 1s 3d, to £13. Spelter was quiet and down 5s, to £23. Cleveland warrants were quoted at 50s.

The copper stocks moved down and up on the Curb yesterday under sluggish trading. At the close many small gains over the opening prices were recorded, though a number of the active issues were even with the opening levels. Chicago Subway responded to the belief that difficulties will result from the failure to provide for the company's future financial needs by reaching a new low record at 4⅝. The close, after transactions of 4,600 shares, was at 4¾. American Tobacco, selling ex dividend, dropped from 430 to 413 on transactions of 280 shares. Among the coppers to show gains were Butte Coalition, which rose from 27½ to 28, after selling down to 27⅛; Miami, which closed ⅝ above the opening, at 17½, after selling down to 16⅝, and Boston Copper, which sold 10,000 shares between 18⅜ and 19½, closing at 19¼, ¾ above the opening. Greene-Cananea, Nevada Consolidated, and Davis-Daly closed even with opening levels, the two former after minor declines.

Why 6% Timber Bonds Are So Popular

Behind your loan you want assets that are valuable and also salable.

Standing timber is an unsurpassed security, BECAUSE

FIRST: Standing timber is a "quick asset." It is a staple—salable at once—on the stump—uncut. It need not, like a railroad or a plant, be sold as a unit. It can be cut up to suit buyers. Therefore, it is readily salable.

SECOND: Standing timber does not depreciate; instead, it is always growing.

THIRD: The consumption of timber is increasing. Timber values are rising.

Write for our circular No. 40, telling about a timber bond issue yielding 6%. This timber on the stump is salable at once for four times the bond issue. The Company is earning six times the interest on the bonds, and two and a half times the interest and sinking fund requirements.

Bonds on a 7.50% Basis

In 1897 we sold Silver Springs, Ocala & Gulf first 4s at 66; a 7½% basis: they now are 96; a 4.40% basis. The company was then under independent management, and was bonded at $12,000 a mile, but has since been acquired by the Atlantic Coast Line. Meanwhile our clients have enjoyed a large income and have a profit of 30 points.

We now offer, to yield about 5½%, the first mortgage bonds of a similarly located property. The company is under independent management, and the bonded debt is limited to $12,000 a mile. The bonds are Safe, yield a large return, and likewise should enhance in value.

Market Outlook Poor.

The general disposition among unbiased traders on the Stock Exchange yesterday was to interpret unfavorably the failure of the market to do anything more than hold its own. As a rule, prices at the close were pretty nearly those in effect at the end of Monday's sharp break. There was, it is true, a rather substantial fall from Monday's final prices in the first hour, but when the losses then suffered had been recovered almost to the fraction the market became dull and relatively heavy. Usually, although not invariably, a market which has struck bottom for the moment declines on the morning following a day of severe breaks, and then rallies in very determined fashion, seldom, if ever, halting until it has surpassed the closing level of the previous day.

At their regular meeting yesterday the members of the Finance Committee of the United States Steel Corporation had before them the figures of one of the most remarkable months in the history of the big combination. While nothing official in the way of a statement regarding November earnings has been made, or is to be expected before the next quarter's report is made in January, it is expected that, in round numbers, the sum of $15,000,000 will approximate the November earnings of the corporation. For the months of October and November $29,000,000 is believed to represent the combined earnings, and those for December are estimated at enough to bring the total in the calendar year, which is also the fiscal year of the corporation, up to $133,000,000. Unfilled orders on the books of the company are expected to be no less than 6,000,000 tons, and while a seasonable slackening in demand is always experienced in the Winter months, business is everywhere so active as to lead to the expectation of another full year for 1910.

Canadian Pacific's Gains.

Apparently the Canadians are not to be outdone in railroad records, for after the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific had issued yesterday their October statements noting gains of $1,244,000 and $1,584,000, respectively, the Canadian Pacific reported a gain for the same month in gross of $2,362,000. Its net increase for the month was $1,731,000, which exceeded, therefore, the best return of the Harriman lines. For the three months of the present fiscal year, July, August, and September, the Canadian road has averaged a gross increase of over $2,000,000 each month and an average monthly net increase of some $1,200,000.

However strong their conviction that the market is going lower, the bears seemed unwilling yesterday to put themselves in a position where they might have to pay the Union Pacific dividend of 2½ per cent., which comes off the stock to-day.

Copper Merger May Consult Taft.

Having in mind the precedent established when a committee of Steel Corporation Directors visited President Roosevelt to find out what his attitude would be were the corporation to take over the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, report had it yesterday that a similar move was to be made in connection with the proposed copper merger with a view of avoiding any step which might call forth action by the Federal Administration to prevent the carrying out of this proposed consolidation. Some of those engaged in the negotiations professed to have no knowledge of any such contemplated move, but the rumors, which were circumstantial, had it that a committee of the copper men interested in the plan were to seek from President Taft next week an expression of the Administration's attitude.

Several important systems reporting earnings for October showed heavy gains yesterday in both gross and net earnings, offering substantial evidence of the further rapid strides which have been made in the growth of railroad traffic in the United States. The Pennsylvania's October statement showed an increase of $1,979,800 in gross and a gain of $1,069,600 in net, while the lines west of Pittsburg reported an increase of $1,511,000 in gross and a gain of $669,500 in net. More striking still in the matter of growth in net earnings was the report of the Southern Pacific, which with an increase of $1,584,847 in gross reported an increase of $1,387,346 in net earnings for October. The Union Pacific, whose statement was also most favorable, showed for October an increase of $1,214,576 in gross and an increase of $554,399 in net. The Canadian Pacific also reported for October yesterday and showed larger gains than any of the roads in the United States, the month's increase in the road's gross earnings being $2,362,626, and its gain in net $1,731,030.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Money was in fair demand and supply on the market to-day, and discounts were easy.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was irregular and quiet. British securities were neglected pending Government action on the budget. Kaffirs and diamond shares eased on realizations. Copper shares started weak but improved sharply under covering operations in spite of rumors of an abandonment of the merger. Foreign bonds were good with the exception of Colombians, which were weak on the announcement of the postponement of the payment of the January coupon.

American securities opened uncertain, but improved later under the lead of Union Pacific, Amalgamated Copper, and Canadian Pacific. At noon the market was steady, with Canadian Pacific 1¼ higher and the rest of the list from unchanged to ⅝ above yesterday's New York closing. Prices in this section hardened in the afternoon on covering orders, but eased on New York selling, especially of United States Steel. The market closed dull and irregular.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The Daily Consular and Trade Report for to-morrow notes the following trade opportunities abroad. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of the item referred to.

4,181—PAPER WANTED BY THE SERVIAN GOVERNMENT.—Consul Robert S. S. Bergh of Belgrade reports that the Servian Government's printing office has invited tenders for the supply of a considerable quantity of paper of different kinds. He has forwarded a translation of the conditions published in the official gazette, according to which an adjudication will be held on Dec. 11.

4,182—MARKET FOR COTTON GOODS.—An American Consul in the Levant has forwarded about fifty samples of cotton goods, with local prices on the same, representing the kinds of cloth for which there is the best demand in that region. The Consul is of the opinion that a good business could be done in American cottons of the variety shown in the samples, especially in flannels, and he states that business in this line will shortly be very important. He furnishes the name of a long-established firm of commission merchants, and suggests American concerns interested in this proposition should get in touch with this house.

4,183—AMERICAN CAPITAL IN TURKEY.—An American Consular officer in Turkey has forwarded the name of a prominent lawyer in his district who desires to enter into communication with American capitalists wishing to invest money in Turkish works, both public and private. He will be at the disposal of any interested party, and will give all information relating to such enterprises.

4,184—AMERICAN MACHINERY AND EQUIPMENT.—A report has been received from an American Consul in the Far East stating that the electric tramway companies in his district appear to be prospering, and their expansion seems assured. He also forwards clippings which announce projected improvements of existing lines and the construction of new ones and states that American manufacturers, through their agencies in that region, will secure a large share of orders for material. An opening for further supplies of American machinery and piping is indicated in the reports of the formation of the numerous new gas companies in his district.

4,185—FARM MACHINERY FOR CANADA.—A business house in Canada writes that it has added a line of farm machinery and would like to get in touch with manufacturers of this class of goods in the United States interested in the Canadian trade.

4,186—INSTALLATION OF WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.—Consul John F. Jewell of Melbourne reports that the Postmaster General has advertised in The Commonwealth Gazette for tenders for the installation of wireless telegraphy with the Commonwealth. Interested parties may obtain copies from the Australian Commonwealth representative, 72 Victoria Street, Westminster, London, England.

4,187—ARTESIAN WATER WORKS.—An American Consul in Asia Minor reports that for some months the subject of furnishing a certain city with water from artesian wells has been under consideration by the local Government. It is stated that the city in question is much in need of water, that it is probable that some artesian water works will be constructed, and that the work will have to be done by foreigners. Further details can be had upon application.

4,188—MINERAL OILS AND GRAPHITE.—An importer and wholesale dealer in mineral oils, graphite, and similar technical articles in a European city advises an American Consul that he desires to get in touch with American firms exporting these articles that are not represented in the city in which he is located. Correspondence should be conducted in German.

4,189—AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS AND MACHINERY FOR THE PUNJAB.—In the Indian Trade Journal of Oct. 28, 1909, the Deputy Director of Agriculture in the Punjab furnishes a report on the characteristics of agricultural appliances likely to command a sale in that province. The particulars given in the report may afford guidance to firms interested in that trade.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Lamarche & Coady announce that A. H. Ostrom, former assistant treasurer of the American Light and Traction Company, has been admitted to partnership.

Walter Watson, a former member of the Stock Exchange, and a son of the late Walter Watson, managing Director of the Bank of Montreal, has been admitted as a general partner of C. I. Hudson & Co., and will be in charge of the firm's new branch office in the Hotel Plaza.

Application has been made to the Stock Exchange to list $10,000,000 Kansas City Southern Railway Company refunding and improvement mortgage 5 per cent. bonds, due 1950; $3,000,000 Butterick Company additional capital stock; £1,671,000 State of Sao Paulo 5 per cent. Treasury bonds, due 1919.

A comprehensive analysis of the operations of the United States Steel Corporation since its organization has been prepared by Charles W. Taintor of Tucker, Hayes & Co., Boston, which, by means of a chart, puts in graphic form the financial showing of the thirty-three quarters up to July 1, 1909. A text account of the salient features of the corporation's financial history accompanies it in a compact folder.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—The heavy tone of the Wall Street stock market dragged prices of local securities down for small losses to-day, although trading was light outside of Lehigh Valley, Pennsylvania warrants, and the arbitrage shares. Lehigh Valley dropped to 96 at one time, and after rallying somewhat closed at 96⅛, with a net loss of ¾ of a point on sales of over 4,800 shares. United Gas Improvement declined ¼ point, and small recessions took place in General Asphalt. Weakness in Pennsylvania railroad warrants was especially noticeable, moderate liquidation sending the price down to 14¾, the lowest level yet reached. Pennsylvania stock at the same time slumped a full point, carrying the price below 65.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Details of the purchase by the United States Realty Company of the stock of the Battery Place Realty Company and the erection by the latter of a thirty-one-story addition to the Whitehall Building, on Battery Place, will be found in another column.

Sales in Pennsylvania Zone.

Henrietta C. Warren has sold the property at the southwest corner of Thirty-first Street and Eighth Avenue, a plot 50 by 100, on which there are at present several old buildings. The Fay Realty Company, Edward Baer, President, is the buyer.

This is one of the few important corners of the Pennsylvania section which has remained in the hands of original owners. The property is directly opposite the Pennsylvania Station and the new Post Office, work on which is now in progress. The corner will be leased for a long term and held by its new owners as an investment.

William Morgan and L. E. Friet have sold to Lee Holstein 138 to 144 West Twenty-fifth Street, four old three-story dwellings, on plot 90 by 98.9 and irregular. The buyer will erect a modern loft structure. The sale is typical of the activity that is taking place in this vicinity. Mr. Holstein has bought a plot in the block 50 feet east of the foregoing for similar use.

S. B. Goodale & Son have sold for Oscar Krause 354 Seventh Avenue, a four-story building, on lot 21.4 by 75, near Twenty-ninth Street.

William P. Jones & Son have sold for Mary E. Morton to Philip G. Becker, M. D., the five-story brownstone tenement 451 West Thirty-sixth Street, 25 by 88 by 98. The property was bought for investment.

Astor Plot Resold.

Charles E. McManus has sold to L. & A. Pincus the plot, 75 by 100, on the north side of 108th Street, 125 feet east of Broadway. Mr. McManus bought this plot, together with the northeast corner of Broadway, in August from William Waldorf Astor. Both plots will be improved with apartment houses.

Buyer for Maiden Lane Lot.

Horace S. Ely & Co. have sold for the estate of Elizabeth T. Whitson to a client 58 Maiden Lane. The six-story building, which stands on a lot 25 by 55, will be altered by the purchaser. This property has been held in the family of the seller since 1815.

Henry M. Weill and Nail & Parker were the brokers in the sale of St. Philip's Protestant Episcopal Church, in West Twenty-fifth Street, reported sold Monday. The edifice covers a plot 74.7 by 98.9 at 157 to 163 West Twenty-fifth Street, 115 feet east of Seventh Avenue. The new owner will erect a twelve-story loft building on the site, and the congregation will move uptown.

Buys Broad Street Block Front.

Ernest Flagg, the architect, bought at auction yesterday the block front on the east side of Broad Street, between Front and Water Streets. The plot fronts 146.11 feet on Broad Street, 46.10 feet on Water Street, and 66.6 feet on Front Street. The Front Street corner is covered with an eight-and-one-half-story office and loft building. The balance is covered with five-story buildings. The selling price was $280,500, and the auctioneer was Joseph P. Day.

Big Washington Heights Deal.

The Central Building Improvement and Investment Company (Sonn Brothers) sold to a client of David Stewart, the vacant plot of land east side of Riverside Drive, 126 feet south of 181st Street, 100 by 120 by 86 by 128 feet. This adjoins the property on Riverside Drive and Buena Vista Avenue, sold by David Stewart to the same buyer last week.

Jacob J. Talbot has sold for Nicholas J. Griffith to Capt. John McCauley the five-story and basement double flat 115 West Ninetieth Street, 26.3 by 100.

East Side Tenements Sold.

S. Oppenheimer & Co. have sold for John Schriner, the two five-story double flat houses 315-317 East Eighty-ninth Street, 25 by 100 each, to H. Loden, and the adjoining house, 313, also a five-story double flat, to Charles L. Holbein, in conjunction with N. H. Weil.

Charles J. McKenna has sold for the estate of Ann Cummins the property 313 East Thirty-fourth Street, a four-story tenement on a lot 22 by 98.9. This is the first transfer of this property in twenty-five years.

Keenan Property Brings $86,175.

As a result at auction yesterday of several parcels of property owned by the estate of Patrick Keenan, who was for many years City Chamberlain of New York, four institutions will each get about $21,000. They are the legatees under Mr. Keenan's will. These institutions are St. Francis's Hospital, the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum, the Roman Catholic Protectory, and St. Vincent's Hospital. The total amount received was $86,175, the parcels sold being three tenements in Manhattan and two vacant parcels in Queens.

The bequests are the last under the Keenan will. Other bequests had been made to Mount Sinai Hospital, the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, and St. Brigid's Church.

Suburban Sales.

M. Just has sold for Charles Kensler the two lots, 50 by 100 on the northwest corner of Summerfield Street and Midland Avenue, Dunwoodie, Yonkers.

John Greer has sold for William Menstell to a builder, the northeast corner of Jamaica and Third Avenues, 50 by 125, Long Island City.

A Bronx Skyscraper.

Plans for an eight-story warehouse for storage purposes, which will be the tallest structure in the Bronx, were filed yesterday by William Schnaufer, as architect. The highest structure now is the seven-story Smith building, at Third Avenue and One Hundred and Forty-eighth Street.

The building will be erected at a cost of $80,000, by the Mandirkin Building Company, George Kinderman, President, on Webster Avenue, just north of Anna Place. The improvement is for a district at the southerly edge of the Tremont section, which has had a large development of five-story apartment houses within the last four years.

Garment Makers Move to Brooklyn.

That the tendency of New York's wholesale garment manufacturers to remove their plants from the congested districts in Manhattan to the free spaces of South Brooklyn is spreading, was shown yesterday when a lease was concluded between Louis Robinson, a clothing manufacturer of 79 Walker Street, and the Bush Terminal Company.

The Robinson plant, consisting of 185 machines, will be immediately set up on the third floor of Model Loft Building 2 of the Bush Terminal Company, at the foot of Thirty-sixth Street, South Brooklyn, and it is expected that, in the near future, the 300 employes of the firm will also move to that section.

New Money for Mortgages.

It was said yesterday at the office of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company that the most significant feature of the mortgage market continues to be the persistent and extending market for small mortgages. Notwithstanding the fact that it was a holiday week, the company disposed of 123 mortgages, aggregating very close to a million dollars.

If this popularization of the small mortgage investment continues and the people who now keep two or three thousand dollars in bank accounts at a low rate of interest begin to invest in mortgages instead, the time will come very quickly to New York City when the amount of money that can be borrowed on real estate will be limited only by the number of safe loans that are wanted.

Railroad Buys New Rochelle Acreage.

The sale of the W. B. Bonnett property on the Quaker Ridge Road, just east of North Avenue, New Rochelle, has been reported. The purchaser is said to be the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway Company, which needs the property as a part of its right of way between Mount Vernon and White Plains. There are six acres in the plot, and the price reported to have been paid is about $40,000. A few months ago Mr. Bonnett's brother, Walter Bonnett, sold his property to agents believed to represent the railway company for $27,000.

New West Side Post Office.

Plans have been filed for a new two-story Post Office building to be erected at the northeast corner of Prince and Greene Streets, in the heart of the old-time dry goods district. It is to be of brick and limestone from designs by Thomas Lamb. It will have a frontage of 90 and 75 feet and a depth of 99.8 feet, and is to cost $50,000. Charles Lane is the owner.

$85,000 Dwelling for Charles Scribner.

Plans have been filed by Ernest Flagg, as architect, for a new six-story and basement residence, with elevator service, to be built at 9 East Sixty-sixth Street for Charles Scribner. It is to be of brick and limestone in the style of the French Renaissance of the Louis XVI. period, with casement window, with railing, and finished with a decorative cornice and an elaborate roof balustrade, with ornamental pedestal supporting urn. The façade will be also decorated with carved festoonry. The first floor will contain the reception room opening off a large entrance hall. The drawing room and an oval dining room will be on the second floor and the library on the third floor. The estimated cost of the new structure is about $85,000.

Leases.

Montgomery Maze has leased 56 and 58 East Eighty-eighth Street, a four-story and basement fireproof garage, on a plot 68 by 100, to the Sagamore Garage Company for a period of ten years. This is the private stable formerly owned by the Leeds estate, which was altered for the purpose mentioned.

Frost, Palmer & Co. have leased to J. Richman & Co. the entire building 324 Canal Street, extending through to 43 Lispenard Street, for a term of years.

J. Clifford Moore & Co. have leased for the Bush Terminal Company to the Lang-Gros Manufacturing Company of Manhattan, floor space for a term of years in their modern factory buildings situated in South Brooklyn.

Leonard J. Muhlfelder has leased 10,000 feet in 23 and 25 Lispenard Street for Henry Hofheimer, receiver of rents; also, for Otto Lorence, 7,500 feet in 13 to 17 Crosby Street; also, for Kate Happel Bruner, 7,500 feet in 119 and 121 Wooster Street to H. Zaidenburg; also, for Gordon Cunard of Leicestershire, England, 5,000 feet in 6 and 8 West Twentieth Street, to I. Schlesinger & Co.; also, for Jacob Wolf, 5,000 feet in 114 and 116 West Twenty-seventh Street, to the Louis Stern Waist Company; also, for William K. Everdell, agent, 5,000 feet in 598 Broadway, to the Yankee Shirt Company; also, for the Manhattan Leasing Company, 5,000 feet in 4 and 6 Washington Place, to Levinsohn Brothers Company, Incorporated; also, for Louis Cohen, 5,000 feet in 37 East Twelfth Street, to Glaser & Braunstein; also, for J. A. Gilmour, 5,000 feet in 171 Mercer Street, to William Silberstein and Moskowitz & Schoenfeld; also, for Joseph Gatti, the first loft in 91 Crosby Street; also, for Shapiro & Levine, the fourth loft at 52 Lispenard Street, to the Consolidated Wax Taper Company, and for the Michele Briganti Company, Incorporated, the third loft at 59 Crosby Street, to Horwitz Brothers.

Huberth & Gabel have leased for Saul Deiches to T. W. Adams & Co. the store and basement at 89 Mercer Street.

Pease & Elliman, in conjunction with R. B. Morse, have rented for Mrs. Mary E. Uptegrove her country place at New Canaan, Conn., to Mrs. H. A. Mitchell Keays.

Long Beach

Wisdom consists not in seeing what is directly before us, but in discerning those things which may come to pass.

John Jacob Astor, the first, who amassed his millions through real estate was accredited one of the great wise men of the day. He was wise in the sense that he had the faculty of far-seeing the future of things. He had common sense in an uncommon degree—that's all.

You don't have to be an astute reasoner to see wherein will enhance in value at a rate far beyond anything launched in the New York realty market during the past two decades. There is no other realty enterprise on earth like it. Long Beach is not a suburban development. It is a big National Ocean City—a duplication of Atlantic City on a broader, bigger and more beautiful scale. You cannot form the first conception of this unique city by the sea until you see it as it stands to-day. When you do see it, you will stand amazed. Over 7½ millions of dollars have already been expended in improvements, boardwalk, etc., and in homes and business enterprises of investors. Over 6½ millions of dollars have already been invested in lots. (And remember, all this, in a little over two years.) The sooner you awake to the grand opportunity of investment, the better for you. Write for Long Beach literature, maps, etc. Special Guest Train on Sunday—tickets free.

Florida Land.
We strongly urge full investigation of Florida lands offered for sale by the Tampa Bay Land Company through us. The land is very fertile, prices low and terms very easy. No taxes for four years and no interest. Amount of land limited, and growing less daily.
We can show where a good income can be made at a very moderate initial expense, which is soon returned through cultivation of the land. To any one interested in agriculture this is a splendid opportunity, also as an investment it is of the best. It is well worth the time of any one to either call upon us or send a letter or postal and our representative will call. We will give fullest particulars in regard to this land and its productiveness, also prices, terms, &c.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT AT THE meeting of The Board of Estimate and Apportionment held on November 19, 1909, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, The Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity of The City of New York, acting for and in behalf and in the name of The City of New York, in pursuance of the provisions of chapter 466 of the Laws of 1901, as amended, has selected and determined certain real estate (as the term "real estate" is defined in the said act) in the County of Kings, as and for sources of public water supply in and for The City of New York, and deems it necessary to take and acquire the same and all the rights, titles and interests therein, and to extinguish all claims or damages on account of such rights, titles and interests, or growing out of such taking, for the purpose of maintaining, preserving and increasing the supply of pure and wholesome water for The City of New York, and of providing additional water works to supply The City of New York with water; and

Whereas, The said Commissioner has prepared and submitted to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, under date of November 4, 1909, two maps showing the real estate situated on the northerly side of Avenue M, having a depth of 200 feet and extending from Kings Highway to Lotts lane, comprising an area of 189,748 square feet, to be taken and acquired as aforesaid, as provided in the said act; therefore be it

Resolved, That a public notice be given of a hearing to be held by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of The City of New York in the old Council Chamber, Room 16, City Hall, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 17th day of December, 1909, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, at which a full opportunity shall be afforded to any and all persons interested to be heard respecting such maps and the taking and acquisition of the real estate as shown thereon;

Resolved, That such public notice be published once in each week, for three successive weeks, in The City Record, in the corporation newspapers, in two papers published in Kings County, in which county the real estate to be taken and acquired is situated, and in two daily papers published in The City of New York.

Dated November 27, 1909.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW York.—JOHN H. VOUGHT and WILLIAM G. VER PLANCK, as substituted trustees, &c., Plaintiffs, against JACOB KATZ and others, Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 9th day of November, 1909, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 6th day of December, 1909, at 12 o'clock noon, on that day, by Joseph P. Day, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain plot, piece or parcel of land, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the northerly side of Perry Street, distant eighty-five (85) feet one and one-fourth (1¼) inches Easterly along the same from the corner formed by the intersection of the Easterly side of Greenwich Street and the said Northerly side of Perry Street; and running thence Northerly, along the Westerly face of the Westerly wall of the building on the premises herein described, twenty-six (26) feet two and one-fourth (2¼) inches; thence Northerly, parallel with Greenwich Street, nineteen (19) feet one-fourth (¼) inch; thence Easterly, at right angles to Greenwich Street, fourteen (14) feet seven and five-eighths (7⅝) inches; thence Northwesterly, along a line which forms on its Westerly side an angle of sixty-six (66) degrees fifty-five (55) minutes and ten (10) seconds with the last course, seventeen (17) feet three and seven-eighths (3⅞) inches; thence Northerly, along a line which forms on its Easterly side an angle of one hundred seventy-six (176) degrees twenty-one (21) minutes and forty-five (45) seconds with the last course, fourteen (14) feet two and one-fourth (2¼) inches, more or less, to a point in a line drawn parallel with and distant seventy (70) feet Northerly from the Northerly side of Perry Street; thence Easterly, parallel with Perry Street, twenty-four (24) feet eight and one-half (8½) inches; thence Southerly, part of the distance along a fence and along the Easterly face of a stone retaining wall, and along the Easterly face of the Easterly wall of the building on the premises herein described, seventy (70) feet to the Northerly side of Perry Street; and thence Westerly, along the said Northerly side of Perry Street, forty-five (45) feet to the point or place of beginning;

Said premises being now known by the street numbers 113 and 115 Perry Street; and being one of the parcels which was conveyed to Jacob Katz and Max Wimple, by Jacob Kottek and wife, by deed dated May 26, 1904, and recorded April 19, 1905, in the office of the Register of the County of New York, in Liber 137, Section 2 of Conveyances, at Page 239.

MUSIC LESSONS FREE IN YOUR OWN HOME

A wonderful offer to every lover of music whether a beginner or an advanced player.

Ninety-six lessons (or a less number, if you desire) for either Piano, Organ, Violin, Guitar, Banjo, Cornet, Sight Singing, or Mandolin will be given free to make our home study courses for these instruments known in your locality. You will get one lesson weekly, and your only expense during the time you take the lessons will be the cost of postage and the music you use, which is small. Write at once. It will mean much to you to get our free booklet. It will place you under no obligation whatever to us if you never write again. You and your friends should know of this work. Hundreds of our pupils write: "Wish I had known of your school before." "Have learned more in one term in my home with your weekly lessons than in three terms with private teachers, and at a great deal less expense." "Everything is so thorough and complete." "The lessons are marvels of simplicity, and my 11 year old boy has not had the least trouble to learn." One minister writes: "As each succeeding lesson comes I am more and more fully persuaded I made no mistake in becoming your pupil."

Established 1898—have thousands of pupils from seven years of age to seventy. Don't say you cannot learn music, but send for our free booklet and tuition offer. It will be sent by return mail free. Address

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Classification of Imported Merchandise Depends On General Use.

In finding in favor of the claim of S. L. Jones & Co. for lower duty on oil from the soya bean, the Board of United States General Appraisers held yesterday that experimental use as against general use cannot be accepted as settling the question of the classification of imported merchandise.

The product in question was classified by the Collector as an "expressed oil" with a tax of 25 per cent. The importers on the other hand asserted that the article should be allowed to enter free of duty under the provision in the Dingley law for "soap stock." The testimony submitted to the board in behalf of the importers established that the oil in the condition imported is fit only for use in soap-making, and that while efforts have been made to sell the product for other purposes they have failed.

The Collector appears to have based his assessment on a report made by the Government chemist, who stated that he had experimented with the oil as food, and had found it sufficiently edible to be used on salads and in certain cooking operations. General Appraiser McClelland, in his decision says that there is no evidence of the use of the oil in even exceptional cases as human food. The unqualified statement of the importer's witnesses that the grade of oil in question is never used as food must, says the decision, be accepted as against the mere experimental use by a witness in preparing himself to testify. The protest is sustained and the Collector reversed.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

JESSE OBERDORFER. — Jesse Oberdorfer, salesman, 844 Dawson Street, the Bronx, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $1,273, contracted in 1905 and 1906 for tobacco and cigars, and no assets.

JOSEPH BRILL.—Judge Holt has appointed Herman H. Oppenheimer receiver in bankruptcy for Joseph Brill, dealer in infants' wear and general merchandise at 415 Grand Street. It was stated that all the goods were removed Monday afternoon to some place unknown to the petitioning creditors.

DAVID TEICH.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against David Teich, dealer in paper, of 218 East Ninety-eighth Street, by these creditors: Isaac Gilman, $328; Sam Weinberg, $120, and Tompkins & Tuthill, $684. It was alleged that he is insolvent, made preferential payments, removed some of his property, and at a meeting of creditors offered to pay them 25 cents on the dollar, 15 cents cash and 10 cents in notes. The liabilities are $2,500.

WOLFF & LIPPMAN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Henry Wolff and Meyer Lippman, who compose the firm of Wolff & Lippman, manufacturers of braids at 93 Bleecker Street, by these creditors: G. W. Schneider, $561 on an assigned claim of Ludwig Littauer; Roscoe A. Scism, $524 on an assigned claim of F. A. Straus & Co., and James Whiteside, $225. It was alleged that they are insolvent, made preferential payments, and removed some of their property.

EMPIRE STORE COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed here against the Empire Store Company, dealer in clothing and men's wearing apparel at Middletown, N. Y., by these New York City creditors: L. Ullmann & Sons, $364; Roggen Brothers & Co., $193, and Charles H. Levitt & Co., $228. It was alleged that the company is insolvent and made preferential payments. Juge Holt appointed Allen Corwin, receiver, on consent of Jerome Cohen, Secretary and Treasurer of the company, and authorized the receiver to continue business ten days.

WEISSBLUM & ROTHSTEIN.—A petition in baankruptcy has been filed against Abraham Weissblum and Samuel Rothstein, who compose the firm of Weissblum & Rothstein, manufacturers of cloaks and suits at 48 East Eighth Street, by these creditors: Simon Jaffe, $249; Edward Scheur, $250, and Meyer J. Alper, $38. It was alleged that they are insolvent, made preferential payments of $500, and transferred merchandise and accounts of $1,500. They began business in June, 1906, claiming a cash capital of $4,000. Judge Holt appointed Frank J. Waldeyer receiver. The liabilities are reported to be about $7,000 and the assets $1,300.

DAVIS WOLF.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Davis Wolf, dealer in dry goods, furnishings, and shoes at 127 Mulberry Street, by these creditors: Levinson & Shapiro, $171; Nathan Levy & Son, $151; Cohen & Belmont, $190, and Endicott, Johnson & Co., $159. It was alleged that he is insolvent, made preferential payments, and allowed a creditor to obtain a preference by legal proceedings. Judge Holt appointed James F. McNaboe receiver. The liabilities are reported to be $3,000 and the assets $1,500. It was stated that a City Marshal has removed some of the stock, and that Mr. Wolf has left the city and is said to have gone to Chelsea, Mass.

WILSON BRYANT. — Wilson Bryant and Clarence E. Block, doing business as Wilson Bryant, dealer in special jewelry at 400 Fifth Avenue, with a store at 379 Broadway, Saratoga, in the Summer time, have filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $17,445 and business assets of $5,783, consisting of stock in both stores, $1,650; fixtures of both stores, $3,000; accounts, $1,077, and cash, $6. They also have a claim for $16,000 damages against Mrs. Daniel S. Butterfield, Louis A. Duhain, and the Mermod, Jaccard & King Jewelery Company of St. Louis for alleged breaking up of their business at 400 Fifth Avenue by taking away fixtures and removing floor area, which prevented transaction of business, and caused complete loss of trade. Among the creditors are the New Netherlands Bank, $1,200; Adirondack Trust Company, Saratoga, $2,500; William Scheer, $2,477, and John L. Perry, $4,450 for the unexpired lease of the Saratoga store.

BANKRUPTCY SALES.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the District of New Jersey.—In the matter of HAYDEN and JUDD, a copartnership, alleged bankrupts.

Pursuant to an order duly made in this matter the receiver of the estate of the alleged bankrupts will sell property belonging thereto consisting of office furniture, a safe, some mops, cotton, machinery, sponges, mophandles, tools, electric motor, sewing machines, and mops in the course of manufacture, all situated in the factory building at No. 44 Humboldt Street, East Rutherford, New Jersey. Sealed bids will be received for any part or all of the entire property above described. These bids must be submitted to Elgin L. McBurney, receiver herein, at 42 Humboldt Street, East Rutherford, New Jersey, on December 9, 1909, at 11 A. M., at which time and place they will be opened by the receiver, and creditors may attend and advise as to the acceptance of bids. All bids must be accompanied by cash or certified check for ten per cent. of the amount thereof, and the balance of the purchase price must be paid to the receiver upon approval of sale by the court. The receiver reserves the right to reject any and all bids, and should the receiver reject all the bids the above described property will be sold at public auction on December 13, 1909, at 10:30 A. M. at the factory, 42 Humboldt Street, East Rutherford, New Jersey. The receiver reserves the right to withdraw any or all of the property from sale at public auction unless it shall bring at least seventy-five per cent. of the appraised value. The said property may be inspected on the premises, 42 Humboldt Street, East Rutherford, New Jersey, on December 6th, 7th, and 8th, 1909, between the hours of ten A. M. and four P. M.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—High pressure, clear weather, and moderate temperatures have prevailed east of the Mississippi River during the last twenty-four hours, except in the Atlantic States, where it has been comparatively cool. West of the Mississippi River conditions were reversed, with low pressure, somewhat higher temperatures, as a rule, and unsettled weather, with rains and snows, except in the extreme southwest.

There will be local rains Wednesday in the Mississippi and lower Ohio Valleys, probably extending Wednesday night or Thursday into the upper lake and western lower lake region, the Upper Ohio Valley, and the Middle Gulf States. There will also be local rains Wednesday in the plains States and the Missouri Valley, followed by fair weather Thursday. In the extreme west and in the Atlantic States the weather will be generally fair Wednesday and Thursday.

Steamers departing Wednesday for European ports will have moderate north to northeast winds, with fair weather, to the Grand Banks.

The winds along the New England Coast will be moderate north to northeast; Middle Atlantic Coast, light to moderate northeast to east; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate northeast; East Gulf Coast, light east to southeast; West Gulf Coast, light to moderate and variable; on the lower lakes, light to moderate east to southeast; upper lakes, moderate southeast to south.

FORECAST.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair, slightly warmer Wednesday. Thursday fair; light to east winds.

New England—Fair, slightly warmer Wednesday and Thursday; moderate north to east winds.

3 A. M.	47	34	4 P. M.	58	41

If you are looking for an investment, with or without services, where your money would be safe and bring you the largest possible income and financial independence, I have such a proposition in an established manufacturing business in the chemical line; the products are thoroughly meritorious and the profits unusually large; occasions are rare for an investment in a clean legitimate business that will stand the closest investigation, especially at the beginning of its success. If you have the foresight and the ability to appreciate a good thing and are sharp to discover opportunities for making money, you will not fail to seize this opportunity for investigating my proposition. I have need of one office man and three men in the sales department who can invest from $3,000 to $5,000 each and become permanently identified with the business, which has marvelous possibilities; particulars given only at personal interview. THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW York.—To all persons interested in the estate of VIVIAN JOHN BURKETT and RUSSELL E. SHANAHAN, composing the firm of Burkett & Shanahan, assigned to Frank P. Woglon for the benefit of creditors, send greeting:

You and each of you are hereby cited and required personally to be and appear at a Special Term of the Supreme Court, Part I., thereof held in the County of New York, at the Court House thereof, in the City of New York, on the 28th day of December, 1909, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, then and there to show cause why a final settlement of the account of Frank P. Woglon, assignee of the above-named Vivian John Burkett and Russell E. Shanahan, composing the firm of Burkett & Shanahan, insolvent debtors, should not be had, and if no cause be shown then to attend the final settlement of the assignee's accounts.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto caused the seal of the said Supreme Court for the County of New York to be hereunto affixed. Witness, Hon. Charles H. Truax, Justice of the said Court, this 9th day of November, 1909.

TELEPHONE INQUIRY BEGINS HERE TO-DAY

Legislative Committee Will Go Into Rates, Service, and the Franchise Question.

A CHANCE FOR THE PUBLIC

An investigation into the telegraph and telephone companies doing business in this city is to begin to-day at the hands of the joint legislative committee appointed at the last session. The committee will hold its hearings in the City Hall, and it is expected, from the amount of work cut out for it, that its investigation will continue at least six weeks.

Senator George A. Davis of Buffalo is Chairman of the committee, and the other members are Senator James Frawley of this city, Senator Edwin A. Merritt, Jr., of St. Lawrence County; Senator John Kissel of Brooklyn, Assemblyman Thomas B. Caughlan of New York, Assemblyman J. Henry Walters of New York, Assemblyman John R. Yale of Putnam, and Assemblyman Artemas Ward, Jr., of New York.

The committee will have as its counsel Ephraim J. Page of Syracuse, whose associates will be John T. Hettrick of this city, Odell R. Blair of Buffalo, and J. Bennett Scuthard of Putnam County.

The committee was appointed to look into every phase of the telephone and telegraph situation in this city with a view to ascertaining whether the companies ought to be placed under the supervision of the Public Service Commission, as is the case with the gas and transit corporations.

Under the act of the Legislature by which the committee was created it will be possible for it to compel the attendance of officials of the various telegraph or telephone companies in its work of probing into the affairs of the corporations. Failure on the part of an official to obey the summons of the committee will subject him to punishment for contempt.

With the broad power bestowed on it, the committee will be able to go ahead unhampered in its effort to ascertain the method of operation of the companies, the adequacy of service given to the public, the condition as to possible overcapitalization—in fact, everything the committee happens to wish to know about. It may compel the production of account books and all other records that will throw light on the questions that come up. In its scope the investigation will be equally as unrestricted as were the insurance and the gas investigations.

Question of Service.

When it comes to taking up the question as to the adequacy of service the committee will pay particular attention to the local telephone company. If there are any subscribers who feel that they do not receive a proper return for the money paid in for telephone rental, if there are any objections to the charges for telephone calls between the different boroughs or to near-by cities from public or private telephones, if there is anything else that the public wants to tell the committee about, witnesses will be welcome to go to the City Hall and say what it is.

The committee will hold itself ready to hear any sort of complaint or suggestion bearing upon the point of service, always with the idea in view that if it is shown that proper service does not obtain there may be a recommendation to the Legislature that the company be placed under the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission.

For instance, in the complaint as to the service derived from the rental of telephones, it will be in order, should a subscriber feel so disposed, to tell the committee if he thinks he is being overcharged when he pays $48 or more a year for a telephone in the Bronx, Brooklyn, or the suburbs, the rental of which covers only local calls, with additional charges for calls in another zone—from the Bronx, for instance, to Manhattan.

The telephone company, under its present arrangement with subscribers, does not permit calls outside of certain zones without extra charge, no matter whether the total of calls for the year runs up to the rental price or not. Expressions of opinion on this point will be listened to by the committee, and an investigation made into the whole situation to ascertain if the company is jusified in maintaining such an arrangement.

The committee will also look into the matter of franchises under which the company operates. There has been a suspicion that certain of the old franchises have long ago expired, and this question will be gone into. It may be that the committee will consider that the telephone company does not pay enough rental for its franchises, and this point also will form one of the lines of investigation.

A Franchise Inquiry.

The franchises under which the New York Telephone Company—the Bell—operates were originally owned by the Empire Subway Company, Limited, which, as various of the old companies were incorporated into the greater one, were appropriated by the merged corporation. There are two or more independent companies which have no lines in the city, but which lay claim to the right to franchises. The committee will find out what basis there is for these claims.

Since the organization of the New York Telephone Company years ago, there has been a decided advance in the rental price of telephones, and in the prices charged at the public stations, although New York has not the highest rates of any city in the country. It is to be part of the committee's work to determine if this high rate is justified by the conditions as to operating expenses, distances and other elements that enter into the service.

In the same manner will the investigation be carried on with respect to the telegraph companies. The officials of the Western Union, which was recently absorbed by the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, and of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company, will be summoned with their books of account, and the committee will try to determine if excessive rates are being charged. As in the case of the telephone company, this matter will be investigated on the basis of the earnings of the companies as compared with the cost of operation.

The recent merger itself will be investigated, particularly with respect to the possibility of over-capitalization, and of the benefit derived by the public from the consolidation. While this consolidation, in many of its features, has an inter-State relation, the bearing upon local conditions will be within the province of the committee.

The merger involved a $50,000,000 bond issue, the conditions of which the committee will look into. It is within the realms of possibility that the committee at the end of its inquiry into the telegraph merger, may recommend the breaking up of the giant company as being inimical to the interests of the public. The American Telegraph and Telephone Company, with its $650,000,000 of capital stock, extends to every part of the country, and is the largest corporation of its kind in existence.

To Look Into Agreements.

The committee will be privileged to inquire into the intermittent public impression that the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies are working under a secret rate agreement, and that, in effect, they constitute a combination in restraint of trade, or competition. If this condition is found to exist the committee will be at liberty to recommend to the Legislature steps to break up the combination.

The legislative committee started its work two weeks ago in Buffalo, and the extent of its investigation is evidenced in what it did there. The committee inquired into the acquisition of the Buffalo Telephone Company by the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, which had occurred just before the committee went to Buffalo.

The President of the Buffalo Company and nearly all the other officials were called before the committee and questioned concerning the terms of the sale to the trust. Rates were touched upon, and the committee came away with some valuable pointers which, it is said, will be used by the committee as a basis for determining whether rates in this city are excessive. After leaving Buffalo the committee went to Rochester for three days. This will be the third city to be by the investigators.

TELEPHONE RATES CUT.

On the Eve of the Legislative Investigation a New Schedule Is Announced.

The New York Telephone Company (Bell) announced yesterday a reduction of 5 cents in both subscribers' and pay station toll rates between Manhattan and various near-by suburban points, to take effect to-day. Twenty-three cities and a large number of towns within a radius of twenty-five miles of the city are included in the cut.

Hereafter the rate for a call to Jersey City or Hoboken from Manhattan will be 10 cents for subscribers, instead of 15, and 15 cents at the pay stations instead of 20. To the Oranges the subscribers' rate will be 20 cents instead of 25, while at the pay stations the charge will be 25 instead of 30. The subscribers' rate to Great Neck, L. I., is reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents, and the charge at the pay stations from 30 cents to 25. The Mount Vernon toll is reduced from 20 to 15 cents to subscribers, and 25 to 20 cents at pay stations. Here are the other principal reductions:

	Subscribers' Rate.		Pay Station Rate.
	Old Rate.	New Rate.	Old Rate.	New Rate.
Arlington	.20	15	25	20
Belleville	.20	15	25	20
Bronxville	.20	15	25	20
Dobbs Ferry	.25	20	30	25
Englewood	.25	20	30	25
Floral Park	.25	20	30	25
Harrison	.20	15	25	20
Hastings	.25	20	30	25
Mamaroneck	.25	20	30	25
Montclair	.25	20	30	25
Newark	.20	15	25	20
New Rochelle	.20	15	25	20
Port Washington	.25	20	30	25
Scarsdale	.25	20	30	25
The Pelhams	.20	15	25	20
Tuckahoe	.20	15	25	20
Union	.15	10	20	15
Yonkers	.20	15	25	20

In announcing the cut the telephone company sent out a statement that it was done "in line with the company's general policy of reducing rates for various classes of telephone service, whenever the net earnings of its operations warrant such reductions."

The fact that the reduction was announced on the eve of the hearings to be held by the legislative investigating committee into telephone and telegraph companies gave rise to a suggestion that the company had been influenced by this, but at the company's offices this was denied.

With the present volume of telephone business the company holds that the reduction amounts to about $500,000 a year.

HARVARD FAVORS OPEN GAME.

Athletic Association Takes Action Toward Football Rule Changes.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 30.—The death of Cadet Byrne in the Harvard-West Point game has led to a movement in favor of changing the football rules in the direction of "lessening the number of severity of the injuries occurring in the present game."

At a meeting of the Harvard Athletic Association to-night it was voted to request the Advisory Committee on Football, a sub-committee of the general body, to report as soon as possible sugestions in football rules to this effect. There is no idea whatsoever of abolishing the game. The tendency, it is understood, is to recommend a further opening in the general scheme of play.

The committee which will consider the matter directly, and whose suggestions will probably be forwarded to the Football Rules Committee, is composed of Andrew Marshall, J. W. Farley, Boach P. D. Haughton, and Capt. Hamilton Fish of this year's 'Varsity team, Graduate Manager W. F. Garcelon, Francis H. Burr, and G. R. Fearing.

WAGNER OPERA AT MANHATTAN

Hammerstein to Produce "Tannhaeuser" with Zenatello in Title Role.

Oscar Hammerstein will make his first experiment with Wagner next week when he will produce "Tannhauser," in the Paris version with French text, at the Manhattan Opera House on Wednesday evening. Mr. Zenatello will sing the title part, Mr. Renaud will be heard as Wolfram, the Elizabeth will be Mme. Mazarin, and the Venus, Mme. Doria, Mr. Vallier will be the Landgrave, Mr. Lucas as Walther, and Messrs. Huberdeau, Venturini, and Scott will be in the cast. Mr. De la Funte will conduct.

Mme. Carmen-Melis will be heard in "Tosca" on Monday evening. Mr. Renaud will be in the cast. "Sapho," with Miss Garden and Mr. Dalmores, will be repeated on Friday. At the Saturday matinee "The Daughter of the Regiment," with Mme. Tetrazzini, and Mr. McCormack, and "Pagliacci" will be sung.

"Les Cloches des Corneville" will be given for the second time on Tuesday evening. "Boccace" will be sung for the first time at the Manhattan on Saturday night. In the cast will be Mmes. Delornes, Nolba, Laya, and Dumesnil, and Messrs. Blondel, Dufour, Dambrine, Nicolay, Mayroud, and de Kaiser.

Jascha Bron, the young violinist, will again be the feature of the Sunday night concert.

The Thompsons Celebrate.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Thompson (Mabel Taliaferro) celebrated the third anniversary of their marriage last night with a dinner party at the Hotel Imperial. It was in the Imperial that Mr. Thompson proposed to Miss Taliaferro, and in that hotel that they were married. The guests last night included Mr. and Mrs. John H. Tennant, Mr. and Mrs. Winchell Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hamlin, Mr. and Mrs. Booth Tarkington, Harry Leon Wilson, and Glenmore Davis.

Ruth H. Denis's Evening Dances.

Beginning on Dec. 6 Ruth St. Denis will give her dances at the Hudson Theatre in the evenings, and on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. The engagement of Grace Elliston in "Jacquelin," which was to have begun on that date, has been postponed in order that changes may be made in the cast. Miss St. Denis has been appearing at special matinees.

Symphony Orchestra Heard Again.

The New York Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Walter Damrosch, repeated the programme which it had played Sunday afternoon at The New Theatre last night in Carnegie Hall. Rachmaninoff was again the soloist, playing his new concerto for pianoforte. The symphony was Mozart's in C major. Lalo's "Arlequin" and Chabrier's "Marche Joyeuse" completed the programme.

"Les Dragons de Villars" Repeated.

"Les Dragons de Villars" was given for the second time at the Manhattan Opera House last evening. The cast included Mmes. Walter-Villa and Dumesnil and Messrs. Devries and Dufour. Mr. Haakonan conducted.

TRACED TO BERLIN ON PHOTOGRAPH CLUE

WANTED FOR FORGERY

Member of Clothing Firm Said to Have Obtained $107,000 on Orders Improperly Made Out.

Martin Kaufmann of the failed firm of Bloom & Kaufmann, who disappeared from the city last Spring just before the announcement of his alleged forgeries, amounting to some $107,000, was brought to New York to face his accusers yesterday. He was found in Berlin after a long hunt on the part of H. C. Hill, an American detective, who with a picture of an unknown hotel as his only clue finally found Kaufmann.

As soon as the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, the steamship on which Kaufmann was brought back, arrived at Quarantine Detectives Flood and Fitzsimmons of the Central Office took Kaufmann off and brought him to the city on the police boat Patrol. He was taken to Headquarters, where he was measured and photographed, and then taken before Judge Swann in General Sessions. He was held for trial in $15,000 bail, which he produced.

Kaufmann was accused of forgery by his partner and Moe A. Isaacs of 4 Great Jones Street, who says he lost $60,000 worth of goods through Kaufmann.

Harry C. Hill, the detective who captured Kaufmann, was retained by Mr. Isaacs. The detective had no clue when Mr. Isaacs gave him his commission to go after Kaufmann. He first went to Lawrence, Mass., where Kaufmann once lived. There he got hold of a postcard postmarked Vienna. The card was addressed to a relative, and over one of the windows in the hotel was a cross mark. The window was on the fourth floor. An arrow pointed to the window and underneath the arrow was written: "This is my room."

The writing was shown to a handwriting expert, who compared it with Kaufmann's writings and declared it to be the handwriting of the fugitive.

Hill informed Mr. Isaacs of his discovery, and a week later the detective was on the Atlantic, bound for Vienna. The landlord of the Café Bellevue—the name of the hotel on the postcard—said Kaufmann had left for Berlin a few days before when Hill arrived.

Failure to land his man in Vienna almost caused Hill to despair of ever getting him. He did not know what name Kaufmann would use in Germany. He had no photograph of the man, and he had never seen him even for a moment. The only thing the detective knew was that the fugitive was about 6 feet in height, and that his hair and mustache were black. The detective wondered if Kaufmann would shave off his mustache and dye his hair another color—and besides Hill could not speak a word of German.

A few days later Hill arrived in Berlin. A cablegram was waiting for him in Berlin. It told him to watch a certain agency where it was believed that Kaufmann would receive mail under the name of Marvin Kent.

"For four days and nights," Hill said yesterday, "I stood in that place, waiting for my man. The fifth day of the watch I saw a man enter the place whose appearance aroused my suspicions. The suspect was about 6 feet in height, and his mustache was black.

"I decided to take a chance, and, walking up to him, I said: 'Hello, Kaufmann.'

"The man turned on me quickly and said: 'I beg your pardon; that's not my name. I do not know you.'

"'Oh, yes, you are Kaufmann, and you are under arrest,' I replied. I knew he was my man by the look in his face."

Kaufmann broke down then, Hill declared, and said he was willing to waive extradition and return immediately to New York with him. Hill cabled to New York, and Assistant District Attorney Kresel telegraphed the information to Gov. Hughes, who in turn requested the State Department in Washington to cable Hill authority to hold Kaufmann.

At one time, following the disappearance of Kaufmann, it was reported that he had returned to the United States. A well-known actress, who is the divorced wife of a prominent New Yorker, is said to be a sister-in-law of Kaufmann's, and this woman was appealed to to use her influence to persuade Kaufmann to come to New York and give himself up. Another relation of Kaufmann is also said to have asked Mr. Isaacs to let up in the search for Kaufmann, a request that Mr. Isaacs ignored.

No less than twenty firms are said to have been losers through Kaufmann's transactions. After he was released on bail yesterday Kaufmann left the court in company of his wife and went to the North German Lloyd piers in Hoboken to get his baggage.

BEQUESTS TO JEWISH CHARITY

By the will of Herman Jacoby, who died on Sept. 18 in Chicago, Jewish charities in this city will profit $11,000. Mr. Jacoby left an estate worth $50,000, and of this amount he leaves $1,000 each to Lebanon Hospital, Beth Israel Hospital, the Hebrew Infant Asylum, the Hebrew Shelter Guardian Society, the Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews, the Jewish Theological Seminary, the Ladies' Fuel and Aid Society, and the Talmudical Academy.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Mutual Benefit Association of the Employes of the American News Company and branches will hold its sixth annual vaudeville show and reception on Saturday evening, Jan. 8, at Webster Hall. A fine programme has been arranged by the New York and Brooklyn Amusement Company.

The West Side Young Men's Christian Association at 318 West Fifty-seventh Street has added to its classes one in design and construction of boats. It is to be given during the Winter evenings for amateurs, and nothing technical is included.

THE NEW YORK TIMES has received for James Raymond, the old war veteran and contractor of 1,923 Benson Avenue, Bath Beach, $113 altogether; this will be turned over to him to-day. Here are the contributors, as they wished to be designated, and the amounts given by each: "A friend," $10; "A. J. J. C.," $2; "J. P. W.," $10; "A friend," $2; "J. H. D.," $50; "A. M. H.," $4; "C. B. W.," $20; "A friend," $1; "E. A. R.," $5; "S. B.," $1; "J. W. S.," $2; "L. M.," $5; "Comrade," $1. Mr. Raymond is in no further need of help.

BIBLE FALLIBLE, SAYS AKED.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—The usual calm of a university extension meeting was broken this afternoon when the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church of New York, declared in vigorous words that the Bible was not infallible. When he had closed his address of an hour and a half on "Changing Creeds and Social Conditions" a dozen men in all parts of the crowded floor and balcony leaped to their feet to put questions to him.

"Who," he asked, "told us that this book was the Bible? Who settled that question for us? Just so long as the men in the pulpit protest that the Bible is infallible, just so long will the men outside the Church ignore it. The infallibility of the Bible has been invoked on behalf of some of the worst crimes in history. The time has come for us to open our eyes and see what the Bible really is. The notion of the Churches is that it came down from God nicely and neatly printed and bound in morocco, and with a bookmark against the text that all Scripture is inspired."

The first person to succeed in putting a question to Dr. Aked, when he had finished his address, was a young theological student.

"Have you not proved, by what you yourself have said, that the Bible is infallible?" he asked.

"If I could persuade myself that I had left upon your minds the impression that the Bible is infallible I would never speak in public again," was the reply.

A questioner far up in the gallery wanted to know how young men were to be induced to use the Bible if they did not believe that it was infallible.

"If the present tendency be maintained, then at the end of 100 years the churches of this country will be deserted.

"The world awaits not for a new religion, but another incarnation of the old.

"In ancient Greece the man who had nothing to do with Government was called an idiot. In this country the person who has to do with political affairs is supposed to be a thief."

Theatre Hearing of Preventorium Case

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Nov. 30.—So much interest is being shown in the trial to-morrow afternoon here of Sherburn Wheelwright, Superintendent of the Tuberculosis Preventorium, that it will take place in the Lyric Theatre instead of in the small Town Hall. It is stated here to-night that the office of Attorney General Edmund L. Wilson will be represented at the trial. Ex-Assemblyman A. S. Alexander of Hudson County will represent Mr. Wheelwright and the Preventorium interests, and will be assisted by New York attorneys.

THINKS COOK IS IN MAINE.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 30.—The Boston American to-day prints the following dispatch dated Wells Depot, Me.:

"U. R. Cain, station agent of the Boston & Maine Railroad at West Kennebunk, believes that Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the north pole explorer, is a patient at Pine Valley Sanitarium here. Mr. Cain was at the station at Wells Beach yesterday afternoon when the train from Boston arrived and saw a man answering Dr. Cook's description leave the train.

"The man's head was large and broad and he had a brown mustache. He wore gold-rimmed spectacles. He had on a derby hat and a long, fur-lined coat. He walked up to a livery stand at the sta- toward Pine Valley Sanitarium. When the team neared the sanitarium he got out and paid the driver, who came back to the station, while the man walked to the door and entered. The sanitarium is run by Dr. Thomas S. Pitt, who came here from Cambridge, Mass.

"The man who arrived yesterday is the only patient at the sanitarium. A newspaper reporter who visited the place last night saw a man answering Dr. Cook's description at one of the windows, but he disappeared as the reporter neared the house.

"Dr. Pitt went to Boston yesterday. His wife is in charge of the sanitarium. She refused to deny that the patient who arrived yesterday was Dr. Cook."

EGAN TO SEE COOK'S DATA.

Rector of Copenhagen University Asks Minister to Attend Examination.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 30.—Rector Torp of the University of Copenhagen to-day extended an invitation to Dr. Maurice F. Egan, United States Minister to Denmark, to be present when the north polar records of Dr. Cook are received and also during the subsequent examination.

MOTHER AND SON SUICIDES.

Woman Found Dead Kneeling at Prayer—Both in Gas-Filled Room.

The police of the Coney Island Station are investigating an unusual case of an apparent double suicide. There appears to have been no reason for the act, and both the victims were found dead in unusual positions.

Mrs. Laura Weeks, 60 years old, and her son, Gustave, 35, are the ones who carried out the apparent suicide pact. Gustave was found dead yesterday afternoon directly in front of the door of his mother's room. Mrs. Weeks was found kneeling beside her bed as though in prayer. Gas was escaping from an open jet of the chandelier.

The discovery was made by Mrs. Alice Sherman, Mrs. Weeks's landlady, at Cortlandt Avenue and Sheepshead Bay Road, Coney Island, who had gone to call the woman for supper. It was known that Gustave, who lived in College Point, and is said to have had a wife and several children there, was visiting his mother. Mrs. Sherman said that earlier in the afternoon she had heard angry words between the two, but that all had been quiet for some time before she visited the room.

A doctor was called and he said that the couple had been dead for at least two hours. George Weeks, a younger brother of Gustave, who lived with his mother, said later that he knew no reason for the suicide of either his mother or brother, and felt sure that it must have been an accident.

Christmas Handkerchiefs
At "The Linen Store."

For the Christmas season we have brought from all the linen-making countries of the world a great collection of beautiful handkerchiefs, which includes practically every kind and style made.

In accordance with our policy of over 50 years, every handkerchief offered is made of absolutely pure linen. A marked feature of the display are the following:

French and Swiss Hand Embroidered Handkerchiefs, very delicate and sheer, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 each and upwards.

All delivered in McCutcheon Spinning Wheel Boxes.
